S. F.-N. Y. FLIERS BEAT 28 HOUR TIME

Girls Attacked By Street Thugs

MAIL FLIERS CUT TIME 5 MINUTES

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 23.—Congress will be asked to appropriate money to make permanent transcontinental air mail service such as is now being tried out between New York and San Francisco, Col. Paul Henderson, assistant postmaster-general declared today.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(United Press.)—Letters mailed in San Francisco yesterday arrived here early this afternoon.

The postoffice department's second attempt to span the continent with mail within 28 hours ended when the airplane guided by Pilot Paul F. Collins on the last lap of the eastward flight landed at Hazelhurst field at 12:22 p. m. standard time.

The mail left San Francisco at 5:26 a. m. yesterday. It was transferred to fresh machines with new pilots at several points en route.

The official time of arrival here was later announced as 12:21 p. m., eastern standard time, which would make the unofficial elapsed time 2 hours 55 minutes.

Collins handled the plane on the final hop from Cleveland to Mineola. The elapsed unofficial time from San Francisco to Mineola was 27 hours and 55 minutes.

The schedule time the postoffice aimed to make for the coast to coast mail transfer was 28 hours.

Fastest train time between San Francisco and New York is four and a half days.

Almost before the fleet mail plane had halted after its landing wheels had touched the field a United States air mail truck was dashing alongside. Several men leaped from the car and began transferring mail sacks from the ship to the truck. Before the pilot could alight the men had finished the task and were rushing the mail to the postoffice.

It was the end of a epoch-making journey.

Eastbound.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23—(International News Service.)—The third eastbound air mail plane in the 28-hour postal service, which left here at 6 o'clock this morning, arrived at Elko, Nev., at 10:29 a. m., piloted by Aviator Sharpnack. The plane hopped off two minutes later. Pilot Mouton then took the plane on its next leg of the journey, which is Salt Lake city.

Westbound.

MINEOLA, L. I., Aug. 23 (International News Service). — The third of the air mail planes, pioneers in the recently created 28-hour coast-to-coast postal service, hopped off from Hazelhurst field for the Pacific coast at 10:58, Eastern standard time, today, piloted by Wesley L. Smith. Cleveland will be the first stop.

This was the third plane to leave in as many days to rush mail across the continent in record time. Five planes in all will be started from here westward bound. Regular air routes then will be planned from the results of their trips.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—(International News Service.)—The westbound airplane which left Hazelhurst field, New York, yesterday morning in the coast-to-coast 28-hour postal trial service, arrived at Elko, Nev., at 9:33 o'clock this morning in charge of Pilot Scott, who was relieved there by Pilot Eaton and left at 9:35.

City of Vera Cruz In Strikers' Hands

VERA CRUZ, Aug. 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Vera Cruz is virtually under the control of a committee of strikers which has taken over direction of the police. Order is being maintained. The envoy sent by President Obregon has returned to Mexico City with striker delegates empowered to negotiate a settlement.

Wives of the members of the syndicate of "tenants who pay no rent" marched to the markets yesterday and compelled domestic servants buying food to go to the headquarters of the strikers, sign the syndicalist membership list and immediately declare a ten-day strike.

The upper picture herewith was taken in New York City at 4:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Throngs Cheer Pilot at End Of N. Y.-S. F. 34-Hour Flight

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—The first westbound air mail night and day service test flight, ended with the arrival last night in San Francisco of the plane from Reno, Nev., at 6:24 o'clock, mountain time. The mail which started from New York yesterday morning had been convoyed by nine pilots in its journey across the continent. The log of its flight was:

With the first of the five daily flights completed successfully today and the second well under way, interest in the government's attempt to carry mail from coast to coast in approximately 30 hours was at high pitch in the Bay district and throughout the rest of the nation today.

Thirty-four hours and twenty-eight minutes was the official time for the first of the east-to-west transcontinental flights, which ended here last night with the arrival of a big De Havilland plane at Crissy Field, bearing mail which had left New York City the previous morning.

By the time it reached the Bay, at 6:24 p. m., another plane was already twelve hours on its way across the continent. And this morning at Crissy Field still another plane hopped off for the third of the five consecutive tests.

Two hours before the New York mail was landed in San Francisco last night, a plane landed in New York at the finish of the Pacific-to-Atlantic relay which began here early Tuesday morning. Its arrival there was practically on

THIS IS WAY PICTURES GO OVER WIRES

Like a gigantic thousand-eyed spider, the world now sees everywhere at the same time. Photographs of events occurring in New York are telegraphed to the Pacific coast and published in The TRIBUNE within a few hours of their actual happening.

The telegraphed photograph reproduced at the top of this page shows Pilot Eugene Johnson handing out the first piece of Western mail on reaching Hazelhurst Field, Long Island, at 4:14 p. m., standard time, yesterday.

Johnson had just finished the last jump of his East-bound transcontinental mail flight in three hours, 12 minutes, which was a reduction of 38 minutes from the previous record between Cleveland and New York.

Many requests have been received for an explanation of the methods that make it possible for The TRIBUNE to publish pictures of big news events several days before the mail could possibly reach Oakland. Through cooperation with the Leishman Telegraph Picture Service these photos are transmitted by wire or radio with the speed of light—186,000 miles a second. Airplanes travel slightly more than 100 miles an hour.

A picture is first prepared in much the same manner as an ordinary newspaper cut. By examining any half-tone picture in a newspaper it is readily seen that it is made up of tiny dots and lines. When the art of printing was first being developed it was not possible to print pictures showing intermediate tones. The only tones were the two extremes—white and black.

It was discovered, however, that when the picture was photographed through a fine screen the process automatically broke up the picture into dots which varied in size according to the shading of the various portions of the picture. The dots are very small in the light portions of the picture and their size increases according to the depth of shade until lines are finally formed by them. In the darkest portions white dots begin to appear in the otherwise solid black masses.

There are sixty such dots to each line inch, used in ordinary newspaper work and 3600 to every square inch. Each dot, it will be observed, is of the same degree of blackness while in the spaces between the dots and lines the paper's natural color appears. From this it is obvious that the light and shade effect is produced entirely by the size of the dots and not by their degree of shade nor the number to the inch. The finest cut...

ATTACKS ON WOMEN STIR TWO CITIES

Attacks on women and girls assumed such alarming proportions in Oakland and San Francisco during the past twenty-four hours that special police posses in both cities were hurriedly organized today to curb what is feared may be an incipient outbreak of degeneracy on a large scale.

Five women and girls were victims of attempted assaults. In Oakland Miss Blanche Esperance and Miss Lena Betchard were attacked as they were walking together down High street last night, while earlier in the day Mrs. Inez Sebber fought off an assailant in front of her home on Fifty-third street.

In San Francisco one girl was rescued from a band of 20 gangsters only by the arrival of the police in response to a riot call. Another girl, Miss Frances S. Shierka, reported that she had been insulted and beaten by Paul Werner, a telegraph operator, who was arrested on her complaint.

Six men in all are under arrest today as a result of the alleged attacks on women, and 19 others are being sought by police posses.

SEARCH CONTINUED FOR GIRLS' ASSAILANT.

Search for the man who attacked the two girls on High street last night, and who, after severely beating them was frightened away by their screams, was continued today by a posse from the Melrose police station.

S. F. POLICE RESCUE GIRL FROM GANGSTERS.

A young girl battling desperately against twenty youths in the Islais Creek district in San Francisco last night, was rescued by a flying squadron of police who arrived in an automobile in response to telephone calls sent in by residents in the neighborhood.

While the police were arresting five of the members of the gang, the girl herself disappeared, and her identity still remains unknown.

Search for the remaining fifteen of the girl's attackers was under way by the police today.

The scene of the attack was a lonely spot in a hollow formed by the upper end of Islais Creek, just below the Mission viaduct. According to the story told by the arrested youths, two of them met the girl in the park, and took her to the spot, where they were joined by the rest of the gang.

Neighbors heard the girl screaming frantically, and saw her fighting in the midst of the twenty gangsters. When the police arrived they found her in the grasp of five of the youths. Although the fifteen other gangsters fled at the approach of the police and escaped, the five who were struggling with the girl failed to notice the officers, and were arrested.

GIRL SPEEDS AWAY TO ESCAPE NOTORIETY.

When the police looked around for the girl after placing the five youths under arrest, she was gone. Neighbors said they had seen her depart, with about ten of the members of the gang following her. The police believe she fled to escape notoriety.

The youths under arrest are Edward Johnson, 21, 226 Ellsworth street; Walter Roderick, 19, 243 Elsie street; Wendell Phillips, 20, 205 Park Circle; Benjamin Rosenberg, 20, 290 Richland avenue, and Joseph Garcia, 20, 132 Hamilton street.

Charges of disturbing the peace have been placed against the youths, which is the most serious that the police can prefer against them in the absence of the complaining witness. Belief was expressed at police headquarters today that the girl or her parents may appear later to make a formal complaint.

Accused of having lured Miss Frances S. Sklerka, 134 Milton street, into his automobile, and then speeding with her in spite of her protests to Colma, where he is alleged to have insulted her, struck her in the face and thrown her out of his machine, Paul Werner, a telegraph operator 31 years old living at 1040 Ellis street, was arrested by the San Francisco police last night and charged with battery. He was released on $2500 bail. Miss Sklerka said that she was on her way home when Werner stopped at the curb and asked her to ride the rest of the way. She said she ordered him for a young [illegible]

Oakland Boy Is Drowned; Dog Guards Clothes

GEORGE STAHLY, 15, a sophomore student at the Fremont High School, and his dog "Nip" went swimming in a pool near Walnut Creek yesterday. In the afternoon passers-by found the dog sitting beside the boy' clothes on the bank whining. When it was determined that the boy had been drowned, Constable Harry Stow of Walnut Creek communicated with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stahly, 2543 East Twenty-ninth street.

Divers searched the bottom of the stream for the boy's body, while "Nip" stood guard over his master's clothes and resented all intrusions by strangers.

The body was recovered with grappling hooks late last night. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon.

GASOLINE PRICE HITS 16 CENTS

Motor Fuel Reaches Lowest Price Attained Here Since 1916.

Gasoline today is selling in Oakland at 16 cents a gallon, the lowest price since 1916.

The reduction of 1 cent a gallon was announced yesterday afternoon by the Standard Oil company and, shortly afterwards, the Associated Oil company followed the example.

The drop in price announced by the Standard becomes effective today for all Northern California, Nevada, Washington, Oregon, Alaska and Hawaii.

In Southern California, the price dropped 2 cents, according to the statement of the Standard Oil company. The price there is 15 cents.

In Los Angeles, the independent service stations throughout the city were selling gas today at prices ranging from 13 to 15 cents a gallon, according to press despatches. One station on the outskirts of the city was reported selling gasoline at 6 cents a gallon.

Standard Oil company officials last night said the difference in price between Northern and Southern California is due to the close proximity of the source of crude oil in the south, whereas the crude oil of the Richmond refinery is transported from Southern California to Richmond by tankship.

The drop in price was said to be due to a continued over-production of crude oil in Southern California which created a surplus of gasoline.

Users of Standard Oil script books will be deprived of their discount with the cut in effect today, but the company announced that it would continue the sale of the books for the convenience of patrons. The sale of gallonage coupons books will be discontinued.

Gasoline reached a maximum price of 27 cents in 1920. Today's reduction is the seventh since that time.

RICHMOND TO GET LOWEST GAS RATE.

RICHMOND, Aug. 23. — Announcement from headquarters of the Standard Oil Company show that Richmond is to be favored with the second lowest rate for gasoline in the state on account of proximity to the source of supply. Gasoline will be sold here for 15½ cents a gallon.

Southern California s the sole secton of the West which secures a rate for Standard Oil gasoline lower than that of Richmond. There it is to be sold for 15 cents a gallon. Southern California is the source of the crude supply and Standard officials say cost of transportation is the cause for the difference.

STATE SECURES I. W. INJUNCTION

Action by Judge Busick At Sacramento Aimed to Shorten Trials.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 23.—(By United Press.)—An injunction that "will do away with long and tedious trials" for I. W. W. and make them subject to six months' jail sentences for contempt of court upon proof of membership, was granted by Judge Charles O. Busick today.

The suit for the injunction was brought by the district attorney of Sacramento county "in the name of the people of the state of California."

Judge Busick refused pleas of the I. W. W. for a change of venue and for a change of judge.

"To shorten the procedure" is the reason advanced for the petition for the injunction and its granting. Under the terms of the injunc[illegible]

NEW BRITISH, FRENCH RUHR PARLEY SEEN

By LLOYD ALLEN,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Aug. 23. — Prime Minister Baldwin and Foreign Minister Curzon may meet Premier Poincare in Paris in the near future to discuss convoking a new allied conference to discuss reparations, it was learned reliably here this afternoon.

Well informed persons expected Baldwin to confer with Curzon in France within a few days. The foreign minister is on a vacation in Normandy.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(By the Associated Press.)—Recognizing the futility of a further exchange of lengthy notes on the reparation issue, Prime Minister Baldwin has decided to meet Premier Poincare upon the former's return from his vacation at Aix Les Bains, it became known today.

The British premier feels that while in France he should profit by the suggestion contained at the end of M. Poincare's note that France was ready to discuss the indemnity problem verbally. It is thought possible Lord Curzon, the secretary for foreign affairs, may participate in this conference.

The meeting in all likelihood will take place after Mr. Baldwin has had his vacation and has the considered and matured judgment of the cabinet before him.

BERLIN, Aug. 23 (By The Associated Press). — The compulsory requisitioning or confiscation of foreign currencies wherever found is provided for in the government's program of emergency measures which becomes effective immediately. Announcement of the drastic procedure was made in the course of a conference between Chancellor Stressmann, Finance Minister Hilferding and Minister of Economics Raumer, representing the government, and a delegation from the league of industrialists.

The government previously had apprised the representatives of Berlin's banks of its determination to gather in all gold currencies by force wherever they were not surrendered voluntarily. The chancellor frankly informed leaders of finance and big business that the government would not countenance the slightest attempt to evade the provisions of the forthcoming emergency ordinance and would deal with all slackers in the most drastic manner.

BERLIN ISSUES ORDER TO SEIZE ALL GOLD MONEY

Compulsory Confiscation of Foreign Currency Sought As Finance Aid.

STEADY RESERVE DESIRED BY BERLIN.

It is not proposed to be content with a formal appeal to patriotism; all foreign moneys will be gather in without much formality; the owners being reimbursed with paper marks. The funds thus obtained will be devoted in part to an effort to regulate the internal financial chaos which is causing unwarranted advances in prices of food commodities, and also to establish steady reserve from which food purchases abroad may be made. The government's money draft ordinance will be published throughout Germany Friday.

The ordinance provides excessive money fines and the confiscation of private fortune for the wilful concealment of possession of foreign currencies, and demands voluntary declaration of such possession on the part of the owners. The extent to which holdings will be requisitioned depends upon whether or not the holder needs them for legitimate business purposes. The government expects to realize between two hundred million and three hundred million gold marks from the initial raid and expects that the impending action will stimulate a desire to invest foreign currencies in the new internal gold loan, in preference to having them confiscated and replaced with paper marks.

SOME LEADERS WANT HARSHER LAWS.

Herr Stressemann has acquainted reichstag leaders and members of the federal council with the contents of the new measure and has found all parties approving its provisions. Several party leaders, however, believe the measure is not sufficiently stringent and suggested a more drastic attitude be taken, but the chancellor is hopeful that the government's appeal to national patriotism will impress "dollar fans" and big business alike with determination to coax out gold hoardings with the least possible trouble.

How the government proposes to solve the problem of attaching the gold deposits held by Germans outside the country is not indicated, but the impression prevails that the industrialists have given the chancellor their pledge of liberal and voluntary co-operation.

FRENCH SEIZE BILLIONS OF MARKS.

DUESSELDORF, Aug. 23 (By The Associated Press). — The French authorities are reported to have made several large seizures of money yesterday. At Bochum 45 billion marks were confiscated; at Recklinghausen, 12 billion; at Dortmund, six billion, and at Dorstfeld, six hundred million.

schedule time. But because of a delay caused by fog in Wyoming, which prevented scheduled connections being made, it did not bear the mail sent from San Francisco, having left this to be brought by the next plane.

Pilot Claire K. Vance made a sensational finish last night when he reached San Francisco at the end of the last leg of the first transcontinental air mail journey. A large crowd had gathered at Crissey Field to watch for the epoch-making event. Hundreds of field glasses were trained on the sky over the Berkeley Hills as the hour 6 o'clock and the moment he was expected to arrive drew near. Excitement spread among the crowd as a speck was seen looming up larger and larger—until it was discovered that it was only a seagull.

A few minutes passed and another speck showed against the sky. This time there was a distinct murmur of a distant motor. The crowd grew tense as it watched the speck grow larger and take form as an airplane, bearing directly toward them. All around the field came the sudden thrum of motors started up. These were the engines of the mail trucks, at hand to rush the expected mail to the postoffice, and motorcycles, waiting to speed away with the special delivery mail.

As Vance reached a point directly over Crissey Field he shut off his motor, and in complete silence, broken only by the whistling of the sea-winds through the wires of his plane, he gracefully circled down to his landing place. As he neared the ground the crowd broke into a cheer, and before the wheels of the plane had stopped several hundred persons were gathered excitedly about it to welcome him.

Government officials expressed themselves as highly pleased with the present status of the experiments. Although the first trip from the Atlantic coast here was not completed within the thirty-hour schedule that had been planned, it was pointed out that this was entirely due to unusually severe weather conditions in the Middle West. Normal weather, it is believed, will permit the remainder of the tests to be completed with clock-like regularity.

New Playground Sites Sought by City of Oakland

Feather River and Lake Tahoe Country Picked For Locations.

The board of playground directors, at a meeting last night, decided to make formal application to the United States Forest Service for a tract of land at Tahoe and another tract on Spanish Creek, near the Feather river, for future municipal camps for the City of Oakland.

The decision was a result of the recent trip of Superintendent Jay Nash through the Sierra, in search of new camps to relieve the congestion at the present summer camp on the Yosemite road. Nash found the last available government lands for the purpose and says that government officials have intimated that the City of Oakland may be given these lands for summer camp purposes.

The Western Pacific railroad officials assert that they will "do all in their power to help Oakland establish a camp in the Feather river country," and have offered a railroad rate which is lower even than the rate enjoyed by the City of Oakland to its municipal camp on the Yosemite road at present. The auto highway to the Feather river, however, is admittedly not so good.

The Feather river camp lies across Spanish creek from the Western Pacific grade. It has trees, a big swimming pool, a flat meadow and direct railroad transportation. All it needs is a road to the nearby highways, and Nash asserts he will ask the town of Quincy for a road, if necessary.

The Tahoe site, at the extreme north end of the lake, on a slope that overlooks lake and mountains for 50 miles, is at an elevation of 6300 feet and very cold, except for a short summer season. It lies 11 miles from from Truckee and must be reached by a cut-off from the Truckee-Brockway road.

Nash says he will try to develop the lower camp, in the Feather river country, before he tries improvement in the other at Tahoe.

In preparing a newspaper cut or a photograph to be telegraphed the next step is to place the picture obtained by the above process upon a sheet of metal. This is done photographically. Each dot forms a thin coating over the metal, which is left bare between the dots. In case the picture is to be made into a newspaper cut it is dipped in acid, which eats into the metal where it is not protected. The dots protected the rest of the metal. These high placess that have been protected by the dots take the ink and print while the portion of the metal that has been eaten away leaves a white space on the paper.

In preparing a plate for telegraphic purposes this last step is left out of the process. The gelatin or enamel which keeps the acid from eating into certain portions of the metal, is also a good electrical insulator. Hence, it is an uncengraved half-tone that is used and when the process of photo-engraving has progressed to this stage the picture is ready to be rolled into a cylinder.

HOW PICTURE IS FLASHED OVER WIRES.

The cylinder is slipped upon the metal drum of the transmitting machine. This drum revolves and a phonograph needle passes slowly from one end of the cylinder to the other, much in the fashion of a needle traveling over the surface of the cylinder of a dictating machine.

At the same time an electrical current is transmitted from the picture plate to the needle. Naturally the current flows freely when the needle touches the bare copper, but the current is broken when the needle comes in contact with a dot.

The length of the break is in proportion to the size of the dot. All the dots and lines pass under the needle point breaking off the current for varying lengths of time, dependent upon the size of the dots and lines.

There is a similar drum at the receiving end. A piece of white paper is wrapped around this receiving cylinder. A sheet of special carbon paper is placed face down on this white paper. On this carbon paper rests a sapphire stylus, so lightly that it does not make any mark.

The pressure of the stylus is governed by two electro-magnets. Each time an electrical impulse is received from the transmitting cylinder, it presses down the stylus on the receiving cylinder, causing dots of varying sizes to be made, in accordance with the length of the impulse.

In this manner, by the time the stylus has passed from one end of the receiving cylinder to the other, it has exactly recorded the dots and lines of the picture.

In order that the transmitting and receiving cylinders may revolve in perfect unison, their movements are governed by a synchronizing device.

Freaks Mourn As "Blue Man" Goes to Grave

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Freaks at Coney Island mourned today while the "blue man," Captain Fred Walters, 63, who died Monday, was laid in his resting place.

The man, whose brain, heart and other organs and tissues were as blue throughout as his skin, was a great favorite at Dreamland, where he was on exhibition.

The fat woman, the skeleton, the giantess and the midget were sorrowful as they stood before curious crowds. They could not attend the funeral, for their valuables deformities could not be promiscuously displayed to the public. The elastic-boned man, the albino lady, the one-half woman, the pin-headed Zip, the man with the revolving head, the king of the bees and the tattooed man put forward a forced smile at this afternoon's performances.

They setn flowers, and at 3 o'clock, as the body of their fellow performer was lowered in the grave, they bowed their heads in silent prayer. But the curious crowds did not know.

5 MEN ACCUSED OF MULCTING U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Col. Launcelot M. Purcell, U. S. A., retired, of eSattle, Washington, former chief of the surplus property division; John C. Skinner, chief of the sales division of the Quartermaster Corps, U. S. A., and Betrand Weiss, Herman Canter and Harry Miller were indicted today on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government.

Weiss and Canter, who are in business here as the Universal Sales company, appeared before Federal Judge Bundy and entered tentative pleas of not guilty. Miller is head of the Harry Miller company of this city. Colonel Purcell is said to be on his way from Seattle to answer the charges and Skinner and Miller have been notified to appear for pleading.

Three separate indictments were returned. They charge that in one deal alone the government lost $1,000,000. A large amount of "mosquito bars" were contracted for at $1 each. This contract was later cancelled and the goods held for a year when, it is alleged, they were sold to the defendants for 17 cents each.

THOUSANDS OF YEARS AGO

Millenniums Ago, When Men of the Old Stone Age Fought and Slew the Woolly Mammoth.

We make man's first acquaintance away back in the ages, say 15,000 or 20,000 years ago. There were lots of things he did not know, but what he did know, and do, proves that he might have known and done many other things if the need had confronted him. First and foremost, he was an artist and his work proves that he felt the need for self-expression with which he let nothing interfere. The only reason he was not a house painter is the good and sufficient reason that his tastes were too simple to embrace houses.

One striking fact is that he apparently knew all about PAINTS, but never mastered any other trade. Curious, isn't it that a fellow who could make paint that lasted for a millennium or two never stumbled on agriculture or clothing. This race was the finest the world has ever known. . . As to whether he was our direct ancestor the authorities are in doubt, but we like to think of him as such. We have the same high grade, lasting quality paints with which to let your offspring know that you, too, were wise to its uses.

SUTTER BY-PASS LEVY VALIDATED BY HIGH COURT

$8,000,000 Assessment For Flood Control Upheld By Supreme Justices.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—The state supreme court has affirmed the judgment of the Sutter county superior court validating the $8,000,000 assessment levied for Sutter-Butte by-pass No. 6 of the Sacramento-San Joaquin drainage district for flood control.

The decision was unanimous and bore the signatures of seven justices.

The controversy originated from adoption by the legislature of a report of the California debris commission which provided for flood control for the Sacramento river. The report included plans for the building of levees on both sides of the Sutter-Butte by-pass to prevent the inundation of lands on either side of the pass. The legislative action created a reclamation board which was given the power to levy assessments to put the plan into effect.

The principal objection of the appellants was a claim that landowners representing more than 170,000 acres on the west side of the pass were compelled to bear an undue and unwarranted burden of expense.

Ruling on the contentions of the appellants, the supreme court among other things held:

That the Sutter county superior court had jurisdiction over land extending into Sacramento and Yolo counties, because Sutter county partly encompassed the greater part of the land affected.

That the validity of the superior court order is not impaired by the fact that the order was signed outside the county in which the proceeding was pending.

Commenting on the right of land owners to erect levees, the decision stated that the "court has determined that flood waters from streams like the Sacramento river are a common enemy, against which each property owner may defend himself by protection levees, even though the result be to cast water upon his neighbor's land."

Realty Men Plan Co-operative Meet

Members of the Oakland Real Estate Board and the Builders' Exchange are planning to hold a number of "co-operation" luncheons in the future as a result of the success of a joint luncheon yesterday.

Horace D. Jones, Walter Spencer and A. J. Hill were the speakers yesterday for the exchange and C. W. Boden, S. H. Masters and Fred Kaiser set forth the views of the board. Boden asserted that the real estate men and the builders must co-operate in the upbuilding of Oakland if the city is to fulfill its destiny as the leading industrial city of the Pacific coast. Jones said the builders were willing to follow any good movements inaugurated by the real estate dealers.

Turk Company Seeks to Grab Chester Grants

ANGORA, Aug. 23 (By The Associated Press).—The minister of national economy has favorably received an offer from a Turkish limited company submitting a plan for the development of the national resources which would be substituted for the Kennedy-Chester agreement. The project will be studied by the council of ministers.

The Turkish company, it is understood, is working with French development interests. The Turkish official press bureau says the new plan is much more favorable to Turkey than is the Chester convention.

Ownership of the concessions in Asiatic Turkey obtained by Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, retired, passed last June to the Ottoman-American Development Company, of which Colonel K. E. Clayton-Kennedy, a Canadian, is a director.

The convention putting into effect the Chester concessions was signed at Angora April 30. The convention was ratified by the Turkish national assembly April 10.

Mason is membership secretary.

Carrying on its work of developing young men, the Oakland "Y" announces that a number of evening classes have been planned to meet the needs of the community. The first of these is a class in business English, which opened last Monday. The regular fall Fellowship club noon-day meetings will be resumed in September.

POLICE ON TRAIL OF TAYLOR LOOT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25 (United Press). — Loot amounting to over $6000—asserted to have been gathered in by Jesse Taylor, the "yellow slicker" bandit, during his eleven short, hectic days of freedom—was momentarily expected to be recovered by deputy sheriffs here today.

Taylor, a Folsom convict who escaped from a train near Madera August 11, had only $8 on his person at the time of his recapture yesterday.

As the convict has admitted two of the many holdups laid to him since his escape, including the $4200 robbery of the California Bank branch, it is believed that a search of his old haunts will yield up a large part of the stolen money and securities.

A revolver with the stamped inscription "California Bank" was found on Taylor at the time of his arrest.

PRICELESS RELIC COMES TO LIGHT IN STATE HOUSE

St. Joseph Gazette That Came to California on First Pony Express, Found.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 23. — One of the rarest and most priceless historical papers ever found in California was unearthed here today in the California State Library by Harry C. Peterson, field research worker in California history for the state library the past three years, but now doing special research in the library collections on his two forthcoming books, "The Inside History of the Birth of the Movies," and "The Romance of Stanford University," where he was curator of the Museum of Fine Arts for many years during the life of Mrs. Stanford.

It was while hunting up original sources on the Pony Express that he ran across this document, printed on thin tissue paper, dirty, water-soaked, torn and dog-eared. It is priceless, for it is the original copy of the St. Joseph Gazette that was printed upon thin tissue paper just a few minutes before Johnnie Frey jumped on his pony that afternoon in St. Joseph, April 3, 1860, and started on his record breaking trip across the continent to Sacramento.

EDITORIAL TELLS OF PONY EXPRESS.

Thirteen lines in the editorial column tells the story:

"Through the politeness of the Express Company, we are permitted to forward, by the first Pony Express, the first and only newspaper ever transmitted from the Missouri to California in eight days. The nature of the conveyance necessarily precludes our making up an edition of any considerable weight. It, however, contains a summary of the latest news received here by telepraph for some days past, and from all parts of the Union. We send its greeting to our brethren of the press of California."

It is dated "St. Joseph, Mo., April 3, 6 o'clock, p. m.," and printed on one side of the paper only.

At the end of the race in Sacramento the little paper was turned over to the assembled printers and newspaper men connected with the Sacramento Bee and the Sacramento Union. The editor of the Union, Lauren Upson, was the father of Warren Upson, who had the most perilous section to cover during that entire race—that portion over the Sierra Nevada mountains. He made it at night, through a blinding snowstorm.

The little sheet was then shown to the governor and various officials, prominent citizens and others and then—where it went, who secured ownership of it, how it reached the library is still a mystery.

"Without doubt," said Milton J. Ferguson, state librarian, "this is one of the most important historical finds of recent years, being absolutely unique in character and timely interest. It is one of the most priceless historical papers in the possession of the state, a paper that, at the present prices paid for documents of this rarity, would sell anywhere from $5000 ao $10,000.

"It was discovered by Harry C. Peterson, for the past three years a member of my staff doing historical field work, and who has for the past few weeks been doing special research work on the Pony Express.

"At the time the California Department of the State Library was organized some fifteen years ago by James L. Gillis, it consisted of little, but a miscellaneous lot, of old newspapers and a few books. It was placed under the direction of Miss Eudora Garoutte, and from that little collection there has been built up one of the richest and rarest collections of California in the world, valued at a $1,000,000 or more.

MANY DOCUMENTS SENT TO LIBRARY.

"All this collection is the direct result of the deep interest shown in our early history by pioneers and their descendents, who have donated their family papers and photographs to the enrichment of the state archives in the State Library. From all sources comes this material; from men, women, business firms, corporations and from administrators settling up estates. Often we receive boxes of material sent anonymously by people settling up estates. Who sent them makes no difference to us; we know they want them to become property of the state and are accessioned as 'Donor unknown.'

"Just who sent this priceless document is unknown. It was found hidden away among a lot of miscellaneous newspapers and pamphlets. Its very nature, so thin and transparent, had prevented its being spotted until Mr. Peterson discovered it in his search for early Pony Express data.

PAPER TO BE SHOWN AT STATE FAIR.

"When one considers that this is the identical paper that was rushed direct from the printer's hands to the waiting Pony Express rider that memorable afternoon in St. Joseph, Mo., that it was the first and only newspaper carried on this first trip of the pony riders, when no one knew what the outcome would be, nor how many fearless riders would fall victim to Indian arrow, storm or flood; and when one reflects that this little paper, nearly priceless, was the identical one that Warren Upson, the eighteen-year-old rider, brought over the Sierra, then covered with thirty-two feet of snow, and that it was the direct message from the newspaper men of the East to the newspaper men of the West, and that it represented that brotherly feeling one printer has for another, from printer's devil to editor; and that this paper was delivered intact, after a world famous record race of nearly two thousand miles, against almost every obstacle known to man at that period, then one realizes only too vividly just how interesting and valuable it really is. Add to that fact that it is the only known document in existence that came across on that first famous ride, and it becomes absolutely priceless.

"In the special exhibit of the state library at the California State Fair next month I shall place this paper on exhibit during certain hours each afternoon and evening, but constantly under guard. Associated with it will be a number of very rare pony express relics and rare photographs that were collected for the library during the past three years by Mr. Peterson.

"This collection is the envy of every private and public collector of the country, owing to its rarity and interest."

Extra! Latest News From the East

HARRY C. PETERSON, seen in the inset, doing research work for the state library, recently discovered this issue of the St. Joseph (Missouri) Gazette. It is the only known document that came to California on the first trip of the famous Pony Express, and its intrinsic value is estimated in the thousands of dollars. It has become one of the most prized possessions of the State Library.

YOU WON'T KNOW how good fried chicken can be—or an egg—or a trout—until you have tried frying with Wesson Oil.

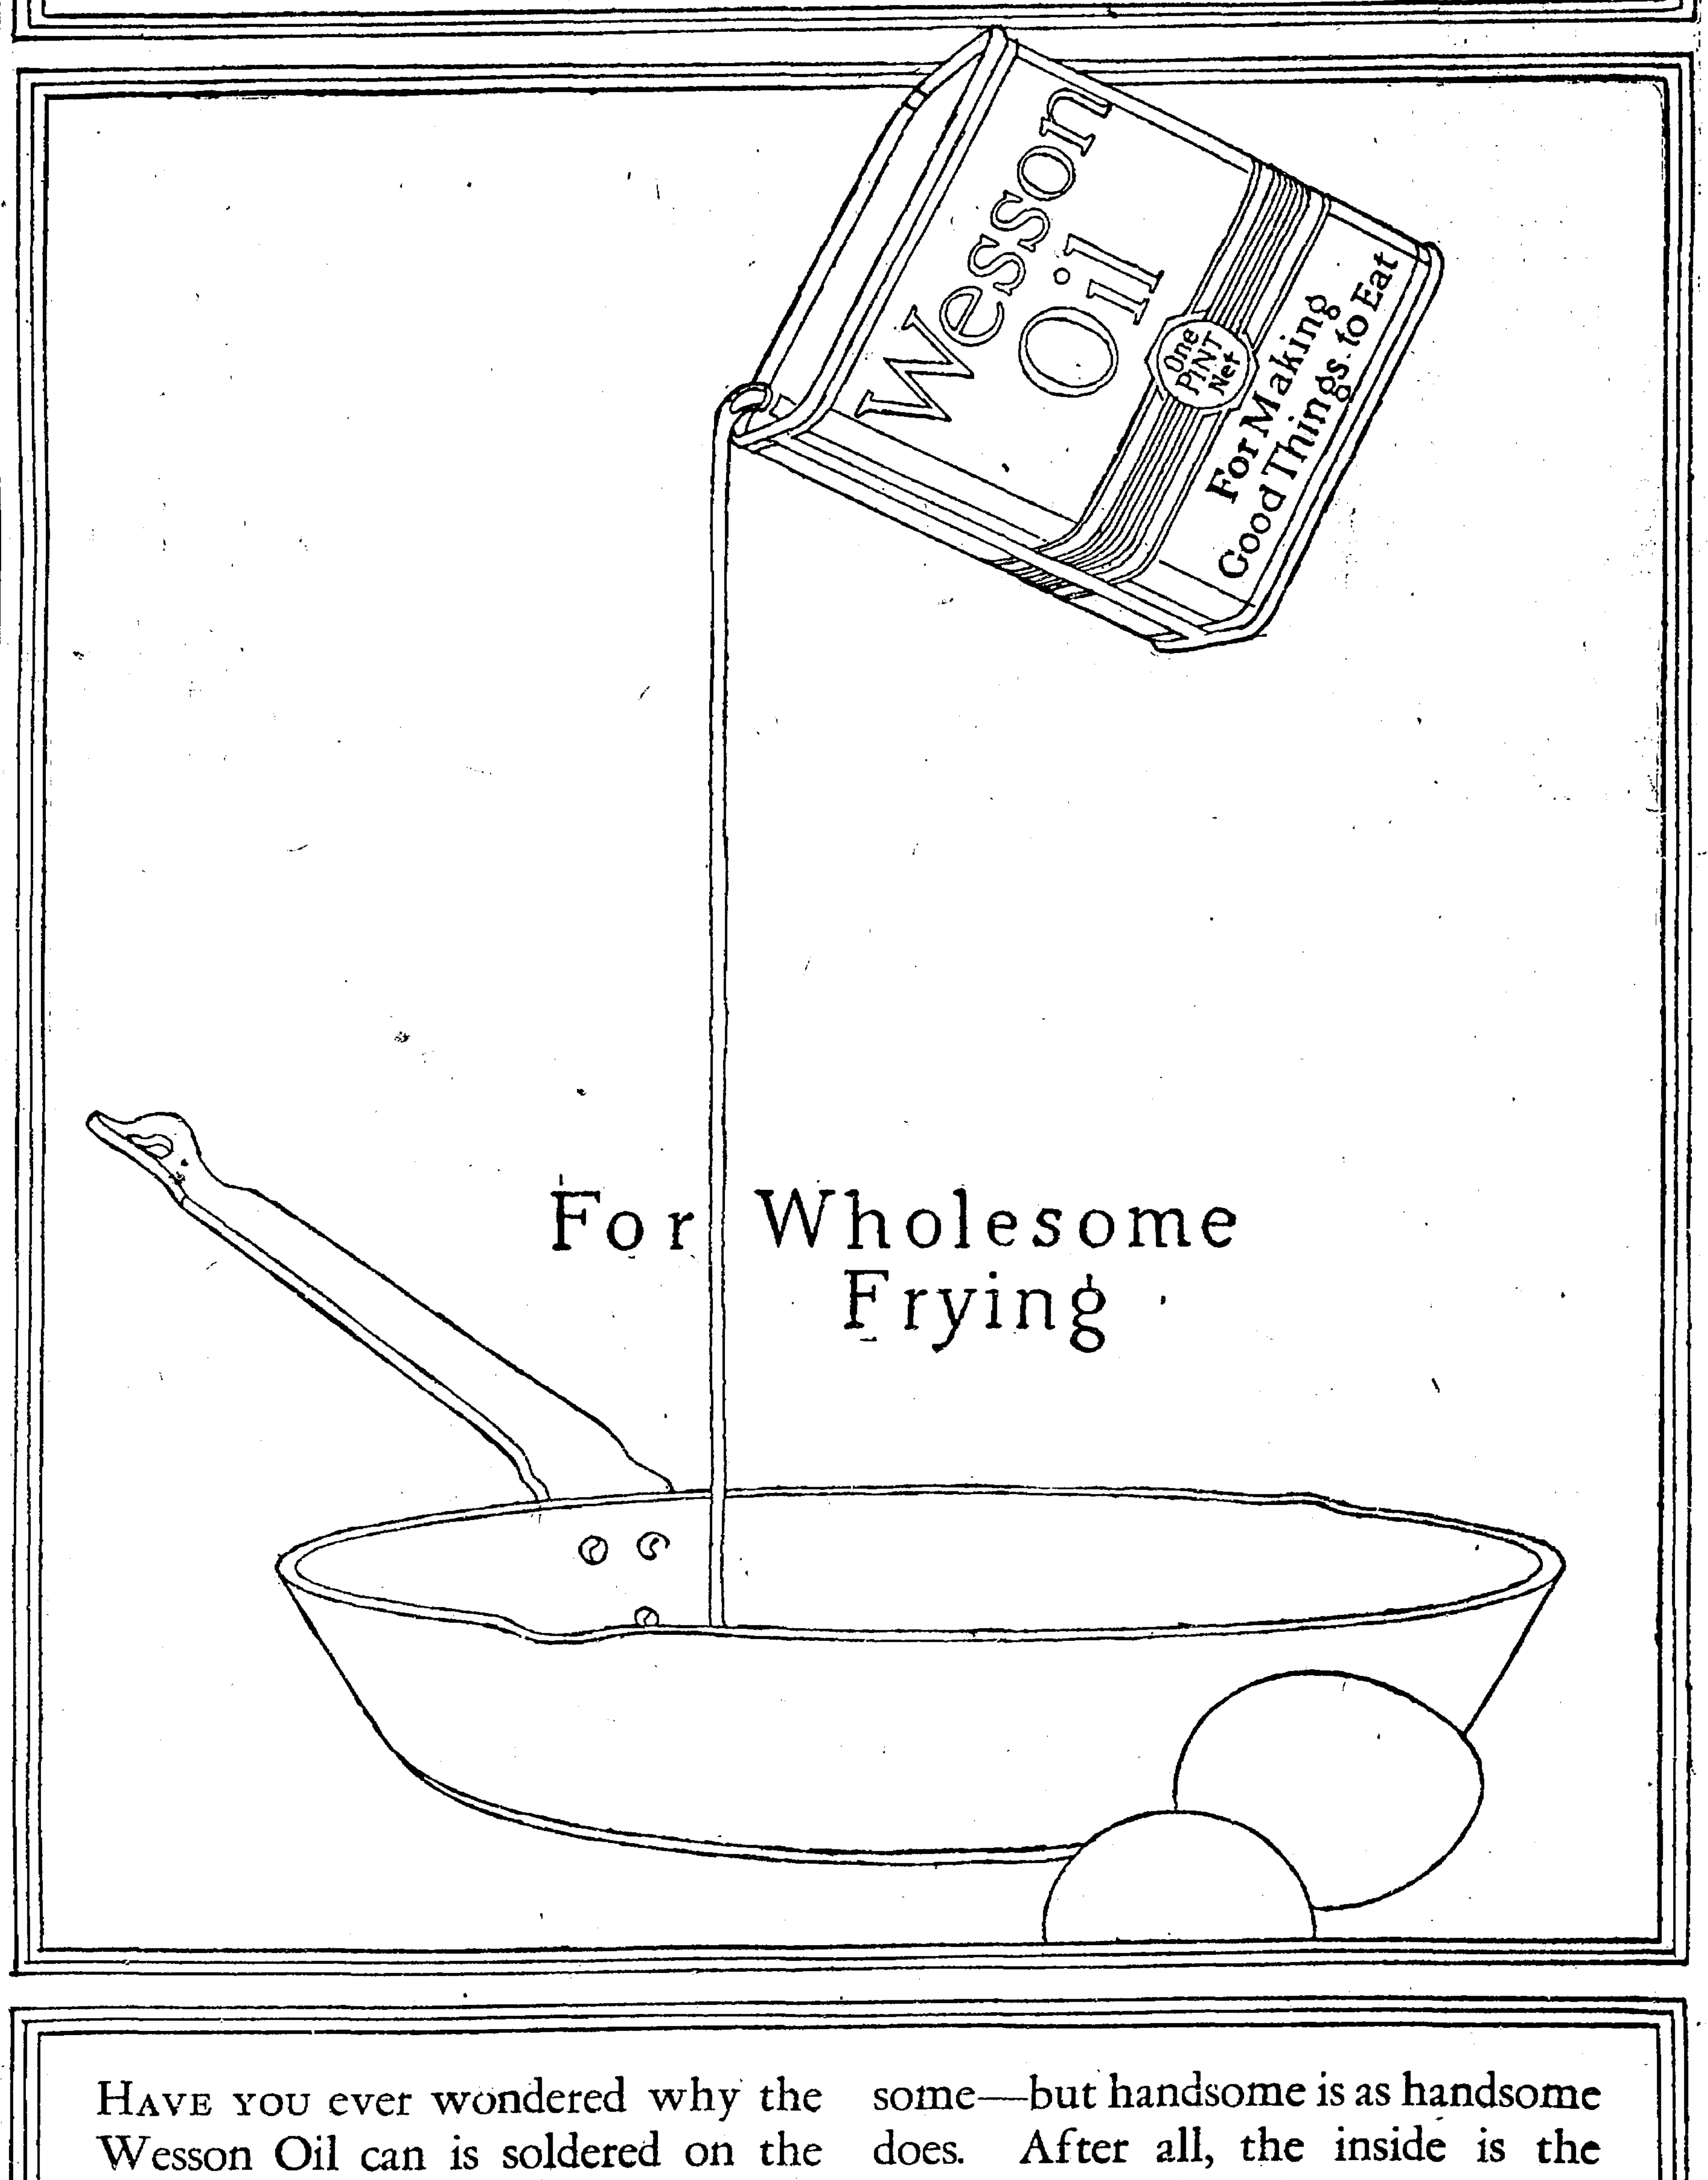
Wesson Oil is not only a delicious frying fat—it is a wholesome frying fat, very wholesome and easy to digest.

It is burned fat that is responsible for most of the objections to fried food.

At the right temperature for frying many fats "break down," smoke—that is, burn—and have a tendency to upset digestion.

The wholesomeness of Wesson Oil as a frying fat is due to the goodness of Wesson Oil and to the fact that it can be heated hot enough to fry crisply long before it burns.

A crispy brown crust forms so quickly that the food does not absorb too much fat and, inside this thin crust, cooks to a tempting lightness and daintiness.



HAVE YOU ever wondered why the Wesson Oil can is soldered on the outside? Solder doesn't improve the flavor of oil. (Really it is the flux—rosin or zinc chloride—used in soldering to make solder stick to tin, that spoils the flavor of an oil.) So the can that is to hold Wesson oil is soldered outside. This isn't handsome—but handsome is as handsome does. After all, the inside is the important side of a can. That rough solder on the outside is evidence that on the smooth inside you will find Wesson Oil a pure light color and more delicate and delicious in flavor than any oil you ever tasted before.

LABOR LAW NET GETS CANDY MAN

RICHMOND, Aug. 23.—Upon the complaint of Lillie Davis, a warrant was sworn out against Frank Purviance, of a local confectionery, charging that he, as proprietor, worked her more than the 48 hours a week permitted by the state labor act. It was found later that Purviance was not the owner of the place but merely an employee and the charge against him was cancelled.

Similar charges were then placed against J. M. and H. B. Purviance as owners of the store, and the case was set by Judge John Roth here for Wednesday, September 29. The case was investigated by William H. Urmy, deputy state labor commissioner.

Builders to Send Crowd to Convention

Builders of Alameda county are looking forward to the annual convention of the Builders' Exchange of California to be held at Capitola-by-the-Sea, September 1, 2 and 3. A large delegation will attend the convention, especially for the Builders' Day program, Sunday, September 2.

An interesting feature of the convention will be the report of E. W. Shaw, secretary of the local organization. Shaw will tell of the purchase of a site for the new home of the builders at the northwest corner of Webster and Hobart, when the latter street is cut through from Broadway. He will emphasize the support given this step by members of the exchange who have subscribed to the building fund.

Bridge Plans Big Aid For Richmond

RICHMOND, Aug. 23.—Demands for more homes are already on the increase following the announcement of the American-Toll Bridge company that 500 men will be put to work on the Carquinez straits bridge within 00 days. Richmond is about ten miles from this location, but many bridge builders are planning on locating in Richmond, going daily to their work by automobile.

Plans for the giant bridge are fast nearing completion in New York, where two shifts of 24 men each have been rushing work upon them, according to William Hubert Burr, in charge of the bridge. According to plans the force of men on the Vallejo side will begin pouring concrete within two weeks. The entire structure will be completed by May 1, 1923, it is estimated.

'49 Stage Coach Again Rumbles Up Market Street

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—With an old-time stage coach, that had seen real service in the days of '49, rumbling up Market street, and through the downtown district, San Francisco this morning was put in proper mood to hear various speakers discuss the forthcoming pony express race, at a luncheon given by the Down-Town association at the Palace Hotel.

The pony express race will coincide with the celebration of the seventy-third anniversary of the state's admission to the Union under the auspices of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

In the old stage coach, as it made its way from the Ferry Building this morning to the Palace Hotel, were several descendants of pioneers in the garb of miners. Mayor James Rolph, Former U. S. Senator James D. Phelan, Charles W. Fay and Will S. Tevis rode in the historic vehicle.

Coolidge Plans to Assure Coal Supply

By FRASER EDWARDS.
United Press Staff Correspondents.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—President Coolidge today speeded plans to insure a fuel supply to the public as government officials virtually abandoned hope of averting a hard coal strike.

Even members of the U. S. coal commission who maintain it would be "suicidal" for either side to assume the blame for a strike, are gloomy over the prospect.

By PAUL R. MALLON.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 23.—Suspension of anthracite mining Sept. 1 may mean a coal famine, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America warned today.

Samuel Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' policy committee, declared such a suspension would mean no more than a "slight inconvenience" to consumers.

CHINESE TO FIGHT BRITISH PLAN FOR RAIL SUPERVISION

Diplomatic Corps Divided On Scheme to Protect Foreigners.

PEKING, Aug. 23.—(By International News Service.)—The British proposal for foreign supervision of Chinese railways is causing a furore in Peking officialdom. Public opinion throughout China is roused to a high pitch against the idea of outside management of the national rail lines, and even in legation quarters here dissention is rife over the advisability of going through with the British outline.

Members of the diplomatic corps divided over the plan, for it practically means the partition of Chinese spheres of influence in proportion to the invested foreign capital.

Foreign supervision has for its object the prevention of such outrages as those resulting from the Shangtung train bandit kidnaping incident, and recent outbreaks of anti-foreign sentiment in several Chinese cities and provinces in which missionaries were subjected to indignities.

'ECONOMIC WAR' WILL BE KEPT UP, SAYS BROOKHART

Senator Urges Co-operation of All Classes As Solution of Problem.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 23.—(By Associated Press.)—The "economic war" will not end "until business abandons the present predatory methods and unites with producers and consumers of the country in sharing with them their just reward," United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart declared in an address here today before the Lions Club.

Economic co-operation of all classes, said the senator, is the solution of the problem created by inequality of reward.

Brookhart declared that "capital is taking a vast toll of labor" and that this, with the decreasing earnings of the farmers rendered laboring men and farmers natural allies.

Propaganda seeking to separate them, he declared, was being given wide distribution.

INTERESTS ARE SAME.

"It is my contention," said Brookhart, "that the interests of producer and consumer are the same and that all men are, or ought to be, both producers and consumers. The agencies of distribution, including transportation, credit and marketing, are the servient and not the dominant power.

"Of first importance is production, the only ultimate purpose of production is consumption. Certain basic facts call the farmer and the laborer together upon this economic theory, and the quicker business recognizes the soundness of this theory and joins in its honest development the quicker we will reach prosperity and progress. Out of the dollar labor pays for the products of the farm, the farmer gets 37 cents as officially reported by the joint committee of Congress. Out of the dollar the farmer pays for the products of labor, the laboring man gets even less. This last fact is disputed, but I think it is substantially correct.

DISTRIBUTION IS COSTLY.

"The cost of distribution in the United States is unbearable. Its waste and inefficiency is destroying business itself. During the last session of Congress a distinguished United States senator said that 95 per cent of American business as now organized ultimately fails. This situation is unstable and unsound.

"Since the farmer is the principal consumer of the products of labor, and in labor I include the brain workers, and since labor is the principal consumer of the products of the farm, these facts are calling them together for the colution of this vital problem of our economic system.

"In order to prevent this co-operative union of the great body of producers and consumers of our country a great persistent propaganda is being launched. In this there is no more energetic agency than the 'Manufacturers' News.'

"This 'Manufacturers' News,'" declared Brookhart, "had picked out a particular class of highly paid labor and cited that as proof that labor as whole is getting more than its share."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(International News Service.)—President Coolidge conferred on the Mexican situation shortly before noon today with Secretary of State Hughes and Charles Beecher Warren, one of the American commissioners in the recent negotiations at Mexico City looking to the recognition of the Obregon government.

Secretary Hughes was understood to have handed the president the report of the commission recommending the resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico.

800 Officers Are On Retired List

TOKYO, Aug. 23.—(By the Associated Press.) — Seventy-one major-generals and more than 800 other military officers were placed on the retired list this month in accordance with the policy of military reduction. This makes a total reduction of nearly 1800 officers since the scheme came into effect last year and the number will be increased to 2200 next March.

The question of providing for the future of the younger men thus deprived of their employment is a serious one for the authorities.

HUNDRED NUNS AT CONFERENCE ON HOSPITALS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—Final sessions of the annual two-day conference on Catholic hospital subjects were held today by California, Arizona and Nevada nuns at the Young Men's Institute hall, 50 Oak street. More than 100 nuns attended the gathering.

Pasadenan Forecasts Great Tourist Year

Walter Raymond, owner of the Raymond hotel at Pasadena and the founder of the Raymond-Whitcomb Travel Bureau, is at the Hotel Oakland. He has returned to California from an eastern tour, in the course of which he inspected many of the principal hotels in the country.

Raymond has the distinction of being one of the original "discoverers" of California, from the hotel and tourist point of view. He came here with a party of tourists in the early '80s, was struck with the many attractions the State possessed for the tourist and sightseer, and built the first large resort hotel in the south.

Raymond predicts a great tourist year for the State, in which he declares that both southern and central California will share.

Plymouth, Eng.—Mrs. Esther Harvey, who in three years saved seven children from drowning, was herself drowned at Whitsands.

Josephine Adair Makes Grade In New York

Josephine Adair—stunning Josephine Rosborough—has made her first big goal—a prima donna in New York.

"She has been given the lead in the Greenwich Village Follies, and sings eight songs," says a wire from the Big Town. And that after a bit over three years after breaking into the game.

Thus Oakland adds one more contribution to the stardom of the country.

The grade was made, be it known, through the royal road of hard work, plus the essential elements of voice, musical training and beauty.

For three years the California girl has given every waking moment—not to the lobsters (crustacean and otherwise) of stage tradition, but to study—voice building, languages and the accompanying arts that must be mastered before success can be honestly won.

Rehearsals are under way for the September production, says the message from Broadway.

Returned From Los Gatos.

Mrs. Katherine White returned from a month's stay in Los Gatos at the Inn—the old Tyson place that hangs on the hillside over the "crik."

"Billy," who spent some time at the Boys' Camp at Yosemite before going to Los Gatos, entertained many of his friends at the Inn, where a swimming tank and its promenade is the hangout for everybody entitled to its privileges.

Mrs. White's return will signalize a reestablishment of the round-and-round of mah jongg and bridge that makes up much of the leisure of Piedmont and Oakland society.

Young Piedmonter Becomes Barrister.

Howell Lovell, futur of Miss Margery Smith, was handed his bit of parchment yesterday, or whatever it is that permits a young man to walk into a courtroom with a brief case under his arm and talk up to the judge.

The young lawyer is following in the footsteps of his father, Charles L. Lovell, the San Francisco barrister, whose home in Piedmont has been for some years a rendezvous for the younger set. Particularly was it so before the marriage of the girls of the family, both good-looking and popular—Mrs. Roger Haynes, who has returned to the Eastbay from the East to make her home, and Mrs. Carey Hill of Los Angeles.

The marriage of the young lawyer and Miss Smith is set for September 11, at St. Paul's. A big wedding party, and a picturesque ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. La Verne Hudson were hosts last night at a dinner given in honor of Miss Rosalie Dean, who has just returned from the East.

A dozen friends of the honoree were assembled.

Will Entertain For Bride-Elect.

Mrs. Ralph Lorimer—Mildred Cook—will be hostess tomorrow at a tea, honoring Miss Marjorie Smith, fiancee of Howell Lovell; Miss Catherine Rhodes, Mrs. Irwin and Esther Naylor of Stockton.

The hostess will be a member of the bridal party that will accompany Miss Smith to the chancel-rail next month.

BEST FUNERAL HELD TOMORROW

SAN LEANDRO, Aug. 23.—The funeral of Daniel Best, San Leandro's pioneer tractor manufacturer and millionaire, will be held from his home at Clark and Ward streets here at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Monroe Drew, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, will officiate, according to an announcement today by H. W. Seramur, in charge of funeral arrangements.

The interment, to be in the Oakland Mausoleum, will be private. Mark Chamberlain, private secretary to Best, is now arranging a list of pallbearers and honorary pallbearers, which will include many of Best's early associates and many prominent financiers and business men from various sections of the Eastbay.

Best died Wednesday morning.

BEST DEATH DELAYS SOCIAL.

SAN LEANDRO, Aug. 23.—In respect to the memory of Daniel Best, founder of the Best Manufacturing company here and one of the pioneers of the region who died yesterday, the Presbyterian social, to have been held tomorrow night, has been postponed for a week.

Johnny Conde, lightweight pugilist, used his wife as a victim of his fighting ability, according to one charge made in the divorce complaint of Mrs. Florence Conde.

The couple have two children, of whom the wife asks custody, with $100 a month alimony. An equity in their home at 3022 Twenty-third avenue is community property, the wife says.

MAN HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Record, 1492 Fifth street. Record took Flynn to the Emergency hospital, where he was treated at the Emergency hospital for cuts and bruises.

ATTORNEY RULES AGAINST NURSE

SAN LEANDRO, Aug. 23.—Notice that, if Miss Ella Thonagel, public health nurse here, is paid a salary by the city, the city will be liable to suit on the grounds that her appointment is illegal, has been made to the city treasurer, it was announced here today. J. Allison Bruner, city attorney, at the last meeting of the council, declared that Miss Thonagel's appointment is illegal because, at the time of the appointment, seh had not satisfied requirements for the office.

Farley B. Granger and Edwin Duck, members of the council who voted for the revokal of Miss Thonagel's appointment, said today that they had voted as they did because of Bruner's statement.

BAND PROGRAM ANNOUNCED.

RICHMOND, Aug. 23.—Director A. A. Hart of the Richmond Municipal band has announced an elaborate program for the weekly concert to be held tonight from the Nevin avenue band stand.

Theaters

FOX

Screen features representing the utmost in this field of amusement—a gorgeous stage spectacle with a large cast—orchestral concerts and the personal appearance of a score of favorite players of the films will be among the chief features of the opening program at the new Fox Oakland theater on the occasion of its opening performance next Saturday night.

For the initial week's featured photoplay there will be presented "The Silent Command," a thrilling story of international intrigue, adventure on the high seas and a deep love theme in which a lengthy cast of well known players appears. In addition there will be offered comedies of the better class, Fox News Weekly, travel and educational films.

The stage spectacle for the opening week, entitled "The Festival of Progress," will provide something new for local theater patrons. Presented by Theodore Adolphus and a ballet of thirty-five girls in gorgeous costumes and with special settings, designed and created by Frank J. Zimmerer, the festival promises to reel novelty.

Musical Director Gerardo Carbonara has outlined a concert program to be presented by his thirty artists in which Tschaikowsky's "1812" will be the featured number. Among the stars who will appear in person on the opening night will be Tom Mix and his famous horse, "Tony," Lew Cody, Larry Semon, June Elvidge, Marguerite Clayton, Bessie Love, Bolita Dove, Jackie Saunders, Claire Windsor, Carmel Myers, Edmund Lowe, John Gilbert and others.

NEPTUNE BEACH

A Ferris Wheel, 40 feet high and weighing 12,000 pounds, has been installed at Neptune Beach, Alameda. This is the second new amusement device at this beach since the present season started. The Ferris Wheel, equipped with ten spacious and absolutely safe cars, can accommodate either forty adults or eighty youngsters at one time, and affords its passengers a 'fine Bird's-eye view of the park, the beach and bay, and also adjacent parts of Alameda. Sunday, August 26, will bring another big aquatic event, the Sacramento-Neptune dual swimming meet, which promises to be quite an exciting contest. On the same day the Oakland Homestead of the Brotherhood of American Yoemen will entertain the Yoemen of the bay region with a social Field Day.

A big social dance will take place Saturday. It is the intention of the management to give social dances every Saturday and Sunday evenings, jazzy music being furnished by George Schultz's and Elmer Ohlsen's orchestra respectively.

CHIMES

Meighan's picture "The Ne'er Do-Well," filmed in Panama, will be shown at the Chimes theater for three days starting today. Sparing no expense to provide a proper setting for Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, "The Ne'er-Do-Well," Director Alfred E. Green took his company of players to Panama where the principal scenes of the photoplay, based on Rex Beach's celebrated novel, were filmed. The company spent six weeks in the Canal Zone, the result being a picture of extreme interest and novelty.

Those who made the trip to Panama were Mr. and Mrs. Meighan, Director Alfred E. Green and Mrs. Green, Lila Lee and her father and mother, Gertrude Astor, Sid Smith, John Miltern, Laurance Wheat, Jules Cowles, George O'Brien, Ernest Haller, William Miller, E. Pfitzmier, Don O'Brien, Herman Doering, Ed. Ellis, George Chenneli and George Hinners.

STRAND

"My American Wife," featuring Gloria Swanson and Antonio Moreno, is the feature attraction at the New Strand theater, Telegraph avenue, at Thirty-third street today and tomorrow.

The scenes are laid in Argentina with Miss Swanson in the role of a young Kentucky woman with a love of racing. Natalie Chester (Miss Swanson) attends a studio party given by Manuel La Tassa (Antonio Moreno) at his studio. Natalie is insulted by a guest and Manuel goes to her rescue. Manuel is wounded in a duel with a rival for the love of the young American girl, and she acts as his nurse.

Miss Swanson is unusually charming in this production. Antonio Moreno, after a short absence from the screen, is quite effective as leading man in the role of Manuel La Tassa, while Geno Corrado does a striking piece of work as the despicable Pedro de Grossa.

FULTON

Robert Warwick brings his brilliantly successful season at the Fulton to a close next week with a pretentious production of "The Masquerader." This great Guy Bates Post play is revived at the request of hundreds that were unable to procure seats during the opening week of Warwick's season last May, when "The Masquerader" was the bill. It will be a fitting conclusion of a season that has been marked by a dozen magnificent performances by Warwick. He has appeared in "The Bad Man," "The Dover Road," "Bull-dog Drummond," "The Faithful Heart," "The Great Divide," "Captain Applejack," "Blood and Sand," "Down Limerick Way," "Roads of Destiny," "Gypsy Jim," and "Mister Antonio." Bertha Mann will play the leading woman role in "The Masquerader," which was assumed last spring by Clara Joel. The long cast required in "The Masquerader" will include the full strength of the Fulton Players, and will be augmented by the addition of a number of visiting artists. The scenic production will be magnificent and impressive, as was the case last spring.

This week "Mister Antonio" is the play.

A delightful treat is in store for those who are to witness "Spite Corner," the initial vehicle of Winnie Baldwin at the Fulton as guest-star. "Spite Corner" as by Frank Craven, whose "The First Year" is now delighting audiences at the Columbia theater in San Francisco. "Spite Corner" was Madge Kennedy's starring vehicle all last winter in New York.

T. & D.

Herb Wiedoeft's Cinderella Roof Orchestra, now playing at the T. & D. theater on the same program with "Three Wise Fools," adapted for the screen from the stage success of the same name, with William H. Crane, Claude Gillingwater, Alec Francis and Eleanor Boardman leading the million dollar cast, comes to a close Friday evening.

For a week starting Saturday, Rin-Tin-Tin, the Belgian police dog who was a war hero, will be featured in "Where the North Begins," a thrilling melodrama of the far north, said to be the best production screened with an animal actor. This is the same picture which made such a tremendous hit at the Warfield across the bay and is not to be confused with another picture made quite some time ago and which has just recently been presented at a local playhouse under a similar title with Tin-Tin-Tin as one of the cast. "Where the North Begins' is the first and only big success in which this dog actor has yet appeared.

NEW PIEDMONT

Harold Lloyd's latest laugh producer, "Safety Last," closes a three days engagement at the New Piedmont theater with tonight's performances. The Piedmont has rung with laughter, and teemed with the joyousness instilled into its audiences by the clever antics, and unusually funny plot and action of this stupendous comedy. "Safety Last" is a thrill and laugh producer, greater than anything shown for a long long time, and as such is enjoying a very profitable run both at the New Piedmont theater and at all others as well, wherever it has or is being shown.

Starting tomorrow for two days at the New Piedmont theater will be "West bound Limited," an Emory Johnson production of the famous stage play of the same name, starring Ralph Lewis and Ella Hall, who will be remembered for their excellent work in such productions as "The Third Alarm" and "In the Name of the Law." "Westbound Limited" is a melodrama of railroad life, and is said to be an exceptionally entertaining attraction. On the same program, Dan Mason will be seen in "The Skipper's Policy," a Toonerville Trolley Comedy.

AMERICAN

Mary Miles Minter, whose affairs during the past several days have been monopolizing public attention, will be seen for the last time at the American theater on Friday night in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," the last picture in which she appeared under the Lasky contract. In this picture she has the role of a 16-year-old-girl and admirably fills the role. The picture is a worthy presentation of the famous novel by John Fox Jr., in depicting the romance and adventures of June Tolliver, the quaint little character of the Cumberland mountains who lost her heart to the first "furriner" she ever saw. Antonio Moreno cleverly portrays John Hale, the engineer who seeks coal development in the Kentucky backwoods, and falls victom to the stirring events of a fued by reason of his love for June.

On the same bill is offered "Fog Bound," a strong drama featuring Dorothy Dalton and of the type in which she appears to best advantage. David Powell has the leading male role.

Starting Saturday the American presents as the feature of its new bill "Only 38," a beautiful human interest screen story with Lois Wilson, the star of "The Covered Wagon," by May McAvoy, Elliott Dexter and George Fawcett.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—Kent Cooper, assistant general manager of the Associated Press, in New York City, yesterday informed the local headquarters of the Associated Press and all other offices of the organization throughout the world, that he had sent birthday greetings to Melville E. Stone, who was head of the Associated Press for many years. Stone was 75 years old yesterday, and the message of felicitation was sent on behalf of the employees of the organization.

CENTURY

Making a tremendous hit with their antics in various comedy situations, Jack Russell's company of thirty entertainers at the Oakland Century theater are gleaning much applause with the assistance of Kemper and Young, the versatile comedians, in their latest farce comedy, "R. Men Modiste," which will close a week's engagement on Friday evening.

Kemper and Young play the roles of two young Americans who go to Paris and, while there, get into a squabble with a baron over the affections of a modiste's model. The hit of the show, however, is Ernest Young's burlesque of the red headed operatic prima donna in a comedy version of "Rigoletto." In prominent roles of the vehicle are Florence Spurrier, Ira Robertson, Jackie Brunea, Evelyn Du Frain, James G. Edwards and Walter Spencer.

Musical specialties which have been incorporated in the vehicle include the opening, "Fashion"; "My Lady's Gown," by Jackie Brunea and Walter Spencer; "Parisiola," by the Knight Sisters; "Mr. Kemper and Mr. Young," by themselves, harmony by the Century Four; "Opera Burlesque" by Kemper and Young; "Mussette" by Walter Spencer; "A Cute Little Way All My Own" by Evelyn Du Frain; "Out Where the Blue Begins" by James G. Edwards. Jack Russell, himself, returns to the theater at the head of his company next week, starting Saturday, after a vacation of several weeks in the east in a brand new character. He will play a Mexican bandit, a role which he has never attempted before, in his special production, "Across the Border."

STATE

The screen's greatest character actor, Lon Chaney, opened the State theater yesterday in his latest sensation "While Paris Sleeps." The supporting cast includes Jack Gilbert, Mildred Manning, Hardee Kirkland and Jack McDonald. The picture was directed by Maurice Tourneur. The Estelle Faye Revue, composed of five pretty and talented girls and a man top the vaudeville bill presenting a beautiful symphony concert of songs and dances. Sam K. Otto billed as "The Duck Hunter," gets a great bundle of laughs for fifteen minutes, and Goradon and Joyice present a nifty and out of the ordinary act in "As Ye Sew." Marie Sparrow, the celebrated Irish comedienne proves a riot of fun and she is roundly applauded for her ready wit. Barlet and Kellet, the flexible gymnasts, round out the show. This bill closes at the State Saturday night.

PANTAGES

This afternoon Jane Cowl as Juliet in the Shakespearean love tragedy, "Romeo and Juliet," opened a three-day engagement at the Pantages theater with a matinee performance. Manager W. A. Rusco, who has rented the Pantages theater and who is bringing the big production to that house, makes the gratifying announcement that the supporting company will be brought intact with all the players who appeared in the memorable engagement in New York. The supporting company is headed by Rolla Peters, son of the noted artist of San Francisco, Charles Rollo Peters. Peters is regarded as one of the foremost of the younger romantic actors. He also designed the production for the Selwyns and Adolph Klauber. Others in the company include Louis Hector, Vernon Kelso, Grace Hampton, Gordon Burby, Lionel Hogarth, Lallve Brownell, John Crowley, John Parrish, Jessie Ralph, Dennis King and Robert Ayrton. Altogether there are fifty people in the cast. It required three special cars to bring the production and company to the Pacific coast. Five performances will be given during the three-day engagement including today's and Saturday's matinees.

BROADWAY

"Trifling With Honor," which opens at the New Broadway theater today will score a "bull's-eye" in the human interest target of every person's thoughts.

The story carries one from the drab atmosphere within the gray walls of San Quentin prison to the sun-lit, "crowd-hurrying" scenic vista of a great American baseball field.

It is a picture with an appeal to every class of motion picture fans, adapted from one of the most popular short stories of the year.

Realistic portrayals are offered by Buddy Messinger as Jimmy Hunt, a "hard-boiled" messenger boy; Hayden Stevenson, as the newspaper reporter, Fritzi Ridgway as the girl and Rockliffe Fellowes as "Bat Shugrue."

Dissolve—use enough—soak

These are the simple directions

Just pour Rinso into a saucepan and add boiling water. It dissolves instantly and makes a good thick soapy solution.

Pour this Rinso solution into your tub half full of lukewarm water and whip up the suds. After you have put your clothes into the tub, the suds should stand up. If they do not you have not used enough Rinso.

Soak your clothes in these lasting suds for an hour or two—overnight, if you wish. This soaking takes the place of rubbing. It loosens the dirt so that it rinses right out. Only neck bands, cuff edges and seats and knees of children's play clothes will need a light rubbing with a little dry Rinso.

Get Rinso today—all grocery and department stores have it in the regular size and the big new package. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Police Sergeant Testifies for Veronica

Philadelphia, Pa.—Police Sergeant Alfred Millington says for the benefit of humanity, he feels it his duty to set his case before you with the hope that if you are troubled as he was you will give Veronica a fair trial.

"I was suffering from a kidney trouble that had laid me up for six months at a time and I would swell considerably. I began the use of Veronica and found this swelling began to reduce rapidly, which somewhat alarmed me, and I sought the advice of my physician, and when I told him what I was taking, he said, continue with the water. This I did, and today am a well man, have no trouble of any kind. I give Veronica Water the entire credit of my cure, as I took no other medicine from the time I commenced its use. I have recommended it to a number of the men in our station house who have been equally benefitted by its use."—Alfred Millington, Sergeant, Fourth District Police, Philadelphia, Pa.

Veronica Water is bottled exactly as it comes from the springs, and it has been impossible for chemical experts to reproduce artificially this marvelous water, provided by nature.

Thousands of users of Veronica have found relief from chronic constipation, indigestion, rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles and other stomach disorders. You, too, may find that Veronica is "The Water Way to Health." A big, generous 1½-quart bottle at your druggists, only 75 cents.

SACRAMENTANS ASK DISMISSAL OF HOSPITAL HEAD

Public Demand Causes Board of Supervisors to Act in Dr. Morrison's Case.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 23. — Faced with a written demand bearing 400 signatures for the dismissal of Dr. H. E. Morrison as superintendent of the county hospital, the county supervisors today continued with a drawn-out investigation of charges of negligence and inefficiency that have been made against him.

First, thirty nurses at the hospital signed accusations against Dr. Morrison. In addition to general charges of inefficiency and neglect of patients there were specific charges of over-familiarity toward nurses, garter peeping and drunkenness on duty.

The county grand jury backed up the nurses' charges with a long official investigation, and in the end recommended the immediate dismissal of Dr. Morrison.

The Sacramento Ministerial Union followed with a formal request for his removal.

The church federation was next with a similar request.

Then came the petition bearing 400 names.

The county supervisors, some of whom have already expressed themselves in sympathy with Dr. Morrison, and who helped him in the preparation of his defense, originally promised a decision in the matter today. But today it was announced that other witnesses will be summoned in Dr. Morrison's behalf.

PRIEST'S SISTER KILLED BY CAR

In company with a party of friends, Miss Concannon had descended and was walking around the rear of the car while the motorman was changing the trolly. The car was standing on a slight grade and backed suddenly, knocking Miss Concannon down. She was pinned under the rear truck and members of the fire department worked half an hour to extricate her. Rejected Recruit Hurt; Probe Asked

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23—Henry Hale, an oil worker of Long Beach, has asked Federal officials to investigate the case of his son, Clarence Hale, 19, who enlisted in the Marine Corps here a week ago, was sent to San Diego for final examination and returned home Monday morning, with his clothing cut and torn, many bruises on his body and his mouth and ears apparently scorched by some liquid, according to physicians.

Young Hale has been unable to give a rational account of his experiences, his father said. The physicians were quoted as stating his recovery was doubtful. Advices from marine headquarters in San Diego stated Hale had been rejected because of an old injury.

Says Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced at Home

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that many physicians are now prescribing.

Ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that it dissolves goitre and wens and causes them to disappear. It can be secured at any pharmacy.—Advertisement.

RHEUMATISM LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Deep Seated Uric Acid Deposits Are Dissolved and the Rheumatic Poison Starts to Leave the System Within Twenty-four Hours.

All druggists in this county are authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer in this vicinity that if a full pint bottle of ALLENRHU, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not stop all agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished even in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and piteous and where the patient was helpless.

Allenrhu relieves at once. Immediately after you start to take it the good work begins. It searches out the uric acid deposits, dissolves the secretions and drives rheumatic poison out of the body through the kidneys and bowels.

It's marvelous how quickly it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two days, and even in cases where the suffering is most painful all traces disappear in a few days.

Mr. James H. Allen, the discoverer of ALLENRHU, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless ALLENRHU decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance.—Advertisement.

My Envied Hair

Is one thing I owe to France

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is my greatest glory. It is more luxuriant than 40 years ago.

I am old in years, but I look like a girl of 19. My hair is thick and lustrous. It has never begun to grow gray. Falling hair and dandruff are unknown to me.

The reason lies in a formula which I found in France. Many of my friends on the stage have used it, and they gained results like mine. They all have wondrous hair.

Now I have arranged so every woman, every man, may share these benefits with me. This formula which France gave me is at your store today.

Why Hair Declines

Those experts told me this: The scalp is like a garden. One must stimulate, fertilize and clean it.

An oil called sebum hardens there. Dandruff forms. These things clog the hair roots; stop the growth. And they stifle the glands which supply pigment to the hair.

Thus hair stops growing, loses luster, falls out or turns gray. The way to fight those troubles or correct them is to treat the scalp.

The Way I Found

Those French scientists gave me a formula. My hair since then has grown finer every year. Mother used it, and she died at 57 with hair like mine today. Many of my friends have used it. All of them say that nothing else has brought comparable results.

I call this formula my Hair Youth. I apply it with an eye-dropper daily—just enough to dampen the scalp. This method does not muss the hair. It requires but a minute a day.

The result is my heavy, silky, lustrous hair which many young girls envy. I believe that any woman who employs it will always thank me for it.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price 50c and $1 with eye-dropper. Also my White Youth Clay. Also my Youth Cream, based on lemon and strawberry. Also my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. My Beauty Book comes with each.

I hope you will let my Hair Youth show you the way to more beautiful hair. Edna Wallace Hopper, Business Address, Waukesha, Wisconsin.—Advertisement.

The face of the savage becomes seamed early in life, but science has brought to civilization the secret of a firm, beautiful skin.

New Discovery Gently Lifts Them Out —As If By Magic!

No longer is there any excuse for wrinkles! A new discovery of Science proves it.

With this wonderful new treatment, it is just as if a magic wand were waved across your face—banishing every tired line, every laugh or frown wrinkle, every telltale mark of time!

Why permit your beauty and attractiveness to be spoiled by the tragic lines that foretell the end of youth? Here, at last, is a quick, easy and inexpensive way to rid your skin of every trace of wrinkles. You will be amazed at the results brought by the very first treatments!

How It Works

Unlike many so-called "wrinkle eradicators," this new discovery, called Domino Wrinkle Cream, does not attempt to cover up or conceal the lines or wrinkles. Instead, it gets right at the very cause of wrinkles, removes it in a perfectly natural and harmless way, and as it does so the wrinkles and lines are actually lifted out! They disappear almost before you realize it.

No tedious massaging, no harmful lotions. Simply apply a small quantity of this delightfully fragrant cream to the wrinkles to be removed. Press it gently into the skin. Remove it after a short while—then note the results. Even after the first few days you will find that your face has grown years younger looking.

Domino Wrinkle Cream not only removes the lines that are robbing you of your charm. In addition it contains certain marvelous ingredients which soften and whiten the skin, molding it into a new, smooth, firm surface.

Guaranteed to Remove Every Wrinkle

Why let wrinkles add age to your face when they can now be banished so easily? Domino Wrinkle Cream is GUARANTEED to banish every line and wrinkle—or your money instantly refunded. A special bank deposit of $10,000 protects this guarantee, so you risk nothing in trying it. Get it today. Sold at all good drug and department stores, such as:

Why Not Feel Youthful —and Be Beautiful?

Science Offers You Lyko, the Great General Tonic, to Give You Health, Strength, Attraction

Men who win in business and women whose beauty and charm make them popular in society are invariably healthy people. It is health which gives the vivacious spirits, the sparkling eyes and the attractive personality which brings success and makes friends.

Thousands of people have awakened to the importance of keeping the body in normal condition and have found wonderful help in Lyko, the great general tonic.

Take, for instance, Mr. Mitchell Murray, well known in northern Missouri. Mr. Murray writes, "When I began to take Lyko I was so weak I could hardly walk across the room. Now I am able to do a pretty fair day's work and my neighbors are surprised at the effect."

Mr. W. L. Lawler of Alabama says: "This is one of the greatest tonics for vitality, digestion and liver trouble. A general rebuilder for run-down persons. It made me an entirely new man at 55. I feel like I am only 30 years of age today."

These are only two out of the multitudes of letters from grateful people who have recovered their strength and energy by the aid of Lyko and who [illegible] best medicine they have ever used to restore the system to its normal, healthy state.

The amazing power of Lyko to quickly build up run-down people is due to the fact that it acts on all parts of the system. It is a great general tonic compounded from pure medicinal ingredients, each of which has its own special properties.

One of these ingredients is a mild but efficient laxative which cleanses the bowels and keeps one free from constipation, another acts beneficially on the liver and kidneys, a third aids digestion so that the body absorbs the full strength from the food, another steadies the nerves and helps to overcome sleeplessness, irritability and nervous depression. There is not an ailing part of the body which does not feel the benefit of Lyko.

If you suffer from the effects of [illegible] overwork or worry; if you have indigestion, constipation or kidney trouble; if you are bilious; if you lie awake nights; if you lack that energy and spirit [illegible] and popularity, put Lyko to work to build up your strength and vitality. [illegible]

Man Charges Wife Advocates Free Love

MARTINEZ, Aug. 23.—Charges that his wife is a believer in free love and that she has no use for legal forms of marriage and refuses to recognize them, are made by Solomon Blumenfeld of Martinez, in suit for divorce against Fannie Blumenfeld. Mrs. Blumenfeld's alleged assertions favoring free love were made on numerous occasions, her husband declares.

Mrs. Blumenfeld told him she did not love him, that she would not live with him and has treated him as a stranger in his own home, Blumenfeld avers. Considerable property, he says, he has turned over to his wife. Mrs. Blumenfeld has the couple's two children, a boy, aged two years, and a girl, aged twelve. Blumenfeld does not ask their custody. They married in 1909.

Rodeo Girls Running Spirited Contest for Royal Honors at Fire Department Carnival

Miss Nellie Thompson and Miss Alyce Spinler In Race For Queen.

RODEO, Aug. 23.—Neighboring towns and communities are showing a lively interest in the spirited contest that is under way here for queen of the carnival to be given by the Rodeo Volunteer Fire Department September 26, 27, 28, and 29.

MISS NELLIE THOMPSON (above) and MISS ALYCE SPINLER, candidates for queen of the firemen's carnival to be held in Rodeo, Contra Costa county, September 26, 27, 28 and 29. The contest will be closed September 15.

Miss Nellie Thompson and Miss Alice Spinler are the candidates, and so much earnestness is being exhibited by their friends in advancing their interests by rounding up votes for them that they have carried their campaigns to the nearby towns of Selby and Crockett on one side and to Pinole the other way.

The acquisition of a modern one-ton fire-truck for the department is the principal object of the carnival. Already the department has a hose cart and chemical, both hand-drawn, but the growth of the town has reached a point where these are no longer considered adequate, according to the members.

The new truck, gasoline-propelled, has already been purchased, and Emil Bellman, secretary of the department, has arranged to drive it out from San Francisco under its own power tomorrow afternoon.

Choice attractions are promised by the Rodeo firemen for the carnival part of the celebration set for next month. The festivities will be concluded Saturday night, September 29, with a ball.

A beautiful diamond ring will be given to the queen and a diamond bar pin to the other contestant. The ring and pin are on display in the window of Hearn's drug store.

School opened here Monday with the largest registration known in Rodeo. The school board is operating a school bus for the convenience of the children living in Oleum.

Deeds to Land Are Filed By Wholesale

SALINAS, Aug. 23.—The county recorder's office was deluged Monday with over 400 documents filed by the Associated Almond Growers of Paso Robles. Most of the documents were deeds conveying to 150 different almond growers in the southern section of Monterey county tracts of land previously purchased under contract. The recording fees totaled $800, Recorder John E. Wallace stated. The total value of the property involved amounted to $1,431,407.93. The parcels of land are mostly tenacre tracts. Monday's flood of documents was the greatest ever known in the history of Monterey county. It will keep the recorder's force hustling to handle the extra work in addition to the regular volume of business.

At the same time over $00 deeds from the same company were filed in the San Luis Obispo county recorder's office, transfering land in that county.

LIVERMORE MEN WILL BUILD OIL STORAGE TANKS

Flow of Water in Well Now Stopped and Oil Is Being Pumped in Quantity.

LIVERMORE, Aug. 23.—Percy and Howard Le Fever, drillers at the Livermore Valley Oil Company's well, have practically conquered the flow of water which last week threatened to undo all the work they have accomplished during the past few months.

After striking a deep stratum of oil sand the pipe was pulled up and perforated to allow the oil to seep into the well. When the perforated pipe was replaced water poured into the well and it was necessary to begine baling immediately. After several days of this work without much success in cleaning out the water Howard Lefever lowered the druilling tools and churned up the amalgamated sand and water that had accumulated in the well. In some way the churning with the heavy drill did the required work, and oil is now being drawn up in such quantities as to warrant the company to install storage facilities. Plans are now being discussed toward this end.

Officials of the company are jubilant over the success of the drillers and predict that they will have a pump at work on the well within a very short time.

Campers Sweep Gun Club Clear Of Its Property

Everything Movable Burned for Firewood, Members Discover.

SALINAS, Aug. 23.—The Salinas Rodeo Gun club, organized here several years ago for the promotion of trap shooting, after a long period of dormancy, has just awakened to the fact that it has been robbed. A bill from a New York sporting concern from which the club obtained a trap on the yearly rental plan, brought the club back to life. The bill, amounting to $110, was placed in the hands of a local attorney for collection.

Believing that the necessary money might be raised by selling its lockers, score boards and clubhouse, members of the club went out to its shooting grounds yesterday to make an appraisement. They found everything gone. Inquiry revealed that all but the house had been torn up and used as kindling by auto campers. The house itself was over in the auto park proper, where it had been moved by a city official for safe keeping.

The club now wants to sell the city the house, and will pass the hat to raise the balance of the bill. In the meantime efforts are being made to locate missing parts of the trap.

NEWS FROM THE HEART of the GOLDEN STATE

ATTEMPTS MADE TWICE TO WRECK INTERURBAN CARS

Obstructions Piled on Tracks of Peninsular Railway Menace Lives.

SAN JOSE, Aug. 23.—Police and sheriff's offices are today seeking the men or boys who placed two piles of trays, ladders and even trunks of trees upon the tracks of the Peninsular Railway company, nearly derailing two of the heavy cars of that line.

One obstruction was placed on the tracks on the White road, near the Frost ranch, late in the evening. A speeding car driven by Motorman Richard Trengrove crashed into it and the car was damaged, although it did not leave the track.

The wreckage was cleared away, but an hour later other obstructions appeared on the track, and a car driven by Motorman Robert Oldham nearly had a similar experience, being stopped in the nick of time by the emergency brakes.

Police and railroad officials are of the belief that the deeds were the work of boys or young men, but such is the seriousness of the acts, that every attempt is being made toward arrests.

Alfred Gabrielson Is Named European Manager By California Association.

SAN JOSE, Aug. 23.—With the idea of developing to the full the export possibilities of its products, directors of the California Prune and Apple Growers' association today announced the appointment of Alfred Gabrielsen as export manager of the association.

Gabrielsen was for years the European manager of the Sun Maid Raisin Growers nd is said to have been highly successful. Just before he accepted the offer of the local association he was made a flattering offer by the Libby, McNeil and Libby company to handle their European business.

"There are wonderful opportunities for prunes and apricots in the foreign markets at the present time," declared Gabrielsen, upon taking over his desk.

"While the market is temporarily slow, due to the condition of Germany, which has always been a strong customer for American fruits, I believe that foreign peoples are willing to pay a premium for California produce and that a ready sale can be permanently built up.

"For the present the fruit will be handled through foreign brokers, but its sale will be managed through the headquarters here and efficient selling methods should build up a greatly increased market."

Gabrielsen will make his home here and has brought hish family to San Jose.

Your Pain May Be Neuritis

Many sufferers who are treating for rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago or sciatica, are really afflicted with neuritis. This disease of the nerves causes pains, aches and soreness in different parts of the body just like the ailments mentioned above.

The most common sources for neuritis are colds, injuries, bruises, infectious diseases or a run-down nervous system. Long-standing cases of rheumatism, or sciatica, frequently attack the nerves, setting up inflammation and producing neuritis. No matter what its origin, neuritis is always accompanied by sharp, piercing pain, usually in the shoulder, forearm, neck, thigh, leg or back.

Don't bother with medicines that relieve for today. Assist nature to remove the cause of inflammation and pain by taking Eopa Neuritis Tablets—a scientific treatment that has often brought lasting relief after other methods failed. Price $1. For sale by the Owl and other druggists. Boericke & Runyon Co. 425 14th street, Oakland; 106 Powell street, San Francisco.—Advertisement.

FIERY LANGUAGE VIA TELEPHONE CAUSES ARREST

SAN JOSE, Aug. 23.—Because he is alleged to have used language over a telephone which was calculated to burn up the insulators all along the line, W. A. Hinds is today facing arraignment on a charge of disturbing the peace brought by William Biaggi, local attorney.

Biaggi claims that Hinds "cussed him out" in a manner fit for no human ears and that women and children in his office heard and were scandalized. According to Biaggi the circumstances were as follows:

Hinds, a contractor, built a house for Anton Anderson. When the house was finished there was a difference of opinion as to the size of the final payment. Hinds claimed Anderson owed him $381.53 while Anderson claimed he owed Hinds $1.18.

Upon the advice of his attorney, Biaggi, Anderson went to Hinds with a check for the $1.18. Hinds thereupon became so angry that he called Biaggi on the telephone and the ungentlemanly language is then said to have erupted. Biaggi had Hinds arrested for disturbing the peace. Hinds filed suit against Biaggi's client for $381.53.

Local and near coast markets will be supplied with the late yields from various sections of the county. That is but a fraction of the county production.

HAYWARD, Aug. 23.—An attendance of about 1500 pupils will enter the local grammar schools on the semester opening next Monday morning, judging from present indications and advance enrollments, according to the opinion of W. That number should be increased to at least 1650 before the end of the season, says Kammerer, because of the late influx of families from the prune orchards and the fields of the central portion of the state, who live here through the winter, send their children to school for several months, and depart with the advent of summer.

The first of the past fiscal year, stated Kammerer, there was an initial entry of approximately 1300 pupils, that number increased to 1500 within a short period.

SAN JOSE, Aug. 23.—That an accidental swallow of lysol was responsible for the death of J. Malthes, 57 years old, who died at Alum Rock, was the finding of a coroner's jury which investigated the mysterious death. The jury found that Malthes was in the habit of putting this liquid into his bath water and that while bathing he apparently got a quantity of the stuff into his mouth and swallowed it. Such was the strength of the solution that he died a few hours later.

WHEAT PRICES FIXED SOLELY BY WORLD MARKET

No Resort to Cheap Credit, No Government Control Can Change Things.

Guaranty Trust Company of N. Y. Survey.

The recent sharp decline in the price of wheat has furnished an outstanding example of the hardships which lack of balance in the commodity price structure entails.

In this instance, not only is the depression of the value of wheat a major factor in the general economic situation, but the discontent engendered is reflected in various schemes for relief which could only prove futile or mischievous. As is usually true in the face of such a dilemma as now confronts the wheat growers, there is a disposition to ignore the fundamental economic aspects of the difficulty and to strike out more or less blindly at imaginary causes.

What is needed in the framing of policies and measures of relief for the producers of wheat is a frank recognition of the conditions which have made necessary a post-war readjustment of the producing activities of farmers, as well as of other producers in this country. Wheat growers are not alone in their subjection to the vicissitudes of costs, prices and markets. To center their attack upon speculators, railroads, and "the interests" is to ignore the basic causes of the present situation.

THE THING THAT IS.

The scheme for harassing the speculators, no resort to cheap credit, government price fixing and hoarding of the commodity, or browbeating of the railroads, can abolish price determination in a world market. After the worst that can be done in these directions, it would still be necessary for the production of wheat in this country to be adjusted to the world market situation.

There can be no doubt that the American wheat growers, as a body, are in an exceptionally unfavorable position. With wheat selling in Chicago at around a dollar a bushel, and the farm prices in Kansas and Nebraska about 80 cents, it appears that without a material advance in price a considerable part of this year's wheat crop may be sold for less than it cost to grow it.

And while the price of wheat has been falling, other prices as a whole have been rising until very recently. It costs more now to raise a bushel of wheat than it did a year and two years ago. Labor is scarce and expensive. Farm hands have been lured to the cities by the prospect of high wages. The prices of most of the commodities which the farmer has to buy, both in producing his crops and in maintaining himself and his family, have risen.

READJUSTMENT NEEDED.

A basic readjustment either of relative demand or of production is called for. Anything that may be done to accelerate the processes of general economic recovery in Europe, with consequent revival of demand there for foreign foodstuffs, would afford a measure of durable relief for wheat growers in this country. It appears, also, that the farmer's difficulties have been accentuated by tariff rates which are able to raise the prices of many articles consumed by him but which are powerless to raise the prices of his products that are determined in world markets.

But not all the price disparities from which he suffers have their origin in the unequal effects of the tariff rates. Whether with the existing or lower tariff rates, or with no protective duties of any sort, in any event the demand for American manufactures at the present time would be more nearly in conformity with supplies than would be the demand for wheat and other foodstuffs. The relation between the movements of wheat prices and the prices of commodities in general which obtained prior to 1914 was destroyed during the war. The subsequent decline in wheat values has been accentuated by the efforts of important wheat importing countries to become as nearly self-supporting as practicable in the matter of foods. A restoration of something like the former price relationships probably can be effected only gradually.

Meanwhile the drift of economic forces is tending to shift the production of wheat and other agricultural and livestock products from the high-priced lands of this country to newer and cheaper lands elsewhere. This fact, however, is not sufficient ground for believing that the days of prosperity for American wheat growers are past. Rather, it calls for a recognition of the necessity for resorting only to such measures of relief from present conditions as touch the fundamental economic factors.

RENTS STILL RISE IN EAST

RENTS CONTINUE TO RISE DESPITE BUILDING BOOM

Increase in Oakland Was 4 Per Cent on July 1 Over Figure of January 1.

By JACK CARBERRY.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Rents for the first six months of 1922 continued to go skyward.

The $50-a-month house of 1914 is bringing $78.50 in New York, $98.85 in Los Angeles, $84.80 in Baltimore, $85 in Buffalo, $80 in Pittsburgh, $96 in Chicago, the same in Detroit, $86 in Cleveland, $87 in St. Louis, $81 in Seattle and $92.50 in Denver.

Since January 1, 1923, New York tenements have increased their rents 3.7 per cent, the smallest boost of any of the nation's larger cities. Detroit rents have jumped 10 per cent—the highest figure.

Other cities to show increases during the first half of the present year, according to figures just made public by the Department of Labor, are:

Baltimore, 4.2; Boston, 5.8; Buffalo, 5.8; Chicago, 4.7; Cleveland, 4.2; Philadelphia, 8.5; San Francisco and Oakland, 4; Cincinnati, 9.7, and St. Louis, 8.9.

SOME RENTALS LOWER.

While these cities have been increasing the burden of the rent-payer, Kansas City, Memphis, Portland (Ore.), Minneapolis, Norfolk, Mobile, Jacksonville, Houston and Portland (Me.) have cut the costs (slightly, the department explains, but none the less recorded a cut).

The figures of the department show that there is an abundance of costly homes in all cities of the country—apartments renting from $75 to $150 a month.

However, due to the present high building costs, there has been but little construction of the cheaper class homes throughout the nation, and the poorer masses are in reality paying 100 per cent more in 1923 than in the pre-war period. The $20 and $30-a-month home has almost completely disappeared, the department's figures show.

FOOD STAYS UP.

The same report shows that food costs have mounted 44.3 per cent throughout the nation since the pre-war figures were compiled by the department.

Clothing is 74.9 per cent higher today than in 1914.

Fuel and light have jumped 80.6 per cent.

Furniture heads the list, increasing 122 per cent.

The national rent increase for the war and post-war period is 63.4 per cent, the report shows.

Combining rent, food, clothing, fuel and furniture, the living cost is 67 per cent higher today than before the war.

This, the report shows, is a marked decrease from the average increase as exhibited at the same period last year and, with the exception of rents, which appear to continue skyrocketing, speaks, it is believed, a steady return to a normal condition of prosperity.

Saunders Asked To Account for Stock Money

Piggly Wiggly Stockholders Apply to Court For Restraining Order.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 23.—Piggly Wiggly affairs, for five months center of controversy and center of startling developments, have been further complicated by the filing in federal court here of a bill by the Piggly Wiggly Corporation asking that Clarence Saunders until last week president of the corporation, make an accounting of class A stock sold through the Piggly Wiggly investment company and seeking an injunction to restrain Saunders from disposing of any money or notes received through the sale of such stock.

The suit was directed against Clarence Saunders personally and as head of the investment company. It will be heard in court here Friday of this week, one day on which also is set the hearing of Saunders' petition for a receiver for the Piggly Wiggly Corporation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Stock of the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., which at one time was quoted at $1.50 a share on the New York Stock Exchange, was sold at a securities auction sale for $1 a share. The transaction involved a sale of 1500 shares at this price.

Neither the seller nor the buyer was named. A the stock was voted at $28 bid and offered $35 in the open market, it was thought in financial circles that the sale involved no change of ownership but was made to establish a record.

Big Deal Reported In Feeder Lambs

PENDLETON, Ore., Aug. 23.—Walter Gooding, son of Senator Gooding of Idaho and a member of the sheep firm of Gooding & Son, has recently closed deals for the purchase of 15,000 head of mixed feeder lambs with growers in Umatilla and Morrow counties. It is understood that the wether end of the purchase will be fed and the ewe lambs will be kept for breeding stock. The lambs were chiefly cross bred stuff.

The demand for feeders is increasing appreciably, according to sheep men. Some have recently been changing hands at between 9 and 9½ cents a pound. Most growers are holding for the higher price.

Hogs Sell For $8.65 Per 100

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 23.—Hog prices at the local stockyards reached the highest point so far this year when shippers paid $8.65 for the best grades. This was an advance of 5 cents over yesterday's top. Packers were holding out of the early trade. Receipts were 11,000.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The Oahu Railway and Land Company, an Hawaiian corporation, applied to the interstate commerce commission today for authority to issue $2,500,000 in new stock at $20 per share. The stock would be distributed as a stock dividend, and would make the outstanding capital liability of the company $7,500,000. The application stated that the company had available a surplus of $2,750,000.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

By H. S. SCOTT.

Coal strike developments overnight were looked upon as constructive. Scranton advices were that the miners probably would get a 10 per cent wage increase and a strike would be averted.

But this favorable news market-wise was offset by the publication of the full text of the French premier's note on reparations which left no room for doubt that a settlement of the problem was still distant.

The result was that stocks on the New York exchange showed a slightly reactionary tone in the early dealings. Industrials, which led the recent recovery, displayed substantial losses from the week's high on the initial transactions, while the rails were heavy, reflecting a falling off of 59,968 in car loadings for the week ended August 11.

A few specialties were bid up in the afternoon for special reasons.

Sales approximated 600,000 shares.

Considerable irregularity developed in the early dealings, Corn Products, Allied Chemical, Sinclair Oil and Famous Players extending their losses to a point or more. American Hide & Leather preferred advanced 2½ points and Gulf States Steel, National Department Stores, American Brake Shoe, Mack Truck, and Foundation Company each advanced a point. Foreign exchanges opened irregular.

Temporary suspension of pool operations, combined with a lack of public interest, enabled speculators to bring about a sharp recession of prices dur- the morning.

Call money opened at 5 per cent.

Unusual activity and strength in the Eries, all of which reached their highest prices of the year at advances of 1½ to 2 points, was attended by rumors of competitive buying. This outburst of strength imparted a better tone to the balance of the list, Gulf States Steel, Mack Truck, Loose-Wiles, Kayser and Public Service of New Jersey rising 1 to 2 points.

The closing was irregular. National Lead, Famous Players and International Harvester broke 2 to 2½ points in the last hour, but Tobacco Products, Dupont and a few other specialties were strong.

SEPTEMBER MATURITIES TO BE ONLY 14 MILLIONS.

The total of bonds maturing in September is $14,866,650, an unusually small amount, which will cause practically no drain on money market funds for refunding purposes. The total maturities for this month is $27,374,580 and in September, a year ago, was $34,391,540.

The largest bond issue falling due next month is Scioto Valley Traction Company, $1,426,000 first 5 per cent bonds, due September 1. Other utility issues falling due on the same date are Savannah Gas Company, $1,346,000 5 per cent bonds, and Southwestern Missouri Electric Company, $1,150,000 5 per cent bonds.

The only railroad maturity worthy of note is the Seaboard Air Line $1,000,000 7 per cent notes, due September 15. Provisions for paying off these notes has already been made. Among the industrial bonds the largest September maturity is Empire Oil Purchasing Company $847,000 7 per cent notes due September 1.

MIDSUMMTR DULLNESS KEEPS STOCKS SALES DOWN.

Midsummer dullness is still keeping stock market business down to a low level and the daily turnover, in consequence, continues small. The market, however, is beginning to show much resisting power and efforts to apply pressure to it are becoming less frequent. While trading continues to be largely professional, taking the list in its entirety, it now gives the impression of having reached a level which makes it less sensitive to unfavorable news. Liquidation on a large scale appears to have been completed some time ago, and such reactions that take place are largely due to operations of the trading element, who, however, it is noticeable, are no longer wedded to the short side. As previously stated, there is a lot to be done on both sides of the Atlantic before there will be clear sailing. Nevertheless, says Henry Clews & Co., it is becoming more evident day by day that the great majority of thinking people are beginning to realize that values are down to a level at which there cannot be much risk in buying and that the market, therefore, is now in a good position to respond to favorable news. As pointed out heretofore the month of September is generally noted for greater market activity, and there is no reason for apprehending that this will not be the case this year.

EASTERN MARKETS

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Grain futures were easy today during the early dealings, September wheat leading the decline. Trade was light with offerings influenced by lower cables and improved weather conditions. About 400 cars of wheat were expected today. Liverpool quotations were lower on a reported sale of Russian wheat at France, equal to $1.10 a bushel. Opening prices here which ranged from ¼ to ⅝c lower with December $1.04⅛ to $1.04⅜ and May $1.10⅛ were followed by a little rise and then a slight general set-back.

Heavy liquidation was on in September corn and prices declined sharply with stop loss orders uncovered on the way down. Selling was general with buying scarce. After opening ⅛c higher, to ⅛c lower, with December 67¼, 60, 67⅝c, the corn market underwent a genaral decline.

Oats sympathized with wheat. Starting unchanged to ½c off with December 41 to 41⅛c the market quickly began to sag.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The cotton market was heavy today at the opening with first prices 4 to 20 points lower. Easier Liverpool cables and reports of heavy rains in the southwest accounted for the prevailing bearishness.

The market closed steady 10 to 18 points higher.

Fixed Fire Insurance Rate For U. S. Urged

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 23.—(By the Associated Press).—In order to better conditions in the fire insurance business and to accomplish more effective state supervision and regulation of rates for the benefit of policyholders, a fixed ratio policy for the entire United States should be determined today, declared Francis R. Stoddard, Jr., superintendent of insurance in New York, before the national convention of insurance commissioners.

The practice of over-insurance was ascribed as being one of the most potent causes of the increased number of fires in the country by W. N. Van Camp, South Dakota commissioner of insurance.

GERMAN TRADE IS FAST ADVANCING TO GOLD BASIS

While Teuton Finacial Structure Collapses Austria Is Visibly Improving.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The complete collapse of the mark, both as a foreign exchange medium and as a measure of value for internal transactions, has dominated German industrial conditions during the past month, say a cable to the Department of Commerce. In contrast to previous periods of depreciation there has in this case been no stimulus to industry, the difference between the low mark and wages being at once covered by wage increases. Unemployment is continually increasing, and a serious food shortage adds to the difficulties of industry. This shortage is due largely to the late domestic harvest, and would be taken care of by purchases of foreign supplies of foodstuffs; which are, however, impossible on account of the difficulty of financing such imports. In addition, transport difficulties continue, the several recent increases of railway rates having been insufficient to cover rising costs. Furthermore, the farms are unwilling to ship their products against payment in a currency of constantly decreasing purchasing power.

GOLD IN TRADE.

The calculation of all wholesale prices in gold is now general, and, although still officially prohibited, the calculation of retail prices on a similar basis has become common. Retail trade in turn is violently protesting against the failure of the government to establish the currency on a gold basis. For the moment the labor agitation for a wage based on gold is quiescent.

The only step so far taken by the government in this connection is the announcement of a gold loan, payable in paper marks; but any hopefulness based on this move is counteracted by the impossibility of obtaining currency, of which there is a severe shortage, bank often refusing to cash any checks, or issuing only 5,000,000-mark notes. To obviate this shortage the Reichsbank is making preparations to issue 8,000,000,000,000 marks per day.

AUSTRIA IMPROVING.

From June 23 to July 23, the note circulation of the National Bank of Austria increased 6 per cent from 5,000,000,000,000 to 5,300,000,000,000 crowns, but the metal reserves increased 30 per cent, from 2,308,000,000,000 to 3,000,000,000,000 crowns. Commercial deposits increased 40 per cent, from 581,430,000,000 to 814,000,000,000 crown, and commercial discounts decreased 18 per cent, form 96,430,000,000 to 669,000,000,000 crowns.

The Volkswirt index (based on 100 for January, 1921), which is supposed to represent the minimum living costs in Vienna, shows a decrease of 5 per cent on August 1, to 23,285 from 24,500 on July 1. The number of unemployed in the Vienna district continues to grow, standing now at 69,000, as against 100,000 on March 24.

Middle West Utilities Is Growing Fast

Earnings for June Sets New Record; 25 Per Cent Gain for Six Months.

The Middle West Utilities Company reports gross earnings of its subsidiaries for June were $3,023,601, breaking all previous monthly records of earnings. Gross earnings for the first six months of 1923 were $16,837,434, compared with $13,437,683 for the corresponding period in 1922, an increase of 25.31 per cent. The proportion of the subsidiaries' net earnings accruing in the Middle West Utilities Company for the period showed an increase of more than 27 per cent over the corresponding period of 1922, according to a bulletin by Cyrus Peirce & Company.

The company has recently announced building plans in Indiana and Kentucky which will greatly increase the electrical supply in those states. Several millions will be spent in steam plants at Jeffersonville, Ind., and Pineville, Ky. A new subsidiary, the Kentucky Hydro-Electric Company, has been formed to develop a plant on the Dix River, two miles from its junction at Kentucky River, at a cost of $4,500,000. High tension lines will make connection with the steam plant previously mentioned, with Lexington, Kentucky, and with the Interstate Public Service Company.

The stockholders of the Central Illinois Public Service Company and the Middle West Power Company, both subsidiaries of Middle West Utilities Company, meet on August 30, 1923, to vote on consolidating the companies. The purpose is to permit financing their requirements under more favorable conditions than is possible separately. A new corporation will be formed and stock of th enew company exchanged for stock of the old companies.

The Middle West Utilities Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware in 1912, as a holding company to acquire and develop public utility properties, and now owns or controls thirty companies, serving electricity, gas, water, ice, heat and electric railway service in over 630 communities, in fifteen states, to a population in excess of 1,575,000. The company's properties are located in the states of Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas, Tennessee and Iowa.

Strange Monster of Sea Is Captured

LONDON, Aug. 23 (By Associated Press).—A sea monster 30 feet long and weighing 10 tons has been captured by fishermen off Cahirciveen, County Kerry, says the Daily Chronicle. The monster has several fins and a large tail and was captured after a six-hour struggle, during which several of the boats were upset and all the nets badly damaged.

Experts who have seen the animal say that it is impossible to classify it, but suggest it is allied to the tunny.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Petroleum Corporation announces the failure of negotiations which have been in progress in an endeavor to reach an agreement with the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation looking to co-operation in the British market.

New Orleans Banks Show Large Gains

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 23.—Resources of state banks here have increased $22,300,000 in the last year and savings deposits have grown $3,500,000. The per capita savings account has increased $3.69, bringing the average for each depositor to $132.

COTTONS.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 23.—August figures on the consumption of cotton in New England textile mills are expected to show an extension of the downward movement but prospects for fall are brighter.

WOOL.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 23.—Wool has been firm here for a week or more despite limited turnovers. Full prices have held on all trades put through. Fifty cents a pound was paid for good Montana half blood. Three-eighths blood wool brought 47 cents and quarter blood 45 cents.

BIG STORE DRY GOODS SALES ARE 10% OVER '22

San Francisco Reserve District Given Fifth Place in General Average.

Department store sales throughout the United States in July showed an average increase of 10 per cent over July, 1922, according to the sales barometer of the controllers' congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. The report indicates that all federal reserve districts made a moderate improvement over the same month last year. The Twelfth District, San Francisco, is in fifth place, with a gain of 12 per cent.

Slight decreases are shown in the district figures from the levels established in May and June of this year, when the country-wide gain averaged about 14 per cent. Of all stores reporting to the barometer, 79 per cent succeeded in gaining larger sales this July than they had in 1922.

The Philadelphia district continues to lead the rest of the country in sales increases, although the July gain was 19 per cent, as compared with 26 per cent in June, and 34 per cent in May. Dallas showed the smallest increase for the month, with a bare 1 per cent advance over 1922. Kansas City, which has held the bottom of the list for two months past, jumped into third place in July with average increases of 15 per cent.

Both the St. Louis and Kansas City districts are found well up near the top of the list, which indicates an unexpectedly healthy condition in the big Middle Western agricultural sections. On the other hand, the Minneapolis district, which includes the Northwest, dropped back to an average increase of only 3 per cent after making a substantial improvement in June. The following table gives the average per cent of increase in retail sales by federal reserve districts for July, 1923, over the corresponding month last year, and a comparison with the June and May, 1923, figures:

Average per cent increase in 1923 sales over same month last year:

Dist.	July.	June.	May.
I	7	15	7
II	5	13	13
III	19	26	34
IV	14	25	26
V	9	10	7
VI	12	18	19
VII	8	17	24
VIII	18	9	13
IX	3	9	3
X	15	7	3
XI	1	9	15
XII	12	16	18
For all districts, pct.	10	14	14

The number of stores reporting decreased sales in July was greater than in the preceding months. The barometer shows that 21 per cent of the reports received indicated declines, while this figure was only 7 per cent in June and 15 per cent in May, the above indicates a tendency in most districts to approach the country-wide average more closely than was the case in previous months when the high and low extremes were far more pronounced.

Railway Board Decision Goes To High Court

P. G. & E. Appeals Decision Compelling Maintenance of Irrigation Ditch.

A petition for a writ of review of the decision of the California supreme court upholding a decision of the California railroad commission, in the cases of the county of Tuolumne and William Wax and others against Sierra and San Francisco Power company and the Pacific Gas and Electric company, as lessee of the former corporation, has been filed with the United Ssatet supreme court at Washington, and the railroad commission has been made a party to the action.

This action follows the rendering of a decision by the railroad commission on the application of the Pacific Gas and Electric company, as lessee of the Sierra and San Francisco Power company, to abandon water service on the Columbia ditch in Tuolumne county, and for an increase in rates. The railroad commission in its decision denied the application of the Pacific Gas and Electric company, as lessee of the Sierra and San Francisco Power company, to abandon irrigation service on the Columbia ditch on the ground that such service was unprofitable and the supply was inadequate.

The supreme court of California sustained this decision of the railroad commission, when the plaintiffs brought suit in the state supreme court, asking that all the water of the South Fork of the Stanislaus river be used by the water users of Tuolumne county, and that the defendant corporation be enjoined from diverting water from the South Fork of the Stanislaus river to the main river, to be used for generating power for consumption in other sections of the state.

The case is interesting as the ditches involved were built in the early '50s for mining purposes, and following the suspension of mining operations are now used for irrigation and hydro-electric purposes. The case involves the jurisdiction of the commission over contracts for public utility service made prior to the assumption of the duty of regulating public utilities by the railroad commission.

THE AIR MAIL.

Inevitably the comparison is made between this newer method of carrying mail from one coast to the other in 28 hours of flying time and the old pony express which brought the word of eastern and world events to Sacramento on horseback over the roads. The old way had the dangers of Indians, storms in the mountains, prairie fires, and highwaymen for exciting complements; the new way has the uncertainty of uncharted air ways, the buffeting of winds blowing mile high, scaling of peaks, and the sudden blanketing of fogs.

If there was romance in the pony express there is also a full measure in the air mail service. Each was a notable expression of efficiency and daring, and even in the shortening of distance between one part of the country and another they helped contract the borders of the United States, solidify American opinion and American interests, and each was a marvel for national discussion.

Before long the air mail service will become one of those established things which attract little comment. Residents of the Eastbay will no longer look up when they hear the hum of the motor of this modern courier. Men will say, just as they said in the days of the pony express, and later when the fast mail trains were put on, that the limit of speed has been reached. And yet, telegraphic messages, in the handwriting of the sender are being transmitted and photographs come across the country over the wires.

CONSTITUTION WEEK.

A country which has a special week for everything from prunes to prisms, is about to have one for the Constitution. This will not advertise anything except the very basis of our government; it will advance no cause save patriotism and a knowledge of American fundamentals.

"Constitution Week" is to be held September 16 to 22. It is suggested by the Citizenship Committee of the American Bar Association and has the cooperation of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Daughters of the Revolution, Sons of the Revolution and many other organizations.

There are so many reasons to urge a better acquaintance with the Constitution that the sponsors of this special week will have no trouble in putting over a daily message. It is the very cloth out of which the garment of American liberty is made and it is, moreover, one of the finest examples of literature in the English language.

It is when the Constitution is neglected or given a loose interpretation that perplexities in our government arise. When that document is studied there is revealed anew the purpose, spirit, and ideal of the republican form of government which is ours.

When the base is solid the structure endures. The Constitution is a base deserving of all the honors which can be paid it during the Constitution Week.

BACK TO THE WINDMILL.

The same industry which has sought power in the mountain streams, the depths of the earth and the heat of the sun, is turning its attention, once more, to so simple a thing as a windmill. It is predicted in all seriousness by a writer in The Century Magazine that ultimately the world will have to look to the wind for power.

In view of the belief that a few centuries will see the coal fields exhausted, the possibilities in the suggestion are held to be important. It is pointed out that statements to the effect that with the last ton of coal will come a collapse of industrial civilization are not causing the alarm that greeted them a few years ago. It has been found possible to harness the rays of the sun. It is now possible to store electricity generated by dynamos when driven by the wind.

H. Blake, who speculates on the subject, says that even tomorrow a cheap, foolproof, and durable storage battery may be invented that will enable us to transform the intermittent energy of the wind into continuous electric power. If the windmill in the backyard could produce a hundredweight of coal daily (and it can produce its equivalent in energy), our coal mines would shut down tomorrow. Then, energy would be as cheap one place as another, industry would be decentralized, and there would be no smoke hanging over the cities. The annual problem of a coal strike and the other one of adequate heat would be solved. The windmill may be coming back.

THE FRENCH REPLY.

There is nothing evasive about the French reply to the British note. It is an out and out declaration that the Ruhr occupation will continue until Germany pays at least the fifty billion marks which comprise the A and B bonds.

So long as Poincare is premier and his position is upheld diplomatic overtures toward the establishment of pre-war conditions in Europe must be made in the full realization of this position.

Otherwise the French note is not particularly significant. It denies any attempts to repudiate debts contracted during the war, either to Great Britain or the United States, and suggests that there is still no reason why the negotiations of the future may not be conducted in a friendly spirit. Upon the proposal to submit the question of the legality of the Ruhr occupation to The Hague few words are wasted. There will be no settling of this question in a conference of nations and there will be no moving out of Germany's industrial center until reparations are paid.

At least the situation is cleared. Premier Baldwin's recent intimation that England would act alone in case there could be no agreement between that country and France now becomes the most portentious public utterance in Europe. The world is looking to see just what he meant and just how far he is prepared to back up the declaration. The Ruhr which France is holding continues, month in and month out, to hold the anxious thoughts and, perhaps, the future, of Europe.

STATEHOOD FOR ALASKA.

The recent visit of President Harding and three members of his cabinet to Alaska has made of the territory a center of discussion. Undoubtedly the time when Alaska will be granted statehood has been advanced.

Most of the problems of Alaska have been those of government by bureaus and agencies far removed from the territory and are of a sort which would be removed if the territory became a state.

Without entering into the argument of Alaskan statehood, it may be said that most of the old objections no longer obtain. Fisheries, timber, gold mines and oil wells furnish a background of wealth. The population, while it does not number more than 30,000 white in the Panhandle section and 60,000 in all, is more than was the population of many territories when they became states. Then there is the matter of distance.

Considering the present means of transportation, Alaska is no farther from New York than St. Louis was a hundred years ago. Burt M. McConnell, who has written on the subject, says:

"The advocate of home rule in Alaska will also be reminded that 98 per cent of the territory belongs to the Government. True enough, but that was once true of all the land that lay between the Alleghanies and the Mississippi, and later of the land that lay beyond. Friends of Alaska will be assured by opponents of self-government that Alaskan homesteads are unfit for agriculture, but that was the contention at one time against the western prairies. The objection will also be made that Alaska is not contiguous to the United States, and therefore should not be made a state. This has little validity, since neither were California nor Oregon when they were admitted. . . . Moreover, Alaska is much more accessible than were California and Oregon when they were admitted."

There is every indication that within the next year the country will hear much more about statehood for Alaska.

THE COWBOY'S LAMENT.

It is something heartening in this day of million-dollar bruisers to find a gallant company of men and women offering physical prowess, mental dexterity and raw courage for the sake of offering. The Western riders who opened the rodeo at Yankee Stadium are possessed of so strange a viewpoint that they can hardly expect to be understood by the New Yorker who follows sport. They may be adept at riding and bull-dogging, but they are curiously inept in modern methods of winning glory.

For one thing, the cowboy is too contemptuous of his own attainments. If one of them proposes to bull-dog a steer and possibly spend the next four weeks in a hospital reflecting upon some mistake in tactics, he makes no great hullabaloo over his task. No $300,000 guarantee is posted, no long conferences are held before signing a contract, no defiances, evasions, explanations. The public doesn't care for his sport to a great extent because he makes little money out of it.

It has been an axiom since Emerson that if you can build a bigger megaphone or hire a better press agent the world will make a beaten path to your door. Cowboys need a megaphone and a press agent badly. They need a campaign for public recognition of the cowboy as the artist among sports.

Possibly he should write his experiences for the sporting page, beginning with a reason for his not bull-dogging any steers this year, and concluding with a promise to ride a bucking horse next July for $1,000,000,000 at ringside.—New York World.

The LANTERN

Old Soak's History.

CHAPTER XXI.

Well, the world went along a little further, and then come a lot of these hero Muslins you read about, a Muslin is a feller that doant drink any likker, they are Turks and Ayerabs and Mohamidins, and these Muslins is one grate proof the human race wasn't descended offen monkeys.

It stands to reeson that the human race never dessended itself down offen monkeys, monkeys is a gineration of postirrity that dissended their selves down offen mankind, and I will show you in a minnit where them Muslins come in at.

* * *

Theyer was some cities in the early days, Soddim and Gomorrow, got so wicked they wasn't fit to print and they was wiped offen the map, but a few fambiles got away afore they was wiped out and likely they was the wickedest ones, and they went out into the wilderness and multiplied and refurnished the earth and forgot what little they ever knowed about the right of way to live.

* * *

They forgot they orter eat theyer food cooked and they orter drink a little likker for theyer stumock's sake. And they sunk lower and lower till they turned into these hear Muslins you read about, they get no idear of right living nor anything, they doan't beleave the Good Book and sted of being civerlized they worship this feller Mohamid, they doan't drink any likker, they are a bad lot.

And after they turned into Muslins, and forgot about the right kind of vittles and beveridges, they got lower and lower, till some of the worst Muslins turned into monkeys, the proof of it is if you catch a Muslin or a monkey in his wild state he doant know what likker is, the next time you see one of them in a circus you ask the men who has charge of them. Well, all I say is, just look at them!

* * *

That is the way Muslins and monkeys come into this world, they dissended offen man, and what is a goanto happen to a country where its likker is taken away I would hate to say.

* * *

Well Hennery Withers, the little athyiss, says that men dissended offen monkeys, I have banged his head more'n oncet for that kind of wicked talk, it is a good thing this country has got men in it to bang the heads of all them athyisses.

He says to me one day, yes, I s'pose you beleave the world is flat, too.

No, I says, it ain't flat, but at the same time no one ever proved to my sattisfactions it is round like an apple or a orange like the gography books say, as a matter of fact it has got six flat sides to it, like a dice you shake has got. All them Himma Yellow mountins and other mountins is like where the edges of the dice sticks up, how could it be round like an orange with all them mountins sticking up.

Well, I have proved that men wasn't dissended offen monkies, and I will take up the erly days again in my next chapter.

(To be continued.)

Bootleggers' Ballade.

(With apologies to Rudyard Kipling.)

If you awake at midnight and hear a motor pass,
Don't get up and go and look—stay in bed, my lass,
Them as drives in darkness you don't want to spy—
Watch the wall, my darling, while the bootleggers go by.

Four and twenty motor trucks, chugging through the night,
Whisky made of fusel oil, strong as dynamite;
Brandy of wood alcohol, and synthetic gin,
That's the kind of drinking goods the bootleggers bring in.

SIGURD STORM.

The poet is blessed of the gods? * * * Well, they should do something for their parent!

No doubt the mummy of old Tut giggles deep down in his sandy gizzard when he hears visitors to his tomb talking about the value of time.

Pity the meek * * * for they shall inherit this earth.

Hell is paved with good intentions—but no doubt they are always digging them up to lay new gas mains and steam pipes.

DON MARQUIS.

SPANKED IN WRONG PLACE.

"I love her, judge, we're engaged. She disobeyed me, so I spanked her. That's all right, ain't it?"

That was the defense made by Edward Lewis of Atlantic City, N. J., when arraigned in the Atlantic City court on a charge of assault and battery made against him by Evelyn Johnson, who appeared in court with a black eye.

"That's the first time I ever saw anybody get a black eye from a spanking. You'll have to dig up $500 bail and tell it to the grand jury," ruled the court.—New York Tribune.

NOT WHAT SHE EXPECTED.

Woman candidate (to heckler who had been pestering her for a plain yes or no to his various questions)—If I ask you a question will you answer "Yes" or "No?"

Heckler—With pleasure.

Candidate (employing well known device)—Have you stopped beating your wife?

Heckler—No; I beat her this morning.

Candidate—What!

Heckler—Yes—three up and two to play.—Punch, London.

THE REASON.

Witman—Did you hear my wife singing last night?

Lindsay—Yes, I couldn't get my window shut.—London Tit-Bits.

THE THRILL THAT COMES ONCE IN A LIFETIME.

EXCERPTS from the NATIONAL PRESS

Kansas City Times: The padlock weapon seems to be about the most effective yet employed against a large class of violators of the prohibition and narcotic laws. The practice of accepting bonds and granting appeals, for which there is great latitude under the law, but which nevertheless is carried to a needless extent, has retarded and in many cases nullified the law itself. But the power of the federal court to close and padlock for long periods places where the violation has persisted is being used more and more in the handling of defiant offenders."

Kansas City Star: Considerable mirth has been provoked by the appearance of a new edition of 'The Bartender's Manual' this summer, but perhaps, as in the days when magic first went out of fashion, the secrets of a once great and mysterious profession are now being broadcast to the great public mass of amateur practitioners."

Boston Transcript: "With the canning season well advanced, the price of sugar, both raw and refined, continues to decline. This is a condition regarded in the trade as unprecedented, and the trend seems to prove conclusively that the price advance of a few months ago was entirely unwarranted under the law of supply and demand. The forces operating to cause that rise in price were partly speculative and partly political. There was, and still is, a powerful organization agitating for free sugar, or at least for a reduction in the duty on sugar, a condition which United States growers of beet and cane sugar say would be ruinous to them."

Chicago Tribune: "Japanese military men, dispassionately discussing the conduct of a war with the United States, discard the idea of putting troops on continental America. Hawaii is probably another matter, but the real American exposure is in the Philippines. One Japanese writer says the Japanese do not know how well the islands are fortified and that it probably would be a harder job than that at Gallipoli."

New York Herald: "An eclipse of the sun that occupies two hours and fifty-five minutes in the sky is to be speeded on the screen so that students of the motion picture can see it from start to finish in three minutes. As a quick educator the camera has everything else beaten to a standstill."

New York World: "There is no sign of war in Europe, says Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, returning from his lectures in England, 'no talk of war and no likelihood of war.' This is well said. It is worth saying. It is undoubtedly true, so far as organized governments are concerned. But something calamitously like war in barbarity and destructiveness may come of the sheer desperation of starving populations. That possibility cannot wholly be ignored."

New York Herald: "The burden of taxation, Federal and local, has been growing not only absolutely but relatively to the nation's total income. Former Senator Aubert J. Beveridge, in his Bunker Hill oration this year, pointed out that one adult person out of every twenty persons engaged in business or industry in this country is an official or employee of the Federal or of a state, county, city or town government. A few years before the civil war the ratio was only one in a thousand. In the Cleveland administration the ratio had risen to one in a hundred."

SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

We venture a mild protest against the proposal advanced by the International Association for Identification, in convention at Des Moines, Iowa. These experts would have a federal identification bureau for the purpose of taking and filing the finger prints of every man, woman and child in the United States. The proposition of filing away the finger prints of free-born Americans for the purpose of "keeping track" of them is repugnant. It is too directly in line with the exasperating paternalism of so many government processes today.—San Diego Union.

The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has taken up the cudgels for Hawaii on a new aspect of "states' rights." They do not seek statehood, but do maintain that as a territory Hawaii should have certain state rights. And, as far as expressed, these are entirely financial. In a "bill of rights," adopted by the legislature, it is pointed out that national leaders at Washington are wont to forget the Islands in the appropriations for education, good roads and the like, and in such administrative statutes as the farm loan act.—Fresno Republican.

San Francisco plans to raise a half million dollars for a memorial to Warren Gamaliel Harding. One newspaper suggested that it should not be something for other purposes with Mr. Harding's name on it, but something devoted entirely to the former president. That brings a rival to the front saying, "It would be wholly out of character to erect a mere monument. The character of Warren Harding does not lend itself to glorification in such a way. The San Francisco memorial should be something that the people can use."

It never seemed to me to be much of a compliment to a man to raise money for something the town needs or should build anyway, sooner or later, and call it a memorial.—Clare Davis in Stockton Record.

A prominent expert attributes the increase in financial crimes to discontent, envy, unemployment, desire for luxury beyond earning capacity, carelessness of people whose funds are stolen, unfairly low pay, and, "widespread disrespect for property rights and law, caused partly by the World war." That last reason may be the most important one. Comparing the national crime bill with the total income of the American people, about $1 in each $15 or $20 that is produced by honest effort is stolen.—Modesto News.

Imperial Valley has already this season cleaned up $7,000,000 on cantaloupes, it is said. That is what oil ate mixed with energy will do. You may not like the climate, but the cantaloupes do.—Stockton Record.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

ENVY.

Time was that a king of the olden days,
Disturbed by his fretful clan,
Sent ministers forth, both south and north,
In search of a happy man.

"Go find me a man with his heart content,
Who maketh no wish for more;
Let the search be had till you find one glad,
One glad with his present store."

"You have wealth," said they, to a woodsman tanned,
"And so have your children three;
You are blessed, for that gift is best"—
"I would I were rich," said he.

"You have gold," they said, to a man of wealth,
"You can buy what is ever sold."
"Yes," said he, "but I'd happier be
With the strength of the woodman bold."

Then they found them a man with a well-filled purse,
And sturdy and strong was he,
But he said with a sigh: "No child have I,
But the woodsman there has three."

They searched them high and they searched them low
And back to the king they went,
And they said: "No man in this royal clan
Sits down by his fire content.

"The woodsman sighs for the rich man's gold,
And the rich man vows that he
Would give his wealth for the woodsman's health,
Or even his children three.

"None thinketh himself by the good Lord blessed,
But counteth his neighbor glad,
And is sure that he would nappier be
If the neighbor's joy he had."

"Oh, tell me, then," said the sorrowing king,
"You have traveled the world around,
Did you pass no door of rich or poor
Where envy was not found?"

There is none who knoweth life's joys complete,
For so do God's blessings fall
That all are blessed as He deemeth best,
But none may have them all.

PUZZLING A CANDIDATE.

A Parliamentary candidate in a rural district made the following remark in the course of his address: 'There is no question in the world which I cannot answer with just 'Yes' or 'No.'

An old farm laborer jumped up and said: "Please, maister, might I ask 'e a question?"

"Certainly, my good fellow," said the candidate.

"Well, then, maister," said the old farm hand, "what's the time?"—London Telegraph.

WANTED TO BE SURE.

Constable—What are you doing around here, waiting your chance to steal a chicken?

Negro—No, sah. De jedge reformed me last month, and I'se jes' waitin' myself.

PERSONAL HEALTH SERVICE

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.

IS REDUCTION HEALTHFUL?

Any one who is overweight overeats; it is not only harmless but beneficial to health for any one who is overweight to reduce by the natural process which is simply a reversal of the unnatural process responsible for the excessive weight.

A child in his teens living a natural life that is playing vigorously every day needs as much food as his father who works every day or perhaps more food than his mother who merely boards at home and hires housework. (Not that I would play father up as the martyr of modern home life for goodness knows there are no flies on father when it comes to gyping his way through life without doing any real work.) The point I mean to make is that the growing boy or girl needs a generous ration for growing and building, with which father and mother are all through. That accounts for the shocking appetite of the normal youngster.

The usual caus of obesity is a sad combination of a working appetite or eating habit with a shirking life.

There are other means of reducing than my diet and exercise. In some cases other mens are advisable, with or without restriction of diet and regulation of exercise, but in no case may any other means than diet and exercise be safely undertaken without the attendance and control of your own physician.

Any intelligent adult may, however, safely and effectively arrange for himself or herself a reduction regimen based upon diet and exercise, or upon diet alone, through exercise alone is seldom satisfactory. I do not think any boy or girl under 19 years of age should attempt reduction by any means whatever without the sanction of his or her own family physician. The reason why youngsters should not attempt reduction is that their attempts may seriously interfere with natural growth and building operations and so work grave injury to health.

No "reducing diet" can be intelligently laid down for promiscuous use, for a reduction regimen which would be suitable for a person aged 30, 63 inches tall, doing the housework of a large family, might be quite inadequate for a person aged 40, 61 inches tall, teaching school, or it might bring increase in weight for a person aged 50, 55 inches tall, embroidering caseroles.

If you are thinking of adopting some healthful reduction regimen or plan I'll be pleased to send you some suggestions by mail, provided you inclose with your request a stamped self addressed enveope and give your present age, height and weight. No data, no suggestions. I do not intend to help anybody make a living skeleton of himself, and I find a lot of folks, chiefly feminine, yearn to do just that.

DONS REPORT SUCCESS IN BIG DRIVE

Direct Returns Indicates 4000 Mark Is Approached by Organization in Search for Additional Members

Results of the membership rodeo of the Dons of Peralta yesterday was reported today at headquarters to be so successful that the initiation to be held next auditorium will be the largest yet staged by the organization.

Not only were the direct returns encouraging but the number of voluntary subscriptions being received through the mails increased two-fold over night. It was announced that the membership of the community order has been boosted to close proximity with the 4000 mark desired.

Part of the Dons' activities yesterday was the initiation of six members of the San Francisco Advertising club at a luncheon yesterday at the Palace hotel. They were Shirley Walker, president of the San Francisco club, Walter Cribbens, Elliot M. Epsteen, Louis A. Colton, Guy Kibbe and Rollin C. Ayres.

A caravan of Dons will leave Saturday morning to attend the Stockton horse show and country fair. Accommodations for automobiles are being allotted at the headquarters in the Henshaw building.

"Montezuma, Oil," a sturdy and highly respectable old bull is to be presented to the Dons by the Stocktonians as a token of their esteem. Tom Mix, cinema actor, who is scheduled to arrive in Oakland Saturday morning, is to be given a reception by the Dons and fitted to a real Obapesla sombrero.

At the meeting of the board of alcaides yesterday afternoon the open the third annual Eastbay Dons received an invitation to Manufacturers' Exposition at Idora Park, Saturday evening, September 22.

The alcaides decided that two grandstands with a combined capacity of 14,000 seats are to be erected on the shores of Lake

The will, which was executed on August 13, leaves $500 to Providence hospital, $50 to the St. Vincent de Paul Society of St. Elizabeth's church, $500 for masses for the repose of the deceased's soul, and the residue to Father John A. Lally of Oakland.

The will was filed by Attorney Ben F. Woolner, while Albert E. Hill, public administrator, has filed a petition for special letters of administration.

Women Laugh at Passing Years

AGE DEFIED AT PARTY OF PIONEER OAKLAND WOMEN

In a pioneer home set in the midst of a rambling garden, supping from plates and surrounded with heirlooms more than a century old, a dozen early comers to California yesterday did homage to age. Mrs. W. H. H. Hamilton, the first graduate of the first normal school in California, herself 80 years old, was hostess at the birthday party in honor of Mrs. Adelaide Buell, 83 years old. The most youthful of the complimented guests confessed to 80 years, while the eldest had already celebrated the 109th anniversary of her birth. Mrs. Georgiana Collett, who last month reached the century mark, walked from her home, 1726 Eleventh avenue, to the Hamilton residence at Eighteenth street and Sixteenth avenue to felicitate her more youthful friend on her birthday. Reminiscences of how, as a child in England, she was kissed by the late Queen Victoria were recalled by the unusual woman whose residence in Oakland dates to 1906, although San Francisco was her home from 1865. The rise of San Francisco from a small waterfront town, round up of cattle by the vaqueros where the Mission district now covers, the daily life of the miners, the early days of Oakland were chief subjects of the conversation which yesterday preceded the tea assembling about prettily decorated tables the interesting group of pioneer women.

The Hamilton home was among the early residences in Brooklyn district, dating back some 57 years or more. The plates which were used in th e tea service were from 100 to 150 years old. The cups were 58 years old. Hand-woven bedspreads more than a century old were brought forth for exhibition to the guests.

A special birthday cake honored those who ranged in age from 80 to 100 years. They were Mrs. Collett, 100; Mrs. Eliza Wolfenden, Mrs. Adelaide Buell, 83; Mrs. S. E. Courtright, 81; Mrs. W. H. H. Hamilton, 80. Among those who were invited to meet the veteran women were Mrs. P. J. McCombs, Mrs. Harriet Nesbit, Miss Elizabeth Hudson, Miss M. Clark, Mrs. Effie Ketels, Mrs. Louise Smith, Mrs. Harriet Kinard, Miss Clare Pierce, Mrs. Mollie Hamilton.

Mrs. Hamilton, the hostess, holds the oldest teaching certificate in Alameda county. She is active still in educational and missionary work, in patriotic organizations and in Brooklyn Presbyterian church, of which she is a charter member.

Decoto Lauds Scouts in Welcoming Girls' Leader

NoBoy Scout has been brought before the Alameda county district attorney's office in twenty years, Ezra Decoto, district attorney, declared in formally welcoming Mrs. Esther Wood Snyder, newly appointed executive for Camp Fire Girls in Oakland, at a luncheon in Mosswood Park yesterday. In paying tribute to the movement on behalf of the boys of the community, Decoto expressed appreciation of the community in the work which is being launched on behalf of girls.

"Experience has taught me that the things which make a good man or woman are education, religious training and the influence of good parents," he said. "Young men and women should be taught to obey their mother and father and the laws of the land. They will not then be brought into trouble.

RIGHT TRAINING, IDEAS.

"The real reason that no Boy Scout in Alameda county has brought disgrace upon his order is in the training which he receives, the right ideas which he absorbs.

"Campfire is founded upon the ideals of the home. No factor in human society is so great as a good mother, a good father and a good home. In teaching a girl the beauties of meaning of home making, Campfire finds its full justification."

While Camp Fire Girls work has been carried on under the Oakland Recreation Department for several years, it was not until the appointment of Mrs. Snyder as executive secretary that it was organized independently. Headquarters have been opened at Seventeenth street and San Pablo avenue.

WELFARE OF GIRLS.

Members of the Oakland Council of Campfire, the advisory board and representatives of the local Guardians Association assembled at Mosswood to give formal welcome to Mrs. Snyder. Mrs. Addie Mosher, chairman, presided over the short program. Addresses were made by Ezra Decoto and Miss Ruth Findlay and responded to by Mrs. Snyder.

"Campfire Girls program is built on the basis of home and home life to the end that a fine efficient young womanhood may be developed," Mrs. Snyder explained. "It stands for the welfare of the girl in this community. It endeavors to show beauty and bring joy in doing the ordinary, everyday acts of living."

Officers of the executive council which will carry on the local movement are Mrs. Addie Mosher, chairman; Mrs. Bessie Wood Gustason, Mrs. Henry G. Tardy, vice-chairman; S. E. Biddle, treasurer.

OFFICER WHO CLUBBED BOY UNDER FIRE

Chief of Police Recommends Commission of Chester Holman, Inovlved in Theater Fracas, Be Revoked

Chief of Police James T. Drew today recommended to Frank Colbourn, commissioner of public health and safety, that the commission of Special Officer Chester Holman be revoked.

Holman is alleged to have hit William Spatz, 16 years old, over the head with his club following a disturbance which occurred Monday night in the Palace Theater, at Twenty-third avenue and East Sixteenth street. Spatz and his brother, John, 15 years old, told the chief that they were not creating the disturbance in the theater, but that the boys who were sitting in front of them were. The Spatz boys say they left the theater of their own accord and that the officer pushed them when they reached the door.

The officer alleges they were the ones that were creating the disturbance. He said he struck the boy when he attempted to escape after he placed the two lads under arrest.

OAKS AND SEALS ARE PLAYING TO BANNER CROWDS ON LOCAL LOT

Doug McWeeney Has Too Much On Ball For Oakland Batters, While Krause Is Hit Hard. S. F. Scores 9 to 0 Win to Even Series.

By EDDIE MURPHY

That Oakland is one of the best baseball towns in the country for its size is being demonstrated this week with the Oaks and Seals playing their series. Tuesday afternoon the largest crowd for that day this season, outside of opening day, was on deck to see the Oaks defeat the Seals in the opening game of the series. Yesterday a larger crowd was out, but the result was reversed and the Oaks tasted a 9 to 0 defeat. The Oaks have been playing great ball, so the fans of this city and San Francisco are expecting great things in this week's series, and they are turning out like of old. This week promises to break all records for attendance for any series on the local lot this season, and in fact for any between the Oaks and Seals for a few years. Because the Oaks have not lost a series in their last five, and are forging right to the front and are expected to give the Seals lots of trouble, is the reason for fans of both sides of the bay being out so strong.

While the Oaks were white-washed 9 to 0 yesterday, it cannot be said that they did not play good baseball. It just happened that they were invited to face the shoots of Doug McWeeney, when the Seal pitcher was having his best day of the season on the hill-top. The Oaks got but four hits off McWeeney, so it was almost out of the question for them to win the ball game even if Harry Krause, who started on the hill for the Oaks, had one of his usual good days.

Krause Is Hit Hard In First Three Frames.

Krause was away off form. Maybe the weather was too warm for him. In the three innings that he decorated the mound, Krause was nicked for nine hits and five runs. There was only a couple of hard hits made off Krause, one being a triple to right field by Archie Yelle which scored the first run, and the other a hot single by Hal Rhyne who had a very good day with the willow, getting three hits in as many times at bat. Hal was out after his fourth hit when Umpire Bill Byron chased him from the game for crabbing about a called strike.

The Seals got two hits in the first inning, but Pete Read caught a foul fly and then made a double play in catching Valla trying to take second after the catch. Rhyne's first hit and Yelle's triple counted the run in the second. The first four of the five hits off Krause in the third when the Seals scored four times, were bounders through the infield, just out of the way of men trying to field them. The last hit in the inning was a hot line by Hal Rhyne.

Knight batted for Krause in the fourth, and Orville Eley pitched the next five innings and he was nicked for seven hits and four more runs. Wells pitched the last inning and allowed one hit.

Seals Did Not Increase Lead Over Senators.

McWeeney had the Oaks baffled with his shoots from the very start of the game. He started out by fanning Mike Massey, and he brought the game to a close by fanning Cooper and Brubaker. Massey, Cooper and Brubaker, the first three men in the Oakland lineup were each fanned twice by McWeeney, while Guisto, Cather and Read each fanned once. Cooper got a basehit on each of his other two trips to the plate. Cather got the third single, and Maderas contributed a double for the other hit. Only three Oaks were left on the bases.

In spite of the trouncing which the Oaks received, the fans left the park well satisfied, as the Oaks tried hard all the time. A team playing the brand of ball and hustling like the Oaks is worthy of support even if it has not got a chance to win the flag. The Sacramento Senators won another game from the Beavers yesterday, so they did not lose any ground. Nine games in all are to be played by the Senators and Beavers at Sacramento this week.

The box score of the Oakland-San Francisco game follows:

"Doc" Silva Is Going Good in Three I League

"Doc" Silva, who a few years ago was one of the leading athletes at St. Mary's College of this city, is likely to be another athlete to carry the name of that college into the big leaguers. After leaving St. Mary's, Silva played ball in The TRIBUNE League and graduated from it to the Southern League. He is now with Syracuse in the International League and going great guns. In eighty-eight ball games he is hitting at a clip of .335, has stolen twenty-two bases, and scored sixty-five runs. He is an outfielder and is being closely watched by the big league scouts. When at St. Mary's he starred in football, baseball, basketball and track.

Phil Apperson, another graduate of The TRIBUNE League is attracting a lot of attention as an outfielder with the Peora Club in the Three I League. Phil plays centerfield and leads off in the batting order. In the games last week, Apperson had a great time with the willow, gathering around a dozen basehits. Tony Lazzeri, the young San Francisco boy who was farmed out by Manager Duffy Lewis of the Salt Lake Bees, is going good at second base for Peoria, and will return to the Bees in a few weeks.

Ranger Young, stationed at Jordan Peak, said that Laney was the oldest person to ever climb the peak.

Huggins Team Preparing for Another Year

Yankees Have Pair of Vets But Another Star Is Being Sought.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
(United Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(United Press.)—Turning from the very bright outlook of the present to the prospects for the future, New York fans are wondering and trying to figure where the Yanks will go in the race for the 1924 American League pennant.

Although there is that time-proved adage that nothing can be taken for granted in baseball, and regardless of the fact that there are examples to show that no lead is safe until mathematics cinch a pennant, New Yorkers, and, in fact, the fans of the entire American league, are ready to admit that the Yanks are now one part of the world's series.

Critics among the fans and those actually connected with the game differ as to the reasons responsible for the runaway that the Yankees have made in the pennant race this season.

Great depreciation in the strength of the other clubs is attributed by some as the cause for making more pronounced the apparent power of the Yankee team. Others, including several managers, umpires and baseball officials, have expressed the opinion that the contending clubs are just as strong as they were last season, but that the Yankees are infinitely stronger than in 1922.

If it is actual power and real class, rather than the deterioration of the opposition, New Yorkers reason that the Yanks ought to establish a new record by winning four straight pennants if they are able to maintain the same power and strength that carried them along so well in the present drive for the pennant.

Making allowances for the fact that the team might be wrecked for this season, and for the next year also, if some bad accident should befall Babe Ruth or one or two other of the star players, it seems that with the exception of Deacon Scott and Wally Schang, the star players bught to be as good next season as they are this year.

Scott has been slowed up. It is only natural that he cannot cover as much ground as he once did, when he was younger and more active. The strain of playing in more than 1000 consecutive games necessarily exacted its toll, even if it is argued to the contrary that steady, consistent work might have kept him in better condition and improved his work.

SCHANG HAS SLOWED UP.

Schang has also slowed up greatly. He is another veteran of years and the grind of day after day work behind the bat. He was out for a large part of the present season and the injuries which laid him up are sure to be aggravated with more and continuous work.

While it has not been officially confirmed, it is understood that the Yankee management has already made provision for the replacement of Scott by the purchase of Joe Boley, the Baltimore star, for whom Jack Dunn refused $125,000 early in the season.

No new catchers have been secured to fill in behind the bat, and first class catchers are not to be picked up over night. Hoffman is a better workmen than he showed this season, as he was in bad physical condition when he was forced to step in and take Schang's place.

Wally Pipp, Erin Ward and Joe Dugan hardly can be improved upon. They are not so far along in years that another year would make much difference in their play. With Sisler out of the game, Pipp is the most valuable first baseman in the American league. Some smart pitchers on other clubs have said frequently that Pipp is the most dangerous batter on the club.

Dugan is no youth, and neither is he a wobbling veteran. He is not as rugged as he might be, as he has a balky stomach. Contented as he now seems to be with his surroundings, Dugan is the best third baseman in the league, and if his constitution does not fail him he has several more years before he gets to the slipping age.

Ward was one of the most improved young ballplayers of 1923. He developed into a fine second-baseman and many of the writers following the teams regard him as the best second baseman of the year.

RUTH IS REAL STAR.

Ruth is so versatile and such a willing, ambitious worker when he is in shape that it is almost safe to predict that he will have a bigger year next year. His hitting leaves nothing to be expected and his fielding improved wonderfully this year. He is a good outfielder, a fine base runner, a hard, conscientious worker, and as far as his hitting is concerned, there is no need to comment on that.

Bob Meusel, once possessed of the greatest arm in baseball, threw it out this season, and his value in the outfield was greatly decreased. He may get his arm back during the off season, as other players have come out from under the same handicap, and even if his throwing should be slightly impaired, he can still lose a lot of steam and yet be able to throw with some of the best of them.

Whitey Witt is such a game ball player that it is not safe to say that he is slipping. He has the faculty and the courage of coming out with a brilliant game just when the experts are looking around for his successor.

If Witt should slow up out of the field, Huggins still has Haines and Hendricks, two fine, promising young outfielders, and if they fail to make the grade Colonel Ruppert has the ever ready check-book to get the man Huggins wants.

It would sound from all this that the American league pennant race next year is all over and decided. But it isn't. It isn't over this year.

Firpo Begins Training for Dempsey Fight

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 23.—Luis Angel Firpo arrived in this city last night and opened a training campaign which he believes will end in his carrying the world's heavyweight boxing title south of the Equator.

Under the direction of Horatio Lavalle, who came from Buenos Aires to perfect the South American champion for his title fight with Jack Dempsey at New York, Firpo worked late, then ambled down the boardwalk to his hotel for dinner and early to bed.

Luis Angel tried out the punching bags and the weights that were rigged up for him in Atlantic Park and proved that they were not to his liking. He pulled the weights off the wall. The punching bag was blown too tight and he burst it with one of his terrific rights.

He boxed four rounds, two with Frank Koebele, the Brooklyn light heavyweight, and two with Natalio Pera, the Argentine Adonis. Senor Pera has a wealth of curly hair, wears pearl gray spats and carries a cane, as well as a wllop. He is a heavyweight.

Firpo ate a hearty dinner and was in bed at 8 o'clock. He was up at 6 this morning for his road work; then rested until the afternoon and the training grind at the park. He expressed the desire for more sparring partners.

Charley Schoeman, under Lavalle's direction, is caring for Firpo's muscle condition. Carlos Vega, formerly of Buenos Aires, is acting as interpreter and Myer Sapl, a local hotel man, is managing local business affairs for the party. The whole outfit probably will move into a cottage on the outskirts of the city Friday.

Says Yanks Are Stronger Than in 1922

Manager Austin of St. Louis Tells Reasons Why He Thinks So.

Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland club, says that the Yankees are not as good a team as they were last year.

Jimmy Austin, manager of the St. Louis Browns, says that the New York Americans are stronger in 1922 and gives his reasons why.

Austin bases his assertion on the fact that for the first time in three seasons the Yankees are bound together by a single desire and a common good fellowship. The spirit of comradeship among the players is quite in evidence this year, whereas last season it was a case of every man for himself and a general fight every so often to break the monotony.

RUTH AT PEAK TODAY.

Ruth is a more dangerous hitter than ever before and is now worth 50 per cent more to his team than he was a year ago.

In Herbert Pennock the Yanks have a good left-hand pitcher, something they sadly lacked last year.

Elmer Smith's presence in right field against right-hand pitching gives the team a more powerful batting attack, for it brings Witt, Ruth, Pipp and Smith, four hard-hitting southpaw batters together against a right-hander.

Ward and Dugan, the weaker points in last year's team as fielding goes, have improved with a year's experience. Wally Schang, although out for a month because of an injury, is back in harness and the team has lost nothing behind the bat.

WITT BETTER THAN EVER.

Whitey Witt, in center field, is a greatly improved player. He is second to Babe Ruth in hitting among the Yanks. Babe hits for .390 and Witt's average is .342. Witt is not generally recognized as a wonderful hitter, but this season he has been causing a lot of trouble with his short swing and his wonderful speed. He beats out a lot of bunts and scratch hits and short drives over the third baseman's head.

Witt has collected 136 base hits and only twenty-four of them have been for extra bases. He averages one extra base hit for five games.

FINE .300 HITTERS.

Ruth, Witt, Smith, Pipp and Meusel are all hitting over .300. This preponderance of hitting strength has caused Huggins to dismiss the stolen base from his plan of attacks. The five above mentioned regulars have stolen only twenty-five bases this season, and the team's total is thirty-seven. This is a sorry figure as compared with 122 for the Chicago White Sox.

Mails Was Fined On Suspicion, Not Proof

League Prexy Admits in Telegram to Del Howard That He Had No Proof of Oakland Pitcher Throwing Cup at Umpire Toman

"If they are going to fine players on suspicion in this league, I might as well award my season's salary to the worthy cause right now," chirped Walter Mails, star southpaw of the Oaks today, when he was shown a telegram from President William H. McCarthy of the Pacific Coast League.

McCarthy in the telegram admitted that neither he nor his umpires had any proof that Mails threw a drinking cup at Umpire Jimmy Toman in Sacramento last week, but he suggests that Del Howard fine the pitcher and, after a little more language, he slaps a fifty dollar fine on the southpaw himself.

Mails is walloped because he "made himself obnoxious."

Walter denies this allegation. He admits he kicked some of the Oakland club's bats when he was removed from the game, but he denies that McCarthy or the league have any interest in the bats, and that the bats did not mind getting kicked by the mighty southpaw.

The way Mails feels about it he will go into court to find out if the president of the league can take part of his salary away fro mhim, and Walter is liable to start something.

Last time he was soaked Walter admitted part of the blame and he gavev up the dough without a struggle. In this case, however, the player denies every charge made against him, and he accuses the league prexy of discriminating against him and the Oakland club.

Mails' fellow players deny that Walter tossed the cup, and all hands and the cook aver that there was no fight between the pitcher and Manager Ivan Howard, as reported. Mails visited the prexy yesterday and he has been promised a hearing in the near future.

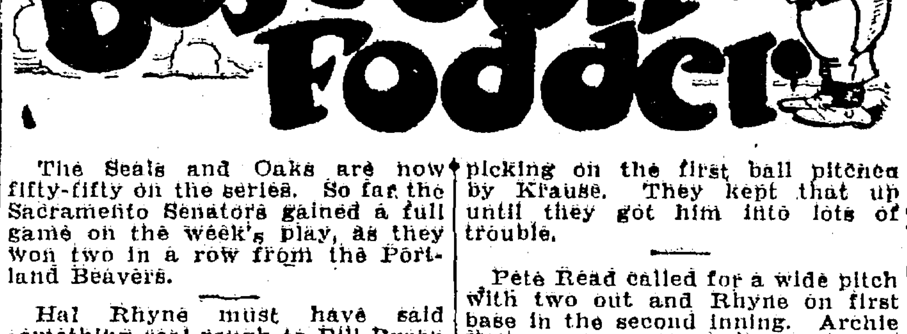
Here is the famous "Suspicion" telegram:

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 18, 1923.

Del Howard, Oakland Baseball Club,
Sacramento, Cal.

Yesterday someone from your bench threw the drinking cup at Umpire Toman. Neither of the umpires was able to locate the person responsible for this, but there is a strong suspicion that Player Mails, who had just been removed from the game by you, was the guilty person. His actions apparently merit a fine from you. However, for unnecessarily protesting and generally trying to make himself obnoxious, despite my repeated warnings, Mails is fined fifty dollars.

WILLIAM H. McCARTHY.



The Seals and Oaks are now fifty-fifty on the series. So far the Sacramento Senators gained a full game on the week's play, as they won two in a row from the Portland Beavers.

Hal Rhyne must have said something real rough to Bill Byron when he called a strike on him in the seventh inning. Nobody knew that Rhyne and Byron had an argument until the umpire pulled off his mask and shouted to the Seal to beat it quick.

Pete Read dropped a ball at the plate after Ellison had been called out by Byron. Ellison was trying to score on Rhyne's infield hit to Brubaker. Pete has been catching great ball and showing lots of pepper, and his error was overlooked by the fans, although it gave the Seals a run.

Read knows that the best thing to do when a player is running the bags on him is to get rid of the ball as quick as possible and try to send it to where the runner is heading for. Pete has his head up at all times, and it will be hard to keep him out of the first string job next season, as he is also hitting the ball well.

Eddie Mulligan is the only Seal to steal a base off Read in the two games. Tuesday he caught Valla trying to steal second, and yesterday, after catching a foul fly near the grandstand, he caught Valla trying to take second.

George LaFayette was a pretty sick man when in the game last Tuesday. He was out there because there was nobody else to play the outfield. He was feeling much better yesterday.

Walter (Duster) Mails is determined to better his own strikeout record of eleven. He is due to take another job against the Seals before the end of the series.

"Babe" Battero, a right-handed pitcher, who was with Billy Orr's club in the Sacramento Winter League last year, is working out with the Oaks. He was recommended by Walter Mails.

Romeo McDonald, the Oakland lad who caught Pop Arlett's shoots on the Healdsburg club, is out with the Oaks every day and may be carried for the remainder of the season. He joined the club at Sacramento last week when Del Baker took sick.

Baker is out in uniform again and should be ready to catch in a few days. As long as Pete Read continues to catch so well and he does not complain about overwork, Ivan Howard will not rush Baker.

George Drew, the Oakland boy who is with the Salt Lake Bees, was injured by a hard batted ground ball last Friday, and that is the reason for his name not appearing in the box scores the last few days. He was playing short until he got hurt. A letter came from Drew yesterday, and he says the fans at Salt Lake treat him fine. He is well treated by Duffy Lewis and his players.

The Seals started the game by picking on the first ball pitched by Krause. They kept that up until they got him into lots of trouble.

Pete Read called for a wide pitch with two out and Rhyne on first base in the second inning. Archie Yelle swung at the ball, which was high on the outside, and landed it in right field for a triple to score Rhyne.

Walter Mails feels proud over the fact that he fanned both Ellison and Mulligan on three pitched balls to each in the game Tuesday. It takes some pitching to make fellows like them strike out on three balls.

The Oakland Club is willing to pay the $50 that Walter Mails has been fined by President McCarthy, but Mails says he will not stand for that, as it would not prove his innocence. McCarthy has promised to make an investigation to learn definitely if Mails threw the cup at Toman.

George Drew returned to the Salt Lake lineup yesterday and celebrated by hitting a homer and single. He scored three runs. He had seven chances at short and made one boot which was not costly.

Jimmy Welsh, like Drew, another TRIBUNE Leaguer, contributed to the home run column at Salt Lake yesterday. He also hit a single.

Good Fielding Saves Giants From Defeat

Thirty-nine Errorless Games Show Pitching Isn't All-Important.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Granting that a sound defense doesn't win ball games, merely saves them, it is nevertheless a fact to tally with that the New York Giants had played thirty-nine errorless games, no less, up to and including August 13. At that moment the club was 7½ games in front of the second-runner and some were pleased to observe that hitting was the answer, since it is no Masonic secret that Giant pitching is a very sad affair indeed.

BATTERIES HAVE PUNCH.

However, it was simply a case of the punch in the batting order scoring enough runs to win games and the infield and outfield defense preventing the pitchers from being scored upon often enough to lose something already won. The defense, in brief, had its moments.

Better still, many of them came in big series. The Pirates and the Reds happen to be the Giants' most likely rivals, if any. Facing this pair at odd moments during the campaign, the Giants turned in sixteen errorless games, nine against the Pirates and seven at the expense of the Reds. That kind of fielding would make any spavined staff look like a hot tip.

PHILS' CHIEF MOURNS.

Incidentally, the McGraw entry has been more or less impartial about the business every club in the league having been favored with a perfect performance at one time or another. The funny Phils are among the chief mourners. They have watched the Giants play seven errorless games this season, while the Dodgers and the Braves, favorites of fate, have witnessed only two.

Twice in recent months have the champions played four successive errorless games. Twice have they played errorless double-headers. Can you beat it? Not with a horse-whip.

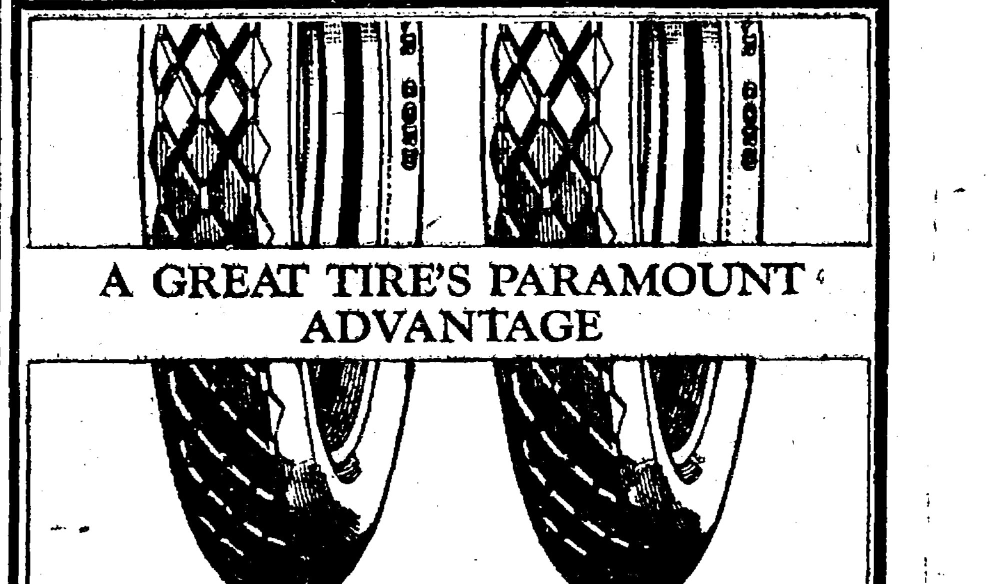
Ray Rohwer continued to sock the apple and got three for three. Rohwer and Welsh are with Seattle.

Paul Strand, outfielder of the Salt Lake Bees, was hitting home runs almost every day last week. He got within one of equaling the Coast League record of thirty-three, and now he seems to be having a tough time getting that one. If Strand can make two at Sal tLake this week, he will break the record of thirty-three, which is shared by Bunny Brief and Earl Sheely, former Bees.

J. H. Farrell, secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball, has announced the reinstatement of Pitcher Al Demaree, former manager of the Portland Beavers. He was put on the ineligible list a year ago for deserting professional ball and going into the semi-pros.

Milton Steengrafe, Oakland boy who was with Joe Devine's Calgary Club for two years and who was then blacklisted for refusing to report to the Chicago White Sox, is now pitching in the wee-bushes. Steengrafe refused to play in the outlaw leagues this summer as he intends to apply for reinstatement. He has been a good baby all summer, and Danny Long, scout for the White Sox, will help Steengrafe in trying to get reinstated.

A GREAT TIRE'S PARAMOUNT ADVANTAGE



The new Goodyear Cord Tire embodies many important advantages, such as long-staple cotton, patented group-ply construction, heavier and tougher sidewalls, stronger ply-unions and so on.

But its paramount advantage remains the celebrated All-Weather Tread, now made even more efficient and longer-wearing than before.

Thicker than other treads, its big sharp-edged self-cleaning blocks clutch and cling on any surface, digging through to solid footing and a safe stop.

Against skidding, slipping or loss of traction they set up a powerful wedge-like resistance, applying in full the power of your engine or brakes.

For your own and your family's sake you ought to have under your car the security that only Goodyear Tires with the All-Weather Tread can give.

As Goodyear Service Station Dealers we sell and recommend the new Goodyear Cords with the beveled All-Weather Tread and back them up with standard Goodyear Service

Uncle Wiggily

BEDTIME STORY Aug. 23
UNCLE WIGGILY AND PEPPER HASH.

Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy looked across the table at Uncle Wiggily. The rabbit gentleman was twinkling his pink nose, but he was eating very little. And this was strange, because there was cherry pie for desert.

"I think I know what is the matter with you, Uncle Wiggily," spoke Nurse Jane.

"Why, there is nothing the matter with me," said Uncle Wiggily.

"You aren't eating!" declared the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"That's because I was wondering what sort of an adventure I might have," answered Mr. Longears.

Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy shook her head.

"You are losing your appetite," she observed. "You are going to be ill, I'm afraid. I shall have to call in Dr. Possum."

"Oh, I'm all right!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Don't fuss over me, if you please, though it is very good of you to bother."

"No bother at all!" said Nurse Jane cheerfully. "I know just what you need—pepper hash!"

"Pepper hash!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "What is that?"

"It's chopped up cabbage with vinegar, salt and pepper on," explained the muskrat lady housekeeper. "It's the best thing in the world when you feel sort of slimpsy flimpsy like and lose your appetite. I'll make you some pepper hash."

Ho! Ho! laughed the Alligator.

"It sounds good," said Uncle Wiggily, hopeful like.

"It will be good;" declared Nurse Jane. "But," she went on, when she had looked in the pantry, "you'll have to go to the store and get me some pepper. I forgot I had none. I have the cabbage, the salt and the vinegar—everything with which to make pepper hash except the pepper. So please hop to the store and get me some."

"I will," promised Uncle Wiggily, and soon he was hopping over the fields and through the woods toward the grocery store.

"A little pepper, if you please," said Uncle Wiggily to the gentleman grocery dog.

"As much as you like," barked the dog. "Ker-choo! Ker-choo!" he sneezed.

"What's the matter; are you catching cold?" asked the bunny as the grocery dog handed him the package.

"No, it's the—ker-zoo—the pepper!" explained the dog. "It always makes me—ker-foo—sneeze."

"A-ker-choo—it does me, too!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, and he sneezed so hard that he dropped the money he was to pay for the pepper. Then the bunny and the grocery dog laughed and sneezed some more and the dog said:

"Better carry that pepper in your pocket if you don't want to sneeze all the way home."

"I—ker-zoo—guess so!" agreed the rabbit. So he put the pepper in his pocket and back toward his hollow stump bungalow he started hopping.

Uncle Wiggily was about half way there when, all of a sudden, out from under a log crawled the Skillery Scallery Alligator with the humps on his tail.

"Good morning to you!" bellowed the 'Gator, looking hungrily at Uncle Wiggily's ears. "Where have you been?"

"To the store to get some stuff so Nurse Jane can make pepper hash so I'll have a better appetite," answered the bunny politely.

"Ho' Ho!" laughed the Alligator. "Well, I don't need pepper hash or anything else to give me an appetite for what I am going to eat. I can nibble your ears, pepper hash or no pepper hash!"

"Perhaps you don't need the pepper hash, but I'll give you a little pepper!" laughed the bunny. He pulled the paper of pepper from his pocket and shook it in front of the 'Gator's nose.

"Ker-choo! Ker-zoo! Ker-foo!" sneezed the Alligator.

"Ker-choo! Ker-zoo! Ker-foo!" sneezed Uncle Wiggily.

But the Alligator, being so much larger, sneezed much harder. And he sneezed himself into a somersault, turning head over heels kerfloppo, and while the Alligator was turning somersaults Uncle Wiggily put the paper of pepper back in his pocket, stopped sneezing and ran safely home to his bungalow.

"Now for the pepper hash!" said Nurse Jane.

"Well, make it if you like," laughed the bunny, "but I had such a funny adventure that I am twice as hungry as a bear!" And he ate up all the cherry pie in the bungalow. After that he was all well, and he lived happily for many years. And if the wallpaper doesn't lie down and go to sleep on the carpet so it tickles the foot of the bed, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Rusty Tail.

"BLACK GOLD"

A Mystery Detective Story of Alameda County

by GEO. C. HENDERSON

CHAPTER 12.

Preparing to Die.

SYNOPSIS.

Napoleon Knott becomes involved in a treasure hunt for lost gold when Captain Soto Mayor and Felipe Ramon both are attacked and their feet burned to torture them into revealing the secret. Soto Mayor dies and old Felipe crazily rejoices because the secret is now safe. "They'll never make me tell," he declares.

Knott, by a ruse, gets to see Felipe's feet, finds red marks on them, tells Old Felipe Soto Mayor has sent him and induces the recluse to go with him to the Nuevo Mundo. When Old Felipe finds Captain Soto Mayor dead he laughs wildly and declares that his "secret is safe."

Knott tells Inspector Scott, who arrives on the scene, something of what he has discovered. They decide the same thug did up Soto Mayor and attacked Felipe. Two police officers searching the ship unearth shovels, picks, retorts, other treasure hunting tools. They decide the Captain was hunting a gold mine. One of the crew tells that before death Captain Soto Mayor kept motioning toward a statuette until his daughter took it in her hands, and kept saying "oro negro," meaning "black gold." Inspector Scott threatens to arrest Racquel and the crew.

Night comes, revealing Knott, Scott and the officers still on the Nuevo Mundo, awaiting doctor's permission to see Racquel, who is greatly perturbed. Stone conspires with Boogerty to prevent Knott from falling in love with Racquel. The "armored cruiser" Invincible, manned by youngsters from the Dump, playing at naval warfare, is chased away by Inspector Scott as it hovers around the Nuevo Mundo.

A scream coming from Racquel's room startles the men.

Answering the scream, the Inspector, Napoleon Knott and the others enter the girl's stateroom to find Racquel, clothes torn, cowering back in terror, while Boogerty sits astride Old Felipe, holding his hands to the floor. Knott consoles Racquel, who tells how the old recluse had entered her room to attack her when the negro interfered. In order to distract Knott's attention from Racquel, Boogerty blows on the police whistle and goes into contortions, as per his agreement with Stone. He says he is "breakin de spell of Venus." Knott begs Racquel to let him be her big daddy. On the floor he finds the broken statuette, with a sheet of onion skin paper protruding from the severed neck. Evidently Old Felipe was after this. It might explain why the Captain was so anxious his daughter should take the statuette. Knott picks it up. Racquel demands its return. Knott argues that it is evidence. They are about to agree when Boogerty again interrupts with his whistle blowing and contortions. Racquel grabs the document. Knott chases the negro out and, returning, finds she has locked the door against him.

Stone reveals that Knott is very susceptible to feminine lure; that he has lost other cases because of this susceptibility, and charges that already the fat detective is crazy about Racquel. Finding it impossible to quiz the girl, Inspector Scott leaves Knott and an officer on guard and goes ashore with Stone, Old Felipe and the negro. While Knott is on guard alone, a form sneaks aboard. It is Red Dan, powerful crook boss, Knott's most deadly enemy. He knocks on Racquel's door and presents her with letter of introduction, but Knott by clever strategy prevents him talking with Racquel and ushers him off the ship. Red Dan gives Knott until 10 o'clock to leave the city under pain of death.

The police officer says Red Dan is a bad bird to offend. Knott scoffs. Knott has breakfast with Racquel who puzzles him. Knott threatens to tell the police about the statuette paper. She promises to show it to him if he will not. Scott and Stone interrupt them. Scott, Stone and others discuss seriously Red Dan's ultimatum. Scott advises Knott to leave. Scott reveals that Tom Cannon, a taxicab man who hauled the man with the big box, has been slain near Livermore. Knott reveals a connection between the Soto Mayor, oro negro, footburning crime and the Cannon croak. Knott says, "Find the man who kidnaped Tom Cannon and you'll have the Soto Mayor assassin."

(Copyright, 1923, All Rights Reserved).

"I can't understand how you established a relationship between this Soto Mayor murder and the man who carried that box," said Stone, as they were being rowed ashore. "What has the box got to do with it?"

Tootles yawned sleepily and closed his eyes.

"I got a tip that a bird carrying a box tried to engage a taxicab on Broadway," he explained, a bit wearily. "Under the circumstances, the conclusion was inevitable. If my theory was right, this fellow was involved in the attack on Felipe and Soto Mayor. The Cannon croak tends to confirm my belief."

The boat grated against the wharf. Boogerty met them and assisted Napoleon Knott into the machine.

"A gen'man left dis letter at the house," he said, handing the detective a plain white envelope marked with the one word, KNOTT.

Tootles tore the end off absently and fished out the missive.

"Stone, I want you to locate Ray Turner, the blind boy and send him up to the apartment," Knott ordered. "Be sure you are not shadowed." He spread out the letter.

At first glance it appeared to be a perfectly blank sheet of paper. Closer inspection, however, disclosed two Roman numerals, written in the center of the page in red ink. These numerals made the figure 10. It was a warning from Red Dan.

Looking up Knott found Stone's eyes fixed on him anxiously. He handed the letter to his assistant with a laugh.

"More of Red Dan's melodramatics," he explained.

Professor Stone, reminded of their impending peril, looked around cautiously as if expecting an assassin to spring out of the ground.

Knott read his thoughts.

"Oh yes, I'm being spied on," he admitted, tolerantly. "See that fellow up the line there, fixing his motorcycle. I'll bet a five spot he tails us. Dan's not taking any chances on me hiding out. After you've found Turner, come up to my office Guy. We have work to do today."

As his touring car passed the stalled motorcycle en route to his quarters on Lakeshore avenue, Knott, looking into a mirror, saw the rider jump on his machine and follow.

"Go straight on across Fourteenth street," commanded the detective. "We'll soon see if this fellow is on our trail."

Instead of following the usual route downtown on Twelfth street, Boogerty drove the car across East Fourteenth street as commanded and turned up on Sixteenth, where he came to a halt just out of sight around the corner.

The trick worked. Hardly did Knott have time to turn to look out when the motorcycle roared around the turn, its excited driver looking in every direction for the quarry which he had lost. He saw Knott's car, apparently realized that he had been tricked, slowed down and then turned off onto a side street and disappeared from view.

"Dat fellow's gone," declared Boogerty, with a big sigh of relief. "Dis ain't no fun, waitin' to be blowed up. Ah gwine quit dis heah job, Misto Knott, unless yo all decides to take a trip."

"There's no danger until 10 o'clock, Boogerty," Knott assured him. "Our friend on the motorcycle is still following us, but he'll be more careful now."

Arriving at his apartment, Knott indulged in a cold shower and a change of linen, after which he sat down to a second breakfast prepared by the versatile negro. He managed to absorb a quantity of sliced pineapple, toast, bacon and eggs, two cups of coffee, after which he dusted off a big order of pork sausage and hot cakes, moistened with a third potion of Java.

When Stone arrived to report that Ray Turner would be in presently, he found the fat man reclining in a chair in the library, smoking lazily while contemplating the cold lake, upon which the sun now was spraying thin golden streaks. He did not in the least resemble a man upon whom the sentence of death or banishment had been pronounced by the most powerful crook in Western America.

"I've got a delicate job for you, Guy," said Tootles, addressing his assistant who at that moment was looking anxiously out of the window, searching the street for a possible enemy. "It's kidnaping a lady."

Professor Stone's short upper lip curled back still farther from his protruding teeth as he turned on the detective sharply.

"Kidnap a lady!" he exclaimed.

"Sure," replied Knott, placidly. "I want you to bring in the Toad—Stella, the husband killer. And don't use my car either. Rent a machine without a driver. Capture her, take her to our lumber wharf dump, make her take off her clothes and change into others, leave her rags and wig there and carry her off to the crazy house—the same one we used before for detention purposes. Have Joe hold her until I order her release. If she tries to squeal, threaten to take her back to prison. She'll stow the gab then. And pull this off so that Red Dan won't get wise. You've got just two hours. If you don't get her in that time, you'll be responsible for a catastrophe."

Professor Stone made a wry face.

"You're going after the wrong party," he objected. "The Toad's only a poor moron, a husband killer. Dan himself is the man you want to get."

Napoleon Knott turned his back on the professor.

"You're a fine fellow, Guy," he [illegible]

You object to everything you don't understand. Now get busy and don't argue. Send Boogerty in."

The negro servant found Knott with his eyes wrinkled, concentrating upon the problem that confronted him. As the colored man approached the table, the detective looked up.

"Get me that book Celebrated Criminals by Duke," he requested. "The big brown book on the third shelf. Duke, my dear Boogerty, gives us some very interesting information on the bandits of early California."

"Ain't dey enuf bandicks after yo now, widout huntin'-up no mo'," demanded the servant.

"Old ones are more interesting—more daring," replied the other. "In the old gold days, men rode out in the open and did their work. Black Bart came right down into the city and talked with the sheriff who was hunting for him. Today crooks cover up their acts—hire mercenaries to do their dirty work."

"De bandit whut tried to fuss yo up wid dynamite wasn't no shrinkin' lily," objected Boogerty. "Misto Stone he says they's gwine kill yo shuah unless yo gets outta heah."

Knott thumbed through the book and looked at the clock. It was 8:30 a. m. He had an hour and thirty minutes until 10 o'clock.

"What do you think I shold do, Boogerty," he inquired, absently.

Boogerty Washington Smith smiled eagerly.

"Now yo talkin' sense," he declared. "Wheah yo should go is out. Red Dan's gang is too numerous. Deys gwine plant yo shuah nuf. Me an' you is gwine away."

"Greely said 'Go West,' but I can't go farther west without going east, to the Orient," objected the fat man. "So I'm up against it. I can't go west without going east. But let's can the persiflage, Boogerty. We have work to do.

"Get my suitcase."

The servant capered across the room and came back lugging a big leather suitcase. "Is yo'all gwine away?" he asked, eagerly.

"Put my other suit of clothes, hat and overcoat in it," continued Tootles, ignoring the question, "Where's that bust of General Grant?"

Too joyous over the prospect of departure even to ask questions, Boogerty rescued Grant's bust from a shelf, dusted it off and dumped it into the suitcase.

"Bring along those pillows and get me a big ball of twine," Knott ordered. "Hand me that bottle of red ink."

Boogerty handed the fat man the ink and then stood regarding him, his face twisted into an expression of mystification.

"Whut yo' all gwine do wid statootes, twine and red ink?" he asked.

"Put everything in there and strap it tight," was the next order. "Now take it down to my launch, put the suitcase in it and fix the craft up for my usual morning ride. Be sure there's gasoline and oil for the motor. Trot along now."

Casting doubtful glances at his employer, the little darky departed, lugging the suitcase.

Scarcely had he left the room than the buzzer sounded three times. Knott pressed a button, a panel swung back and Ray Turner entered. With his sightless eyes staring straight before him, he walked directly over to Knott's desk, passing around a chair as if some seventh sense told him of its location.

"What's the dope, Ray?" asked the fat man.

"They say Red Dan's going to get you, Mr. Knott," declared the blind boy, anxiously. "Slugger Wilson and Eddy the Torch are watching this place. Sammy Webb who peddles papers at the Gates of Hell, telephoned that 'Monkey Face' Ross picked up someone there, but that he couldn't spot them because all the curtains in the limousine were drawn."

"Nothing new about the man with the box?" queried Tootles.

"You're learning fast, Ray," Knott said approvingly. "Get back to the Dump and keep your eye on things. I'm going for a ride on Lake Merritt. If you get the goods on anyone, leave a note in the regular way."

The blind boy's face lightened with pleasure at the praise, but clouded again instantly.

"Don't take a chance, Tootles," he begged. "Say it would break up the gang, if you got killed. Red Dan's a bad guy. He nailed Thorwald Olsen the time he turned stoolie and Bob Cavassa died the night before he was to go on the witness stand against the Gorilla."

Napoleon Knott patted the boy on the back reassuringly and ushered him out of the room. Then he came back to the long table and stood for several seconds in deep thought. He heard Boogerty return and the clattering of plates told him that the negro was working in the kitchen. His eyes wandered to the clock. It was 9:45.

According to the edict of Red Dan, he had just 15 minutes to live.

With the assistance of his servant he descended to the lakeshore and clambered into his small motor launch. He scarcely heard the protests of Boogerty, who was growling about him going for a boat ride when criminals were seeking his life.

He settled himself in the leather seat, with the suitcase at his feet.

"Now remember Boogerty that whatever happens, you are to stay here and take care of the house," he instructed the colored man.

"Is sumpin gwine happen?" queried Boogerty.

"Yes, I should say the fireworks will start around 10 o'clock."

Boogerty shivered, glanced around apprehensively and then studied his employer's face. This fat fellow was a perpetual puzzle. Boogerty never could understand him.

"If you want to be in on the fun, I'd advise you to sit there on the park bench and watch me cut circles around the lake."

Boogerty pushed the launch clear of the wharf and then seated himself on the bench indicated as the craft sped away.

"Misto Knott shuah has gone clean off his haid," he muttered, shaking his own black head. "When he sees he's gwine away from heah [illegible]

What Does Your Husband Do?

A Mystery a Day

WHO WAS MME. DU BARRY?

About the middle of the reign of Louis XIV there lived in Paris a cook by the name of Fabian Becu, a remarkably handsome man, who found favor in the eyes of a certain countess of Categny, who carried her infatuation so far as to marry him. Their wedded life, however, was not of long duration and after bearing him a daughter, of whom nothing is known, the countess died and left her affairs in great disorder.

Becu returned to his kitchen and entered the services of the beautiful Mme. Ludrus, one of the favorites of Louis XIV. Later, however, Mme. Ludrus left the court and retired to her country seat in Lorraine, accompanied by her staff, of which Becu was a member. Here Fabian married a fellow servant by the name of Jeanne Husson and passed out of the life of his daughter by his previous marriage and consequently out of the life of his granddaughter, who was destined to become one of the outstanding figures of the French Revolution—"so dazzling in her beauty that even her enemies dared not but admit it.

Known to history as "Marie Jeanne Gomard de Vaubernier, Comtesse Du Barry," the parish register of her birthplace describes her as "Jeanne, natural daughter of Anne Becu—born August 19, 1743."

It will be noted that in the certificate the name of the father is omitted, nor has the question of the paternity of the famous Du Barry been settled to this day, notwithstanding the fact that it has given rise to interminable discussions between historians and at least one long and costly lawsuit. The majority of those who have investigated the matter are of the opinion that Jeanne Becu's father was a certain Gomard De Vaubernier, while others maintain that the "Gomard" which later appeared in her name is traceable to Jean Jacque Gomard, a familiar figure in Paris in the middle of the ighteenth century.

When Jeanne was 6 years old her mother drifted to Paris and the girl was placed in a convent, where, as the account books of the time show, her total expenses amounted to the munificent sum of $2.40 a month, which forms an interesting contrast to a list of her expenditures during the five years in which she was the favorite of Louis XIV. The list, admittedly incomplete, includes such items as "goldsmiths and jewelers, $424,000; to merchants of silks, satins and linens, $147,500; for furniture, pictures, etc., $23,500; to gilders, sculptors and workers in marble, $75,000; to one riding habit of white Indian silk, $1200; to the embroidering of one court dress, $2100."

After leaving the convent Jeanne supported herself by the sale of cheap jewelry on the streets of Paris, but chanced one day to attract the attention of a Mme. Legrade, an eccentric woman of society, who hired her as a companion. A little later she met Jean, Vicomte Du Barry, and through his influence was presented at court, where Louis fell in love with her almost immediately.

Unlike most of the affairs of the French king, this aws not the infatuation of an hour. He fell instantly and completely in love with the unknown girl—and never fell out of love with her as long as he lived.

In reply to remonstrances connected with the lack of information as to the parentage of Jeanne which appeared upon her birth record, the king replied: "Let the right authorities make her legitimate." Accordingly messages were sent to her birthplace and a new birth certificate drawn up, together with a document attesting her mother's legal marriage to M. De Gomard De Vaubernier.

Then followed one of the most remarkable careers in history—a career which reached its climax in the order which Louis gave for the famous diamond necklace which did so much to hasten the French Revolution. Shortly after the outbreak of the Reign of Terror, Du Barry was arrested by order of her Bengalese servant, who had attained a position of importance under the new government. She was sentenced to death and beheaded the same day. But not even the efforts of more than a century of almost constant search into her antecedents have served to solve the mystery of her birth.

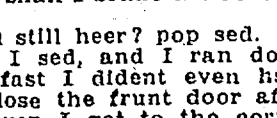
SCIENCE and INVENTION



The race has grown up through ages of experience with the inbred racial expectation of death. The law of the subconscious mind is suggestion. It is the body building power, the superintendent which accepts without question the orders or impressions handed down by the conscious mind and puts them into execution. We have been handing down the suggestion [illegible] to these suggestions, and broken down by wrong living, improper food, insufficient exercise, too little oxygen in the lungs, not enough drinking water, and a hundred other forms of abuse, it has fulfilled the racial expectation.

Now science is showing that there is nothing inherent in the germ cell to justify old age and death. The deadly fallacy of "Three score years and ten" is being exploded. Modern methods of hygiene have greatly increased the span of the average life. A few mighty souls have lived long past the hundred mark just to show it can be done.

Dr. Alexis Carrel reported to the French Academy of Medicine in 1912 that he had kept an animal heart, isolated from the body, alive and beating for several months. The members were skeptical and many refused to believe the report. The years have passed and the heart is still alive and beating. The cells are all healthy, show no signs of disease, decay, death. They seem to contain the potency of immortality.

If the heart of a living organism can live indefinitely isolated from the body, under proper protective conditions, it seems to indicate that the principle of old age and death is not inherent to the cell life, but that these conditions are introduced from without. No tree has ever died of any internal condition, but always because assailed by some destructive force outside of itself. The same is apparently true of the human body. When we become wiser than we now are and learn how to protect ourselves from all ravages from without and to obey the laws of life, physical, mental and spiritual, we will live [illegible] effective lives that shall be [illegible]

What Sort of Man Should Your Daughter Marry?

Gives One Mother's Answer

(Copyright, 1923)

"A Man of About Thirty With a Future But No Past, Who Makes His Way by His Own Energy, Who Is Interesting, Generous and Good-Natured"—Is One Mother's Choice

WHAT sort of a husband would you pick out for your daughter? A group of women were discussing this subject recently, and one of them said: "My daughter is a modern girl and she neither desires my advice about choosing a husband, nor would she demean herself by listening to any words of wisdom that might fall from my lips on the subject. She will probably choose a man for her life mate because he has romantic eyes, or hair that looks like a trained seal, or because he plays a good game of golf, or his dancing step matches hers.

"BUT if I could choose a husband for my daughter my first care would be to pick out a man without a past and with a future. I'd select a youth who could file a good, clean bill of health along with his marriage license, for I don't want my little daughter to have to help harvest any wild oats crop.

"THE idea of reforming a man is one that is singularly appealing to the vanity of young girls. But we older women know that it's a miracle that mighty few women ever work, and when they do it isn't worth the time and labor it costs to do it. I'd pick out, to begin with, a man who didn't need to be reformed. No use in taking damaged goods when you can have good stuff at the same price.

"IF I were picking out my daughter's husband I would cast a prophetic eye on his future. I would try to guess what he would be twenty-five years hence—whether he would still be a salesman or the head of the sales department of his firm; whether he would be a struggling, shabby, discouraged lawyer or a doctor, or at the top of his profession.

"THIS isn't so hard to do because, barring sickness and acts of God, as the shipping manifests say, the go-getters always get it, and the pepless never do. Dreamers and poets and Peter Pans make fascinating lovers but poor husbands. The man who hold their wives' affections are the men who know how to get along in the world, for when romance begins to fade nothing takes its place in a wife's heart like pride in her husband's achievements. Besides, most husbands are just husbands after you have been married ten years, but a comfortable home is always a comfortable home.

"IF I were picking out my daughter's husband I would say with the Psalmist, 'Give me neither poverty nor riches.' I would not pick out a rich man for my daughter's husband because the boy who has had much money is almost invariably spoiled. He is nearly always selfish, undisciplined, without self-control. He has been able to indulge every whim and follow every fancy, and he finds it almost impossible to make the sacrifices and submit to the discipline of matrimony. Look how often brilliant marriages end in disaster.

"NOR is the girl who marries a rich young man even secure financially, because the man who has never earned any money does not know how to take care of it, and I've seen many a girl who started off on her honeymoon on a private yacht walking in her old age to save carfare.

"WHILE I would not pick out a rich husband for my daughter, neither would I select one who was abjectly poor, because while it is true you cannot buy happiness with money, it is equally true that you must have money in order to be happy. You can't think about the state of your hearts when your stomach is crying for food.

"YOU must have a certain amount of comfort and freedom from anxiety in which to invite your soul, and no couple is likely to love long when they have brought upon each other the misery of a marriage that makes life a horrible struggle with the bill collector and a daily crucifixion of very taste and habit. I would not choose for my daughter a husband who could not support her in reasonable comfort, but I would rather she married a man who was making $5000 a year by his own efforts than one who had an income of $50,000 a year that he had inherited. I would choose for her an energetic young chap, who had proved that he had the ability in him to climb, and with whom she could share the most precious experience that ever comes to any woman, that of helping along the man she loves.

"I WOULD choose for my daughter's husband a man about thirty years of age—no boy, because boys have not come to themselves and do not know the kind of a wife they really want and need. Also, boys are tyrannical and hard to get along with, for life has not disciplined them nor taught them tact or patience.

"NOR would I choose an old man who has become so set in his habits and ways that he cannot adapt himself to the give-and-take of matrimony. Likewise, he is out of sympathy with youth. He has had his fling. He is tired of dancing and theateres and parties, and when he gets married he wants to stay put, and he forgets that a young wife is aching for all the pleasures of which he is weary. But the man of thirty is still young enough to enjoy things, young enough to get a girl's viewpoint and enter into her hopes and plans, yet he is old enough to be willing to settle down to the business of life.

"I'D CHOOSE for my daughter's husband the man who was generous but no spendthrift, because between a man who has a Yale lock on his purse and one who has holes in his pockets there is small choice.

"I'D pick out for her husband a man who was educated and interested in a wide variety of things besides his own particular shop, because after the billing and cooing of courtship is over there are going to be forty or fifty years in which a woman's happinets is going to depend on whether her husband bores her to tears, or whether he hands out a spellbinding line of conversation.

"ABOVE all, I'd pick out for my daughter's husband a man who was good-natured and cheerful and kindly, for in the long pull of matromony it's a man's disposition that counts, and a wife can forgive every other sin to the husband who is a little ray of sunshine around the house, and on whose tenderness and understanding she can always count."

"IT'S a great pity our daughters don't let us pick out their husbands for them," said another woman. "I wonder," said the first woman.

SAVING COUPONS.

Time swiftly flies—
It seems not many years ago—
That I sat in an easy chair—
And blew rank smoke out on the air—
When my wife said with smiling eyes—
"I've got for you a great surprise—
Today I bought some nice cigars—
The man said they were—Jolly Tars—
And got a guarantee from him—
That they'd not cause your head to swim—
Ten coupons with each box he gave—
And said if these coupons I'd save—
Until I got four thousand more—
Then I could come down to his store—
And he would give me such a prize—
That I would not believe my eyes—
So as you smoke such rank cigars—
Why not from now buy—Jolly Tars—
There is a woman friend of mine—
Whose husband won't come home to dine—
Unless he brings coupons a score—
From cigars bought at this man's store—
And she trades them for many things—
From phonographs to diamond rings—
Now dear I know you will agree—
For you are just as nice as he"—
That was the start and from that day—
I've smoked these snipes that's made of hay—
And brought the coupons to my wife—
She loves them as she loves her life—
And every night she brings them out—
And counts them over with a shout—
It pleases me to see her smile—
So—Jolly Tars—my hours beguile—
I smoke them till things start to spin—
But light another with a grin—
For every ten cigars I buy—
She bakes for me a juicy pie—
My doctor gave me quite a start—
He said I had tobacco heart—
But when I pass that coupon store—
Of Jolly Tars I buy a score—
Then smoking like a furnace stack—
With joy I take my homeward track—
My smiling wife stands at the gate—
And says that I'm an hour too late—
But when I place within her hand—
My coupons—why the world looks grand—
Ten years have passed since I began—
To smoke according to her plan—
She figured up the other night—
When she got through her eyes shone bright—
She said as she danced o'er the floor—
"I only need two thousand more"—
Then she looked through the premium book—
With eyes that held an eager look—
Then said—"I'll go down to that store—
When I have saved two thousand more—
And buy for each—oh bless my soul—
A handsome cut-glass finger bowl."

The Adventures of Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy

by Johnny Gruelle

Copyright by JOHNNY GRUELLE. All Rights Reserved.

RAGGEDY ANN and Raggedy Andy and little Ned Gnome, after they had left the two mean little old Witches fastened with their hands in the hole in the tree had run through the deep, deep woods until they came to a place where pop corn popped up from a hole in the ground and rolled around in candy.

This made lovely pop corn balls and little Ned Gnome and the Raggedys ate as many as they wished.

"I wonder how long the two mean little old Witches will be fastened with their hands in the hole in the tree?" little Ned Gnome said.

"I do not know!" Raggedy Ann replied as she picked up another pop corn ball and started eating it.

THE CANDY AND POP CORN WAS ALL OVER THEIR CLOTHES.

Ned Gnome had left the two Witches with their hands fastened in the hole, in the tree, the two mean little old Witches, Wanda and Winda Witch wondered how long they would have to sit there too.

"How will we ever get our hands out of this tree?" Wanda Witch asked.

"I do not know!" Winda Witch replied, "Raggedy Ann or Raggedy Andy must have made the hole in the tree close upon our hands. One of the Raggedys has a Wishing Pebble and the other has a Wishing Stick, so it was easy for them to catch us this way!"

"If you will reach in my pocket and get out my piece of blue bottle magical charm, Winda Witch, I will charm the hole in the tree and we will get our hands out," Wanda Witch said. So Winda Witch reached in Wanda Witch's pocket and got out the piece of blue bottle charm.

Then Wanda Witch held the charm in her left hand, for her right hand was fastened in the tree, and said, "Higgledy-piggledy—my black hen!" which is a very magical thing to say if you have a piece of blue bottle charm and the hole in the tree opened and the two mean little old Witches were free. "Now we will get upon the flying broom and soon catch the Raggedys!" Wanda Witch cried.

When the flying broom came up to the Raggedys, there they were, with Little Ned Gnome eating pop corn balls at the magical pop corn ball grounds.

"Ha! ha! ha! You thought we would still be fastened in the tree, did'nt you?" Wanda Witch howled at the Raggedys as she and Winda Witch flew up on the broom.

But, before either of the two mean little old Witches could get off the flying broom in a ladylike manner, Raggedy Andy made a wish to himself, and before you could say, "three little pigs went to market," the flying broom kicked up in the air just like a bucking horse and rolled the two mean little Witches right into the sticky candy and pop corn. So, when the Witches stood up it looked like they had been out in a hard snow storm, for the candy and pop corn was all over their clothes and in their haid and even sticking on their noses. "Ugh!" Wanda and Winda Witch cried, "This is too sticky for me! We will run home and wash the candy out of our hair and then we will come back and capture you!"

"Hurry up!" Raggedy Andy laughed. "For we may not be here if you stay away too long."

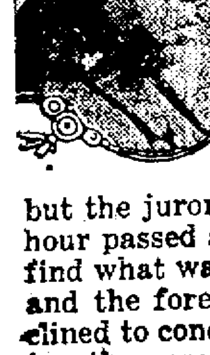
My Favorite Stories by Irvin S. Cobb



The Juror Who Was Fair

In Arizona, a jury was impaneled to hear the evidence in a criminal charge. At the conclusion of the trial his honor, on the bench, instructed the jurors that they must find for the defendant, as the preponderance of the evidence strictly was in his favor. The twelve men then retired to make their verdict.

The prisoner sat beaming in expectation of a prompt release from custody, but the jurors failed to return to the courtroom. Half an hour passed and the judge, losing patience, sent a clerk to find what was causing the delay. The jurors filed in, then, and the foreman stated that one man had absolutely declined to concur with the other eleven but insisted on arguing the case. His honor called upon the obdurate one to explain: "Well, jedge," said the juror, "this here don't look like a fair deal to me."

"Didn't I tell you," said the court, "that the preponderance of the evidence was in favor of this accused?"

"Yes, you done that," said the juror, "but what I claims is that ef we prepon on one side we've just naturally got to prepon some of the other side, too."

Touching the Heights

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

THE tall and the short man, ragged of garb, walked the correct streets of the suburban village of Dwight-on-the Heights. In front of a structure built in many woods and painted as many shades of pink, green and blue, the tall man halted the other.

"Did yer ever try bein' a hod genius?"

"Not me. I never carried a hod in me life. In fack, I considers the question an insult."

The tall man expressed his disguest.

"When I says hod genius, I mean queer one. Don't be so bloomin' smart but take a look at that sign, if yer can read. I am perfecting a plan. C'mon."

"Ye Arte Guild of Dwight-on-the Heights"—

"I can read all right, but if that is spelled right I'm a hod-carrier like what you said, and if you have any idears about Artie Guilds I'll bet they is lulus."

Over coffee and doughnuts the tall man elaborated. "When a crowd of high-brows calls themselves Ye Something or Other they is my meat. I am an artist, mebbe you are. Nobody knows how much of an artist he is until somebody what oughta know better tells him. How much money have we got?"

There was enough to buy several large squares of drawing paper, pencils and charcoal. The two retired to the bank of a stream and for two days the tall man, his tongue in his cheek, labored to surprising effect. Sometimes he traced figures from advertisements in a newspaper, figures which he altered by enlarging the hands and feet and by substituting a heavy and careless outline. Features he ignored.

"The secret of troo art," the tall man said, "is to make all your figgers look like they was weighted down with misery or half blotted out with sin. When in doubt, smudge. And allus give 'em big 'ands."

The ladies of Ye Arte Guild were met to examine a loan collection of prints and to hear a lecture by one of their number when a tall man with a square package under his arm knocked timidly at the door. The tall man was looking as meek and as soulful as he could.

"Will you pardon me, please? I have heard of this guild and of the pictures you have here. May I just step in for a moment?"

The ragged man in the presence of the well-dressed women did not seem to realize he was out of place. Indeed, he had eyes for nothing but the pictures. Rapt and silent he gazed and then, from the depths of his frame, came a regretful, envious sigh.

"There are some to whom the sight of good pictures is as necessary as food or drink," he said smiling gently. "Me, I have had no education and no opportunity except that of travel. I have been in the South Seas where the natives express their artistic souls in tattoo. I have sat under gray wharves and seen tugboats go by like great fat ducks and when the night came I have lost my senses in the squirmings of lights reflected in the waters." He became apologetic.

"Excuse a poor artist. Thank you."

Here was a character. The square package! They must not let this man go.

"And you are an artist?" It was the woman who had lectured. "Won't you let us see what you have done?"

"Remember, I have no training. I only draws because something seems to make me." They were all eagerness now. The drawings of the tall stranger were placed against the wall while the group stepped back to appraise. In the moment of silence each awaited the cue from the one who had lectured.

"So bold!" she said. "Absolutely untrammeled!"

"Free," said another, "as the wide spaces!"

"Art without fetters," a thin voice cut in, "the true expression of one who has felt deeply."

The tall man bowed his head and his shoulders shook. "If yer knew how much a word of appreciation means! I will leave these here. I will go my way." He rubbed his sleeve across his eyes and edged to the door.

They halted him, held a hurried consultation, and with some timidity voiced a request.

"It is not what they are worth. Genuine art is priceless, but we would feel better if you would take this, if you would give us the honor of purchasing your work for our gallery." Put that way, who could refuse. The tall man straightened his shoulders and there was a look of pride in his eyes.

"I am honored," he said and he departed walking as a victor from the field.

"Now yer sees," he said to the short man a little later, "the advantage of knowing what is what in the high-brow line. Bein' a hod character allus pays divvydends."

Mr. Wilson—I can't decide whether to go in for painting or poetry.

Miss Tilson—Oh, I'd go in for painting if I were you.

Mr. Wilson—Ah, then you have seen some of my paintings?

Miss Tilson—No, but I read some of your poetry.

Revelations of a Wife

The Reason Dicky Told Madge He Was Worried.

"I don't like the looks of that fellow," Dicky, with his hands thrust in his pockets, stared after the ingratiating chauffeur as he rapidly made his way down-stairs.

"Did you see him give us all the once-over?" he went on. "Looked as if he suspected something was wrong. What's phony about our looks, do you think?"

Claire Foster's face crimsoned quickly and her lips parted as if to speak. I knew she meant to reveal the indiscreet comment she had just made to the effect that we were not anxious to have our names on the letter-box downstairs in the hall, and I hastened to forestall her. Dicky had not heard it, and it would do no good for him to learn it now.

"Nothing at all," I returned blithely. "He was simply so pleased at his tip that he gave us all the 'once-over,' as you say, so that he would be sure to spot us another time. Dicky's especial weakness is tipping taxi drivers," I went on glibly, turning to Claire. "If one of the gentry has ever seen him before, he makes his taxi turn somersaults whenever he spots my husband."

Claire laughed nervously, but Dicky still looked serious.

"Haven't I Heard—"

"That's all right for nonsense," he said, "but the fact remains, I don't like that fellow's looks or his actions."

"Do you think he's seen us before?" I asked with a vivid recollection of Harry Underwood's warning.

"No-o," he said slowly, "but he's got us jotted down in his mental card index now, all right. Something or other, I'd like to know what, gave him an idea that we didn't exactly court observation, and he has that little fact filed away. If he ever hears anybody inquiring for us—"

He broke off abruptly and busied himself with getting the bags out of the narrow hallway.

I shook my head at Claire Foster, in a warning that she should not betray her responsibility for the chauffeur's suspicion, and she turned abruptly, walked to the window and stood looking out of it so that her flushed face was hidden from us.

Dicky came into the living-room and strode up and down its brief length with every line of him spelling pertubation. I wondered if he, too, were thinking of the words Harry Underwood had uttered. For fear his attention might be attracted to Claire, I said the first thing which came into my head.

"Haven't I heard you say that a taxi driver's litany was 'See nothing, hear nothing, speak nothing?'"

Claire Surprises Dicky.

"It should be," he replied, "and the old flight-hawk horse-cab drivers lived up to it. Many of the taxi men do also, but some of them are either actual or potential blackmailers, and it's said a 'wise' few are affiliated with the criminal gangs which infest the city. Well, I'm glad he hasn't anything real on us. Let's forget him. I'm about starved. What about some dinner? Shall we go out to a restaurant, or shall I dance down stairs and have a meal sent in?"

Claire Foster turned from the window, her face alight with enthusiasm.

Oh, let's have one sent in!" she cried. "I think that will be the coyote's howl. If there's anything more appetite-inspiring than a waiter coming in with trays and steaming dishes I don't know what it is, do you?"

She threw me the question perfunctorily, and chattered on as if—I told myself a bit resentfully—she were the only one to be considered.

"Be sure you remember my favorite dishes," she admonished Dicky with a lifted forefinger. "I warn you, I am very particular as to the broiling of a chicken, and too much pepper in my soup makes me cross for days."

Her tone was the type I have heard used by pampered, tyrannical women to their men folk who have spoiled them. It is one which Dicky has never heard from me or any of his feminine relatives, and I cast a sly glance at him to see how he liked it.

To all outward appearances he was pleasantly amused at her audacity. He was grinning widely at her, his eyes registering the flattering attention which girls like Claire demand from men. But I, who know every line of his face, had caught the slightly uplifted eyebrows at her first speech which betrayed that he was as surprised as I at the girl's rudeness.

Listen, World!

PRESENTLY you'll be reading and hearing a great deal about the Twentieth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The Twentieth Amendment promises to raise quite as much of a rumpus as the Eighteenth, if not more. It is called the "Equality Amendment."

Perhaps you thought that equality between the sexes had arrived in America. But Mary Ellen Higgins doesn't think so. Mary Ellen Higgins lives across the railroad tracks. In private life she is Mrs. Bert Higgins. For the other eight hours of the day she is a saleslady at the ribbon counter at Worth's big department store. She has been a saleslady for six years and Mrs. Bert Higgins for four. And every Saturday night of those four years, Bert has taken her wages from her as soon as she arrived home.

At first he did it as a joke, and they spent most of the money on joint "larks." Bert had a good job in those days, and Mary Ellen worked with happy dreams of the little house they were going to buy "up on the hill" and the babies they were going to have when they could afford them.

Then Bert's job stopped and he began to have long periods of rest. Now it's more rest than job. They don't joke any more when Bert takes that pay check. Mary gives it up sulkily and they quarrel terribly when Bert loses most of it that night in a "little game down at Clancey's."

"Why does she give him her money?" you ask indignantly. "I never heard of such an outrage!"

The United States does not consider it an outrage, Pal. The law of this land says that Bert Higgins has full control over every cent his wife earns. Mary will not leave him nor divorce him because she does not believe in divorce. She works, because unless she works she will starve. And she gives up her money because, under our present laws, she can't keep it.

Are you still so sure that equality has arrived in this land? That is only one of the things which the Twentieth Amendment deals with. There are many others.

(Copyright, 1923.)

Being an ardent believer in "reform from within" I wrote the other day about Eunice—Eunice who had aspirations of changing an altogether worthless piece of humanity into a model husband. Did I agree with Eunice that it could be done?

I DID NOT.

A helping word and a friendly grip have pulled many a mortal from the brink of oblivion, but it needs SPUNK to stay away, and if you haven't got that spunk, some man or woman's life is going to be made miserable weeping over your weaknesses.

A soul can't be saved unless it's made of something more substantial than gelatin.

Here is a woman who knows from experience that what I say is true:

Dear Geraldine: Tell that little girl who thinks she is going to reform a man after she marries him that she is badly mistaken. That's what I did, and I've been trying to reform him for five years.

Every time he goes out on a "time" (gambling and drinking) he comes home, when he's broke, and tells me he will never do it again, but his promises are like bubbles—they break.

Besides gambling and drinking he borrows money and I'm the one who suffers, as I have to pay his debts. So tell her to watch her step and be wise. GIVE HIM UP. He will not amount to anything.

A. R. S.

Maybe you have religious reasons for keeping his home fires burning—if not, it's my opinion that you would be happier if your patience was like his promises—broken. He's not the sort that could break my heart, but I'm terribly sorry for your shattered hopes, Pal.

Here's once I'm PROUD. I am, indeed. On August 12, I said my say about the Womanly Woman and the Fancy Work. I did not decry the splendid craft of sewing. I said that every girl should know how to sew. I said that the vocation of home-maker was the highest and "best paying" job in the world.

BUT I also say things about the woman who made frilly frills, "edgie" edges, and who, in consequence acquired a viewpoint like the following:

Dear Geraldine: I have been tempted to write to you quite often but have never taken the time. No, it's not for advice. I certainly can't imagine how some people can take your advice seriously. You don't like to hear credit given to the "wanderer," nevertheless he certainly has character and deserves all the credit possible for serving his country as he did. All the boasting that was done certainly was done by you, dear Jerry, and not by the Wanderer.

So you think fancy work should be considered an ancient pastime? I happen to be one of the girls of today to indulge in this pastime (and a great deal of it on the street cars.) I certainly must be out of date, and according to you, I had better cast my sewing aside and do a bit of newspaper reading (and read the wonderful advice of Geraldine.) That's quite a joke to me, as I usually find plenty of time for reading as well as sewing, especially fancy work. Oh, yes, and I work eight hours a day, too.

No, I'm not a co-ed, Jerry dear, and don't indulge in petting parties. Not exactly a sour old maid, either. I have loads of fun and a raft of friends. I have bobbed hair and above all am blonde, dress as modern as the average girl.

Oh! horrors, to think I should set myself back by doing fancy work. The joke is on you, Jerry. I have a wonderful picture of you trying to sew. It's too bad you can't hear the razzing some real girls of today are giving you.

It seems the only ones that get a very encouraging answer from you are the flappers.

That little girl that wrote to you about having to meet her friend on the corner surely wasn't given a fair answer. You called her a little sneak, etc. Very encouraging, Jerry, when not very long before you gave two girl friends so much credit for associating with ex-college men. Especially when they said they had to go so far as to use a hat pin to protect themselves. I suppose a person has to use hat pins to keep a man from kissing her or putting his arm around her waist. That's good and fair to some, but not the majority of people, Geraldine.

Now that I've had my little say I hope you'll think it over and publish this letter, as I would love to hear the loving answer it will bring.

JUST A READER "23."

Ye, gods, little girl, can't you read? Your eyes must be all right, if you can do fancy work, but haven't you any receptacle in which to store what you read or any "savvy" at all?

Since you sling a nasty personal pen and suggest (very sneeringly, my dear) that it would improve you to read the Geraldine page, I modestly state that you're right. It would do you a world of good. You'd learn about friendliness and fair play and also about tragedies that we'd all like to help. You'd learn about LIFE as it's lived around you.

And Wanderer—you liked him? Quite a few women did. I haven't the slightest doubt that he fought for his country, served well, but I still maintain there was nothing MANLY in his method of slinging mud at women while standing behind his war record. One woman, aye, two women, disappointed him, THEREFORE ALL WOMEN WERE ROTTEN, took men's jobs, lied, cheated and, in fact, were the scum of the earth. I can find no excuse for that sort of thing, even when backed by a score of medals and honors.

If you can—well, there's the fancy work mind again.

Ah, come on, let's make up. You had a fling at me and I've answered back in as nasty a way as I could. Hist, I have an ulterior motive, too. I want to know the mysterious significance of being a "BLONDE."

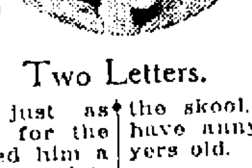
The Story of Jackie Coogan As Told By His Mother

To ZOE BECKLEY



Two Letters.

The other morning, just as Jackie was leaving home for the studio, the postman handed him a letter. It was a queer-looking letter because all that was written on the envelope was:

Jackie Coogan.

Not another word. No address. Nothing.

Jackie looked at it a long time. "How did you know where to bring it?" he asked the postman.

"Oh, well, I guessed," said he with a grin. "At Christmas time I have hundreds of letters just addressed to 'Santa Claus' and I know where to take them."

"Where?" asked Jackie, wondering.

"Why, there's a man down in Los Angeles, who once told me to bring him all the letters I got with just 'Santa Claus' on them and he'd see they were attended to. I guess him and Santa's got some sort of an understanding. Anyhow, the kids that writes 'em, always gets what they ask for."

The postman went on down the street, and Jackie looked at me.

"Muddi-dear! That's a great idea Let's read this letter and see if we can't answer it the way Santa Claus does—with that man's help."

The letter read as follows:

"Dear Jackie Coogan:

"I seen you in a play and you had on cloes as old as worn out as mine. But they say you are a rich boy not a pore boy at all like you look in the pitcher. Will you please be as kind to send me anything you can spare for cloes as I would lke to go to skool and can't go because I have no cloes that is right for skool. You have to have shoes becaus it is three mile to the skool. Pleas help me if you have anny to spare. I am eight yers old.

"EDDIE ———."

Jackie looked up into my face. "Muddi-dear, that's terrible," he said.

"Yes, dear, it is. Shall we help him?"

"Muddi-dear—of course Let's go right back in the house and go through those things you've saved—all the suits I've had in the pictures."

"But, darling, mother wants to keep those little suits. Don't you know I've kept every single suit you've ever worn in pictures, even the ragged ones from 'The Kid' and the old sweater and pants from 'Circus Days.' I couldn't give them away. Besides, they're rags."

A moment's silence, and then.

"Muddi-dear?"

"Yes."

"I've got eleven dollars in my petty cash box down at the studio and four dollars right here in my clothes, from my regular allowance. Couldn't I buy him a suit down at 'The Broadway Store' and send him a letter to call for it?"

"I think you could, dear."

So here is the letter Jackie wrote:

"Dear Eddie:

"I am pretty small for my age so probably you could not wear my clothes. But there is a suit waiting for you down at the Broadway Store in Los Angeles and also a pair of shoes because you must go to school. I never went to school myself but that is because I have not the time. My teacher comes to me, but it is all the same and I wish you good luck.

The Why of Superstitions

by H. Irving King

SEWING ON THE BUTTON.

If a girl sews a button on the clothing of a single man of marriageable age it is a sign that she will marry him within the year. Almost anybody in the rural districts of New England can tell you that and perhaps the superstition is found in other sections. At least superstitions of a kindred nature are found in many parts both of this country and Europe. The superstition is based upon that phase of sympathetic magic known as the doctrine of knots. The making of a physical knot of binding force produces, on the theory of like causing like, a spiritual effect of the same nature.

As has been said before, to the ancients what was associated in thought was associated in fact. Knitting and sewing were placed in this philosophy in the same category as knots. All three conveyed the idea of uniting. When a maiden, therefore, sews a button on the coat of a bachelor the union of the button and the coat by means of the thread suggests the union of herself and the young man upon whose garment she is operating. This sets up the sympathetic magic of like producing like and the two young people are by its operation bound together, even as the button is bound to the coat. The setting of the time within which they will be married at "within a year," is merely the suggestion of a reasonable time for the magic to take effect and is frequently omitted. The point of the superstition is that they will be married before long.

Mrs. Ford Is One Favorite For Golf Title

She Eliminated Mrs. Phil Wand on Second Round At Lincoln Park.

By W. D. McNICOLL.

Mrs. C. F. Ford continues toward the final in the San Francisco woman's championship by comparatively saf e margin yesterday. She eliminated Mrs. Phil Wand by 5-4. RECORD ENTRY LIST.

A record entry of 470 players has been received for the fifth annual city championship, which is played over the municipal links at Lincoln Park. This year's event will be a much better test of golf, as recent alterations to the course has lengthened and improved its playing qualities 50 per cent. The two days continuous qualifying play will be necessary to eliminate all but the 128 players who will compete in match play for the championship and five other flights. Lawrence Kelly, last year's winner, will not defend his title, as he recently joined the professional ranks.

Last year's record of 18:04 3-10 may go by the board.

At least fifty high school runners of promise are preparing to enter the race.

Bay district clubs will also be well represented.

The number of unattached athletes who have signified their intention of entering is unusually large.

Jack Dempsey Gets Down to Hard Training

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 23.—A chilling wind, carrying the breath of autumn, swept off Saratoga Lake yesterday forcing Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, to work under restraint in preparation for his match with Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo grounds, New York, September 14. Dempsey confined his training to six light rounds with a pair of 130-pounders, in addition to two rounds of bag punching and three minutes of shadow boxing.

Jack Bernstein of New York, junior lightweight champion, and Billy de Foe, also of New York, bobbed around the ring for three rounds each, while Dempsey, ducking and weaving in and out, kept his punches in restraint. He made no effort to land except shooting over an occasional left hook or a short right.

While Dempsey was dancing around his lighter foes, Jack Burke, a Pittsburgh heavyweight, and George Godfrey, the 225-pound negro, stood at the edge of the ring with smiles of satisfaction on their faces, apparently overjoyed that they were on the outside instead of within the roped enclosure. Burke is suffering from the effects of heavy bombardment and Godfrey maintains that his ribs still are sore from the punching Dempsey gave him prior to the Tommy Gibbons match.

Dempsey's none too capable staff of sparring partners was reduced last night with the departure of Billy Wells, British welterweight champion, and Jules Rioux, the French-Canadian lumberjack. After being all but knocked out a couple of times by Dempsey, Rioux probably wishes that he never left the woods.

California Pair Lose in Doubles To Australians

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 23.—"Little Bill" Johnston and Peck Griffin of San Francisco were eliminated in national doubles yesterday by James O. Anderson and John B. Hawkes, the Australian pair, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2. Today Williams and Washburn will try to defeat the Australians.

William T. Tilden and his South African partner, Brian Norton, came through by eliminating the collegians, Arnold Jones and W. W. Ingraham, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

"Little Bill" Johnston and Peck Griffin were picked by many to win their fourth title until eliminated.

Hawkes, the Australian southpaw, was the real star of the day. This lanky leader is now regarded as a good match for either Johnston or Tilden in Davis cup singles next month.

Sac. Swimmers to Race at Neptune

Sacramento will send its crack swimming team to Neptune Beach next Sunday, August 26, in the final meet of the Central California Swimming League. In the first meet of the league Sacramento defeated Neptune at Sacramento by a score of 47 to 32. The Neptune team is more powerful now.

Neptune will be strengthened by Steve Broder, the young breast-stroke swimmer, who unexpectedly clipped the 100 yards in 1 minute 21 seconds in the Fresno meet, and George Kendall, formerly interscholastic middle-distance swimmer of San Francisco, who has added a lot of scoring strength to the Alameda team in the 220 and 440-yard events. The Neps also have young Retelle, an Oakland 220-yard man, who is on deck with some great distance work.

Neptune hopes to win the diving with Dinty Moore and Les Josepha. The relay race should be a toss-up, with Sacramento favored slightly to win.

John W. Burton to Judge Berkeley Dogs

John W. Burton, the noted dog expert from Chicago, is due to arrive in the College City Saturday. Barton will judge all breeds.

Superintendent Ray Silliman expects 350 dogs entered. Entry lists will remain open the remainder of the week.

Firpo's Manager Calls New York Critics Unfair

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 23.—Felix Bunge, advisor and patron of Louis Firpo, issued a statement protesting against what he described as "the unjust and unsportsmanlike campaign" waged by some of the New York sport critics against Firpo because he had released his American trainer on the eve of his fight with Jack Dempsey.

"The fact that Firpo has dispensed fith the services of Jimmy DeForest in no manner signifies anything detrimental to him or to the North Americans in general," said Senor Bunge, "because if he discarded him it was solely because of the difficulty of understanding the language.

"On the other hand, all that Lavalle transmits to Firpo we have learned from Dempsey himself. Thus we are going to fight the North Americans with their own weapons, which undoubtedly are the best."

DEFORREST TALKS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Jimmy DeForrest, Luis Angel Firpo's ex-trainer, when told of Felix Bunge's statement in Buenos Aires that an unsportsmanlike campaign had been waged against Firpo because DeForrest had been released, said there was not the slightest hard feeling between the Argentine fighter and himself.

"Every man has the right to select his trainer," he said, "just as much as he has the right to select his own automobile. Firpo is no exception."

Pacific Regatta Opens On Bay Sunday at Noon

Pacific Coast yachtsmen who are gathering in San Francisco for the annual regatta will be entertained Saturday night by one of the San Francisco Yacht club's "shows." Vice-Commodore Arthur Rousseau and G. W. Dewey are the committee in charge.

All yachts and motor boats will rendezvous Sunday noon at the Presidio ghoal buoy. At this point yachts will follow the flagship past Alcatraz island. Then the yachts will disperse to the two clubs, San Francisco and Corinthian.

Next Monday racing will begin for all classes except star boats and smaller craft. The races start off the Marina about on a line with Fillmore street.

A dinner-dance will be given at the Fairmont Hotel on Monday night.

H. D. Weeks, chairman of the race committee, announced that a fleet of fishing boats will race around Alcatraz island on August 28.

Trophies will be presented at the Corinthian club on September 1.

The star boat trophy will be awarded by the inter-club committee also on that evening.

East Bay Barks

By S. Boehm

With 200 dogs entered, the Stockton show on August 25 and 26 should prove a successful event. Several Oakland kennels will be represented, among them Nancy Lee Fletcher's Shagsions kennels, with seven Irish setters. Irving C. Ackerman's Airedale Humberstone Tattler, conditioned at the Rossmoma kennels, Oakland, also will make the trip. On his two last appearances at the specialty shows and at San Rafael Tattler went Winner dogs.

The premium list for Berkeley is out. This young club has made such strenuous efforts and has put in so much hard work that an entry extraordinary should be its reward. The Berkeley fixture is liable to be an eye-opener to many local fanciers, as it will probably prove what good results can be attained by judicious and usely advertising.

The Oakland show has passed into history an unqualified success. The quality of the exhibits was remarkable. This was especially evident in Bostons, in which breed not one poor specimen was shown. A. L. Onstad of Los Angeles adjudicated. It was his maiden effort as master of ceremonies in the ring and he accomplished the difficult task most creditably. Knettel's Little Sir Thomas, known as the smallest and dog of the breed in the west, went best of breed.

Al Christie of the Christie Comedies was a visitor at the Oakland show. In several classes he handled his dogs. The Christie terriers are conditioned and managed by H. M. Robertson, Lamanda Park.

Last Night's Fights

By Bob Shand

YOUNG FISHER, the Syracuse Caveman, went back to his cave about ten-thirty last night and pulled the cave in after him. The Syracuse beauty was handed a neat pasting by one James O'Hagen, of Albany, N. Y., at the Auditorium before one of the biggest crowds that ever witnessed a boxing show in Oakland, but let it be said right here and now that Mister O'Hagen is quite satisfied with a four-round bout with his little playmate from Syracuse. Jimmy's victory was decisive enough last night but he frankly admits that it would take a mighty strong team of horses to get him into the ring with the Fisher boy if the law called for ten rounds or over.

Fisher warmed up a few rounds in his dressing room before the fight and came into the ring dripping with perspiration, but all the warming up he could do in a week would avail him nothing in a four round joust with Old Man O'Hagen's boy for Jimmy knows the short game thoroughly now and appears to be in a class by himself.

Fisher as Handsome As Bull Montana—Maybe.

Fisher, who looks more like Bull Montana than the Bull does himself, sometimes has a variety of holds, particularly a wristlock which he tried to use last night. However, the holding stuff is not popular here, in fact, it is not being done this season, and Fisher had to make an open fight for it. O'Hagen boxed rings around him, taking the edge in every round, and he was going good at the finish when both judges decided in his favor. Over a route the Caveman would be bad medicine for any of them, but he's a bit slow for the local game. He is tough, rugged, can hit hard and likes to fight, but speed is essential to success in short bouts and this is one asset that the Syracuse boy lacks.

Frank Farmer Fat But He Defeats Al Hoag.

Frank Farmer was in terrible shape when he stepped into the ring with Al Hoag, but his experience won him the decision. Farmer was scheduled to meet Ray Pelkey, but Ray had a lame back, which was tough for the McCloud entry, as Pelkey would probably have cleaned the Tacoma veteran the way he boxed. It was a slow fight, the only feature being a knock down scored by Farmer in the second round. Hoag arose without taking a count.

Eddie Mahoney is gettin slower and slower. Looking the picture of a well trained athlete Eddie let little Gene Cline carry the fight to him and take every round and the decision. Eddie does not think fast enough and he refuses to take a chance. Cline did not appear to be putting anything behind his punches but he won pulled up.

Bud Simmons gave a clever imitation of a slow moving picture in his bout with Jimmy Dime. Bud used the slowest round house swing on record, in fact, his arms got tired before the punch came all the way around. Dime cracked his lanky opponent on the chin in the second and his handlers threw everything but othe ring but the water bottle, and they were reaching for this when Dime went back to his corner.

Teddy Seidman and Sam Compagno Stage Good Go.

Teddy Seidman and Sammy Compagno fought four rattling rounds to a draw. Seidman used a series of left hooks followed by a right cross, and in the second round he pushed the little chiken picker on the pot stand Sammy reclined while eight was tolled. In the later rounds Seidman did a lot of comedy jumping that gave the customers quite a thrill but Compagno was piling up a few useful points in every round and broke even at the finish.

Somebody must have slipped Battling Buck another Buck, for he came into the ring wearing a swell pair of white tennis shoes. He needed them in his racket with Bobby Burns, for the Italian boy kept on top of his colored opponent and was loath to break. Buck did a lot of clever boxing at long range and received a else decision.

Curtain Raiser Furnish Best Fight of Night.

But the best fight of the night was furnished by hte kids in the curtain-raiser, Jimmy Rizzo and Johnny Buell. They must have fed these youngsters raw meat for it is many a day since the local customers saw so much action. Rizzo put his man down with a short left to the pantry in the first round, but in the second Johnny hit Jimmy often enough to put a heavyweight away let alone a little guy like Rizzo. However, Jimmy stook by his guns and took the third round. The draw decision was plenty fair enough.

Eastern Fan Thinks Well of Four Rounders.

John Zanft, general manager of the Fox chain of theaters, attended the festivities as the guest of Chief of Police James Drew and Captain Frank Lynch, and got a wonderful kick out of the proceedings. Zanft is a keen fight fan and never misses any of the big ones in New York. The four-round game was a revelation to the theatrical man and he declared the boys put more action into their four rounds than the customers get in ten and fifteen rounds back East.

Looks like James Duffy and Bobby Harper next week. And then Willie Meehan and Floyd Johnson at the ball yard Labor Day.

North Wins From South in Annual Big Basin Meet

The north defeated the south in the annual field and water meet which was held at the Big Basin, in Santa Cruz county. Each year the rivalries arcanee this meet with Fresno as the dividing line for the representatives of the northern and southern parts of the state. In the ball games, the northern women defeated the southern ones, 22 to 6, while the men of the north defeated the south, 22 to 11. Evelyn Morse pitched a three-hit game for the northern women. She also hit a homer, as did Mrs. G. Newson. Driscoll pitched for the men swingers and got four hits himself.

Lou Rowley of Oakland, Bert Antrum of San Jose and Professor Mead of Pasadena handled the meet. The results of the track and water events follow:

NEW CANADIAN SERVICE IS TO START SHORTLY

Will Call At Bay Ports and in South; to Open Service to U. K.

San Francisco bay and San Pedro will be ports of call for the vessels of the Canadian government merchant marine, which will operate a new service beginning in October between British Columbia and the United Kingdom, according to word received here.

The Cities Refining Company of East Braintree, Mass., has purchased 1,000,000 barrels of California oil and will carry it to eastern ports in the company's tankers, each of which has a capacity of 65,000 barrels, according to information reaching here today.

The International Mercantile Marine Company plans to enter the coast-to-coast trade in October and will place some of the largest liners ever to enter the Pacific in the service carrying passengers and freight, advices from New York today stated. Vessels to operate in the trade will include the Mongolia, Finland, Manchuria and Kroonland, all of the Red Star Line fleet, it was said.

The steamship Pomona, one of two large freighters purchased recently by the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company for service between its two Everett mills and its huge yards in Baltimore, left last night after loading in six and one-half days more than 5,000,000 feet of lumber.

Freighter Hits Rock and Sinks

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 23.—The freight steamer Selkirk struck a rock on the east end of Hearst Island in a dense fog tonight, according to word received here from Captain W. H. Gillen, her master. He said that the stern sank in seven fathoms of water, leaving the bow high in the air.

The Selkirk commenced to fill with water immediately after striking, said Captain Gillen, and he and his crew of eight men rowed to Hardy Bay, on the east coast of Vancouver Island, where he communicated with this city. He said the vessel would be a total loss.

The Selkirk, which was listed at 142 gross tons, was northbound with cans for fish packing plants.

Bristol Bay Pack Now Below Normal

SEATTLE, Wn., Aug. 22.—Reports that the fishing pack season in the Bristol bay region would be less unsuccessful than had previously been stated were brought here by the steam cannery tender Shellikoff, of the Northwestern Fisheries Company, which arrived from the district. Reports brought by the Shellikoff were that the pack in the vicinity of Ekuk was hardly half of normal, but that other parts of the district had done much better, some exceeding last year's output.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 23.—The Leonard Shoe Company of Lynn ceased to manufacture this week. The cause assigned is that excessive wage demands have made it impossible to meet competition for other localities.

EFFORT MADE TO BETTER SERVICE BETWEEN COASTS

Shipping Men Confer Upon Best Methods of Making For Economies.

Every effort is being made by shipping men on both sides of the nation to put the intercoastal trade and service upon an efficient and economical bases both for ship owners and the shippers. Several conferences have been held both on the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards for the purpose of bringing about this result.

Intercoastal traffic has now reached a total of almost 1,000,000 tons of cargo a month. Due to the great amounts of oil which are shipped from Southern California the port of Los Angeles stands first in the amount of intercoastal cargo handled by any one port of the nation. Her total for the first six months was 3,727,240 tons, against New York's 2,652,200 tons.

The rank of the first ten ports of the United States in intercoastal movement only—coastwise and foreign traffic not considered—is as follows, for the half year: Los Angeles, 3,727,240; New York, 2,652,600; San Francisco, 795,987; Philadelphia, 749,354; Baltimore, 742,894; New Orleans, 332,261; Seattle, 263,141; Portland, Ore., 238,548; Boston, 233,649; Tacoma, 173,314.

OAKLAND NOT LISTED.

While a large amount of intercoastal cargo has passed through Oakland either in receipt or transit, it is not recorded individually, but goes to swell the total for San Francisco. Several big lines of steamers of the type of the Steel Scientist which sails today, the big freighters of the American-Hawaiian type, and others.

NEW TARIFF RATES.

The following statement has been issued by C. A. Torrence regarding the results of the conferences for adjustment of rates:

"The work in connection with the making of a new tariff carrying a list of westbound minimum rates is progressing smoothly and conference members will be in a position by September 1 to quote rates for shipments beyond that date to and including the December seaboard (December 31).

"The conference has been holding protracted meetings and will continue to meet at intervals until a more or less permanent tariff is whipped into shape. The members feel that the matter of the greatest importance is a consideration of rates on all commodities, the movement of which is now being retarded on account of present conference rates, therefore, this naturally will have first attention.

"For obvious reasons no public distribution of the new tariff will take place, but shippers and others interested can obtain desired information as to rates, sailings, bookings, etc., by making direct application to the individual members of the conference."

Helps Swell Intercoastal Cargo Tonnages

The intercoastal cargo movement amounts to nearly 1,000,000 tons of material a month according to figures just issued by the Shipping Board. San Francisco, which includes the movement to and from Oakland, is third. The STEEL SCIENTIST is a type of the many vessels engaged in the intercoastal trade.

Less Demand for Philippine Hemp

Local prices for both the United States and United Kingdom grades in the Philippine hemp market held firm during the first ten days of July despite a falling demand, but during the remainder of the month all grades declined steadily. Trade Commissioner J. A. Fowler cables to the Department of Commerce from Manila. During the first nine days of August, United Kingdom grades showed a tendency to strengthen while United States grades remained distinctly weak. In spite of a downward tendency, binder twine grades continue relatively strong. Manila hemp quotations at the end of July in pesos per picul (1 peso equals 0.51; 1 picul equal 139½ pounds, gross weight) in the Philippine market were as follows: United States grades—Grade E, 25 pesos; grade F, 23 pesos; grade I, 18 pesos, and G, 14¾ pesos; United Kingdom grades—Grade I, 11 pesos; grade K, 9.75 pesos.

The year's receipts to August 1, according to unofficial but reliable trade figures, were 897,000 bales, and stocks on hand stood at 154,000 bales.

The principal feature of the last six months' hemp trade has been the increase in business at the ports of Cebu, Davao, and Zamboanga [illegible] at the expense of Manila.

Tug Performing Gigantic Towing Feat From Canal

Peacock Has Unwieldly Square Rigger On Lines Bound For S. F. Bay.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—The performance of the United States shipping board tug Peacock in attempting the 3000 mile task of towing the disabled five-masted barkentine Monfalcone from the Panama Canal to Los Angeles is said to be exciting the interest of shipping men in all parts of the world.

The Monfalcone has suffered a number of misfortunes since she was built at Orange, Texas in 1919. She left New Orleans for Los Angeles May 30, last, and was not heard from again until August 7 when she arrived off the Colon breakwater, with two masts gone, her canvas and rigging in shreds and her crew in a serious condition from exposure and insufficient food.

Captain Richard Buffeth stated the ship had encountered a series of westerly gales four days after leaving New Orleans and was blown 2000 miles off her course. She is believed to have been damaged to the extent of $20,000.

She will be the first square rigger to reach Los Angeles in 20 years. She was purchased five months ago by W. L. Comyn & Co., Inc., of San Francisco. Before changing owners, and while flying the house flag of the City of Houston Shipping company, the Monfalcone was in the Gulf-Atlantic lumber trade. Later she was struck by a West Indian hurricane, dismasted and towed to Gulfport, Miss., for repairs.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 22.—The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company's steamer Cardiganshire will leave tomorrow en route to European ports with wheat, canned goods, dried prunes and mixed cargo. The Oregon-Pacific Company, agent for the vessel, expects the Dutch steamer Moerdyk here September 10 to take freight for United Kingdom and continental ports.

The steamer Eastern Knight is scheduled to dock here Monday to discharge general cargo which includes a shipment of 1800 go-carts for Northwest distribution.

The motorship Arator is scheduled to dock at Portland Saturday from European ports with paper and miscellaneous freight. It will stop at Astoria en route to discharge six hundred tons of cement and mixed freight.

Such a committee would be in a position to make recommendations for rate changes and act on matters pertaining to practices of the port, John C. Settle, president of the local association, pointed out. Settling of rates of course, would remain with the entire east-bound conference which has headquarters at San Francisco.

AMERICAN WHEAT FLOUR BIG IMPORT ITEM FOR CHINESE

Nearly All of Product Is Milled in Pacific Coast Mill Plants.

Wheat flour is one of the most important articles of import from the United States into Honkkong, which is the great distributing center for flour for South China as far north as Amoy and for the neighboring countries to the south as far as Singapore.

During the past three years the United States has increased its flour trade with Hongkong until the year 1922 the United States furnished approximately 85 per cent of Hongkong's flour imports, Consul W. J. McCafferty reports to the Department of Commerce. The remaining 15 per cent was for the most part divided between Canada and Australia.

The Chinese, who are the largest consumers of Hongkong flour imports, prefer a hard wheat flour. They are very particular as to color, and demand a very white flour. Only one brand of flour of dark color, a Canadian brand, is sold in the Hongkong market to any great extent. Local dealers apparently prefer to handle American flour, but price is the determining factor as flour is a highly competitive commodity.

The native firms generally have registered designs or brands of their own under which they sell their flour. The milling companies, at the request of the local importers, pack the flour in bags bearing their brands. The brand, or "chop," as it is called, is designed and registered in the colony by the dealer. The plates are generally made by the milling companies, who are reimbursed by the local importer. The "chop" is a very important feature in selling foreign goods in China, because when the Chinese get accustomed to buying a certain "chop" and are satisfied with the article, it is very difficult to persuade them to buy some other brand.

No Bookings For Wheat Reported

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 23.—No immediate bookings of wheat are ported here. This, however, is not worrying shipping men or brokers, as the rush does not start until early September. Last year the first booking was made on September 13. It is believed the wheat space rush will commence here this season about September 7.

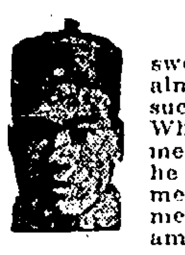
A FRIEND IN NEED



Oakland, August 18, 1923.
I suffered from terrible burning, itching, and swelling due to poison in my blood. My eyes were almost blind from inflammation. My condition was such that I was unable to sleep for many nights. When I failed to get relief elsewhere, a friend took me to FONG WAN, because it is widely known that he has cured numerous diseases. FONG WAN cured me in nine days, after which, however, I took treatment from him for backache for another week. I am now completely free from both my ailments.
M. FERNANDEZ, 238 Broadway, Oakland, Cal.

The foregoing case was due to the blood poisoning. So it was far more serious than a case of eczema or skin disease, or locally infected on the skin by foreign substance. Skin diseases or eczema are disagreeable but they are not dangerous.

FOR YEARS the Most Successful Herbalist in Oakland

In 1918, the Fong Wan Herbalist drove in his automobile to 60 homes, in which Influenza sufferers had been given up as hopeless cases. Without a single exception, he was able to give speedy relief and every one of these cases was saved.
There are in Oakland many cases of Heart Trouble, Paralysis, and Rheumatism, the sufferers from which are unable to come to Fong Wan's office. Although Fong Wan is busy from dawn until dark with those who throng his office, in the evening he frequently drives in his auto to visit these bed-ridden sufferers. A herbalist without an automobile that he can drive himself is neither up-to-date nor 100 per cent efficient.

To Be a Leading Herbalist

one must satisfy the following requirements:
FIRST—He must prove his ability by relieving sufferers.
SECOND—He must have a liberal education.
THIRD—He must be honest and of good character.
FOURTH—He must write a master treatise in regard to Herbal Science.
FIFTH—He must make his work so noteworthy that it will result in feature articles in the newspapers.
Y. L. Chan long ago satisfied all of the above principles and is NOW qualified as "America's Leading Herbalist." Moreover, he speaks the English language fluently which is one of the many reasons why he meets with such consistent success in —treating Americans.
Diseases of the stomach, heart, liver, lungs, blood, kidneys, bladder, throat, eyes, head, ears, legs, the nervous system and female trouble all have been treated by him.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN
I take this method of expressing my sentiments of appreciation to Dr. Wong Him for the wonderful cures he has effected in cases where several members of my family, including myself, were afflicted with various maladies.
I also desire to be the means of guiding anyone who is in need of medical advice, as he will find Dr. Wong Him to be a thoroughly reliable health specialist and absolutely conscientious. Through an occurrence experienced by a member of my family I can, with the greatest regard for sincerity, state that after a consultation, unless Dr. Wong Him is convinced that his herbs will effect a complete cure, he will under no circumstances accept the case.
Very truly yours,

The Oakland Tribune is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Oakland Tribune, as well as every other member of the Association, endeavors to print only truthful Want-ads, and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standards of honesty.

Want Ad Section INDEX

Want Ad Classifications appear in numerical order, and all related classes are grouped together. For example: All advertising of Rooms To Let is numbered 20 to 29. Battle Fleet Will Leave North Monday

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23.—The battle fleet will be on Puget Sound next summer and the United States fleet will make winter maneuvers in the Pacific ocean the following winter, according to announcements here by Admiral R. E. Coontz, commander of the United States fleet.

The news respecting the battle fleet, which is to go south Monday after six weeks on Puget Sound, was given to Mayor Edwin J. Brown of Seattle by Admiral Coontz when he arrived here yesterday on the occasion of a visit by members of the naval affairs committee of the House of Representatives.

The announcement as to the United States fleet was made at a dinner given the visitors last night. Under a three-year scheme, the United States fleet, consisting of the battle fleet from the Pacific ocean and the reserve fleet from the Atlantic ocean, which met last winter off Panama for maneuvers, will rendezvous this winter at Culebra island in the West Indies and will gather a year from then on the west coast.

CONGRESS PARTY EXPECTED.

PORT ANGELES, Wash., Aug. 23.—A party of members of the naval affairs committee of the House of Representatives which is touring Puget Sound in the navy transport Chaumont, is expected here Saturday to inspect Ediz Hook. The hook is under consideration as a site for a submarine and aircraft base. The party is to leave here Sunday after a visit west of here.

World Is Not So Bad, Says Centenarian

MRS. GEORGIANA COLLETT, 100 years old, holds interesting views of girls and things. She says:

"Why should I look like an old lady?

"The world is not quite so bad as some people would like to make it out."

"The modern girl is all right. People a 100 years ago used to worry about us and offer criticism. I suppose they will be doing it about girls 100 years from now."

"Because I like the old ways best is not a proof that the new way is wrong. Times just change."

By Prof. J. Walker

Man's colossal egotism is rudely shaken before the Procession of the Ages. Aghast, he discovers that the billions of years which have wrought this earth from star dust were not merely God's laborious preparations of a habitation fit for so admirable an occupant; that man, on the contrary, is nothing more or less than the present master tenant of earth, the highest type of hundreds of millions of years of succeeding tenants only because he is the latest in evolution.
